A haiku is a non rhyming poem with 3 lines of 17 syllables: 5 syllables in the first line, 7 in the second, 5 in the third. Those are the only technical rules. Traditionally, a haiku is about something in nature, and the three lines together express a complete thought. You can use any punctuation appropriate throughout, and any kind of word, so long as it fits the syllabication. Try it; you'll like it!

No, Carolynn, Adam is joking. If you KNOW someone has a chat history of wasting everybody's time in this chat, you can signal fellow posters not to waste time replying to that person by posting the words smurf or pellet in reply to their post. Otherwise, simply ignore them and don't get involved at all, which is probably the best policy to follow.

Smurf Pellet Rules: Apply ONLY if a review of the chat history reveals CONSISTENT ABUSE of this chat room. Smurf Pellets serve as a means of warning fellow posters not to waste time replying on someone who is just playing around. Do not Smurf Pellet a post you simply don't agree with. For rude or inappropriate comments, simply flag as always.

I read about those "yummy food noises" on Stacey O'Brien's blog. She said it was the same noises her Wesley would make when eating yummy morsels....and made that sound all the time that Molly would make (which for some has been known as the "advertising food call").

And her Wesley was a male....so maybe BOTH females and males do make that call...
