1	Dr. Web Inspector M.D (Adam Curry) MODs, commonly referred to as crazy owl people, owl freaks, and weirdowls, are people with the mental illness Molly Obsessive Disorder. You can usually spot these people by the way they act. Some symptoms include burnt food, high Internet bill, constant use of the word owl , and constant call-in orders to the pizza place. Try to stay away from them because the disorder they have is contagious. Other symptoms include lack of interest in daily life, neck trouble, weight gain due to inactivity, and owl behavior, i.e., staying awake all night and sleeping all day. Also wing stretching, which is really arm stretching, but we think we are owls now, so there, and practicing standing on one leg when we think we are not being observed. Trying to produce a pellet requires specialist treatment and probably confinement

	Hey y'owl. I'd like to ask you to take a look at something if you have a moment. Please go to the video of Austin flying out of the box for the first time last night and see if you can see his wings flapping when he lands. I saw those wings flapping last night and deduced he had landed safely on the platform. Other people last night thought he had fallen to the ground. In case the topic comes up again, I'd love it if there were some people who could say he landed on the platform, if in fact you think he did. You can find the link to the video under last night's summary on the Molly wiki timeline. Just scroll down a little ways and you'll see it right there. Go to minute 46 on the video to see Austin take off. http://mollyowl.pbworks.com/Timeline Today, 16:18:02 – Flag – Like – Reply

- Werritt Hi Ginger! I have been looking for you. Yesterday I saw your question about how Max and Pat got back in the box. I wanted to tell you I thought it was just amazing the way they had been flying all around that night. I'm sure you saw how they were launching themselves from one place to perch to another. At one point, one of them was scrambling up the back side of the owl box! He ended up plunging to the ground, but later appeared in the air from the right and landed on the box perfectly. Did you see that, too?!?
- I saw them fly and hop around, and then when they were ready, they simply flew to the perch on the box (or the patio) and slipped back inside. Reentry looked as if it were effortless, though we all know they are very new at this and their return was a wondrous thing we all should celebrate. Other than the slip and fall last night, there didn't seem to be any other mishap. I hope this give you a better idea of how they got back in.   Merritt, did you then miss the "Austin has his talon caught in the dowels on the porch" hysteria? I was in the basement at the time and returned to catch the end of it. Austin was sitting on the porch for quite a while in a somewhat odd position, and there were many (including some wildlife experts) who thought he was stuck or hurt and someone needed to do something. Then as we watched Austin turned and flew first to the fledge ledge and then to the camera platform, clearly standing on both legs and balancing just fine on both spots. If his leg had been seriously hurt, he wouldn't have been able to do that. Maybe he was stunned by a hard landing, but in the end he flew just fine. He did go back in the box shortly after. One of them perched on the porch and didn't move for a long time!
