If you tag me to leave here... I will have to talk to the moderators of SPO. I have been here from the beginning and do not deserve this treatment, just because I've stated my opinion (and I have the right to do that as many times as I want)... and am just trying to defend myself for reading something that was very negative about me. To "smear pellet" me... is very cruel of you. If this was happening to you... how would you feel?

I totally feel attacked right now. Again, for the second time since I've been on here... I am leaving in tears. Thank you all for being SO supportive. I hope you all feel good about yourselves.

I have never and WOULD never do this as a result of any of you.

Melanie I have not flagged you. I have not misbehaved you. I just do not understand why you and others keep the rhetoric up. I just went over to Stacy's blog and personally I am shocked over her lack of professionalism due her profession. I have done nothing cruel to you or the others. Just questioning why you all keep this attack up. People have read your opinion along with others. We can think on our own... okay, I guess I was a bit rude to "whatshearnam" calling her a progressive but that is because they tried to do what you're doing and they can not clearly argue a point.

Think about it. This is not about YOU. It is about you and your group making statements over and over, and you are hurting your cause and hurting more people against what you believe. I have been to the moderators of SPO, they have ALL the history and can see clearly what has been said and posted and reported. Personally I don't SMARF you. I believe in TRUTH and HONOR, stating the facts. My apologies if your sensibilities have been hurt, but I think your constant same of opinions over and over, done with new identities etc., speak volumes. I wished I had gone over to Stacy's site first, and I would have been forward. This is just really sad. Against these are MY thoughts, no one else here at this site, mostly they can all think on their own.

I am completely free to say or type whatever I feel on here (as long as it isn't demeaning, crude, or hurtful)... I am ALLOWED to state my opinion. Even if it comes out unclear or unorganized. I don't know what YOU think that this sort of do? You've done it. And you are equally free to state whatever opinions/feelings you have. As many times as you have.

But what I WILL not stand for, is when you question who I am as a person... telling me to get a life (those were your exact words, sweetie). And basically telling me that I'm doing life for no reason. I don't know what YOU think that this sort of do this... and from the "other side"? I am allowed to do so. As much as you might to think you are... you are NOT the chat room police.

Thanked for the advice. If I haded, though I already have a pretty large screen. But before this and after this I never read one. He has three monitors in his office (two work at home) and they are freaked such that the image can flow across them. I mostly just do simple stuff.

For those of you that were not on Sunday afternoon: Carlos walked around outside of his house with a video camera. There is a very large tree close to the owl box and the owl boxes are visible when the cam is in its normal position. There is also two ladders that are holding the camera. Molly and McGee sometimes uses those for perches. Carlos added a "safety" and an additional platform for safety too.

This site is so popular and widely viewed... in my estimation. It's his personality and his willingness to share so much with all of us that makes me come back to this other site. I can see how some of us would be inspired by her comments. However, she was not slandering the boys. She was making better habitats for raptors and owls. I can see her concern and it makes sense. I hope some of us can raise awareness to changing the laws and making better habitats for raptors and owls.

I was thinking the same thing a few weeks ago. I was hoping it would not sprout and block the view. However, it would be nice for a tree to sprout leaves and it be close by. If we watched the videos posted on here on how the owls branch... we would want a tree to be close by. I see what Stacy is saying about them interfering. I can see how some of us would be inspired by her comments. However, she was not slandering the boys. She was slandering the distributors of these boxes. I can see her concern and it makes sense. I hope some of us can raise awareness to changing the laws and making better habitats for raptors and owls.

Mary, if you look at San Marcos with Google Earth you will see a lot of open space that barn owls like. There are several golf courses and parks.
That said, I do not have that kind of habitat here but I have heard screech owls in the mornings, so there is probably some kind of raptor or owl for each kind of habitat. It's up to the land owner to make sure they aren't wasting money by putting an inappropriate "nest".

AZ, James saw a poster's comment history by clicking on their name, then click "view details." Here's his/hers/etc.'s makes for very interesting reading. The blue pellets are a sign of disgust some of us came up with to warn other serious contributors to this chat room not to be fooled by them.

This is now my third attempt. This will teach me to "copy" my log before I hit "post". In a nutshell, I was just curious as to why you thought that someone has a problem and I knew about the aqua colored photo. I did try and click on the names and the website seems to have changed that. It has not worked on several occasions. It is not really important, I was just curious why these individuals were singled out but I cannot read their post history. I just wish people were not so paranoid. There are obnoxious people at times and they get removed. It is great how everyone or most everyone can come on and help someone in need

LOL XD to a 20 minute story after I posted that I made a minor modification.

Someone mentioned Enslens's hair, and I thought the dorm room needed a poster. They're as long and long but so are the feet on those little birds.

homeschoolcoo - you asked about the split-screen setup I mentioned last night.
You need two Chrome extensions to make it work like I showed in my screencast! last night. (*attached below)
First you need this split-screen extension for Google Chrome - <http://www.tuowang.com/>
You also need one that allows you to view/arrange multiple videos in one page - <http://www.streamingandchrome.com/>

I am 35 years old and have horrible spelling and grammar. I hate it when people correct me too. But I have learned you can't argue with them. Just say thank you and move on. And be optimistic, it's right about learning something! Learning it right will save you a lot of red ink scratching on college papers in the future.

Everything I've seen says not to clean barn owl sites at all, but like most things, if you have 3 experts you'll have 3 different opinions. LOL. The Barn Owl Trust UK site shows pictures of barn owl nests that are over flowing, even around the top of the opening! It may be that they would return and reuse the openings. You are obviously not here to screw with us, so I don't matter who you are or how old.
