As much as we all love our little owlets, don't forget about nature's other wonderful creatures. There is a beautiful gray squirrel whom they have named Hazel and Dad is Wally on the web cam that is about to give birth. We should pay her a visit and wish her luck. Just a thought!!

Cool Google Chrome tip of the day.

If you're paranoid, curious, popular, or just in a hurry.

And you're trying to find that special post, person or word.

Control F = Find (not new, works in all browsers)

Chrome however, also highlights all instances of your search term, both on the page AND in the scroll bar.

Pretty nifty!

Was dreaming about Molly and her brood last night. Woke up around 4am and just lay there thinking about them when these lines started coming together for a poem...so here it is...submitted for your enjoyment. =D

Four little fluffers
snuggled in a box
safe from rain and wind
even when it rocks.

Molly is their mom
outside in a tree
sleeping through the day
but close, to hear and see.

In the dark of night
after the sun goes down,
dad comes to call,
McGee's back in town!

Silently they hunt together
and return with furry treats,
for the noisy, hungry owlettes
it's all "good eats".

All around the world
hearts have come together
as we watch our favorite family
we are "birds of a feather"!

 Good morning from Orlando, Fl. Suzie B. here. I did a date count and May 8th should be day 49 for Max. He should have most of his outdoor, primary feathers. So I am guessing that after May 8th these owlets should be wondering outside a bit. I hope they all make it in our world of wonders. I am excited about seeing these little ones make their first outdoor adventure.

I've been doing these for years with my students- grades 3-5. They are quite the inquiry lesson. I am planning a lesson for our third grade as soon as mine arrive. Word of warning to those who don't know- leave the ones in the wild alone as you can catch nasties from them. Order them from any science distributor, like Carolina Biological. Catalog on line

People and science classes use them to take apart. They contain all of the bones of the animals that the owl eats. You can put together a skeleton of the animals. That is why I suggest that Carlos collect and sell them. There are companies that buy them and he could pay for all the equipment.

Today, 07:53:33 - Flag - Like - ReplyBarb

Charlene, to collect and sell pellets you need a whole lot and Carlos would need to invest in more equipment to sterilize them and make trips to the Post Office to send them to companies that supply schools, etc. It's not a big moneymaker at all.

Dirty Jobs did an episode with a fellow who collects owl pellets and he goes to an abandoned barn that has a dozen families in it--just completely taken over by owls. A lot of libraries keep those shows on the shelf.

Today, 08:01:05 - Flag - Like - ReplyThais

At first I thought that strange, too. They're a dime a dozen in the nest box! But if you go to the link it's all about dissecting them to learn science stuff; great for kids. I noticed the other day that they sell them at the Museum of Science gift shop here in Boston, too. Whooo knooooo?

When adult birds lift 1 foot up against their body, it involuntarily clamps down the nerves in the other foot so they can sleep while perching and not fall over. (Usually clasped around a perch.) Does anyone know if this is true with baby birds also?

2nd treat is listed as a rodent brought by "unidentified". The first list is what McGee brought and then a list of what Molly brought and then a list of "I can't identify that owl" brought. Each list is in chronological order but you have to integrate the 3 lists to see which came first.

It is confusing.

Rock-a-bye owlets
Your tummies are full
Molly's been flying
McGee has been too
As the sun rises
And the wind blows
Rock-a-bye owlets
As daylight glows...

(Morning lullabye so the babies will sleep!)

The parents are encouraging them now by not giving them the treats and making them reach out of the box. They will do more in the future to push them more to get out. Carlos said that McGee encouraged Molly to start hunting by not bringing as many treats at night. That might be their pattern too.

Ok - I think I did it correctly....could you check for me please, just to make sure?

I created my own "page" like it was suggested (as an author) and put it under POEMS (even though, I have both Haikus and Poems in there). Not sure if I should be putting them in the Haiku section also?

I kind of like the idea of organizing by author 😊

I'm pretty techno savvy....and I LOVE anything with color...lol - so I try to incorporate it in everything I do.

My avatar comes from my FB account....and that changes sometimes 😊

I'm hoping our poems/haikus make it into a book or something that Carlos gets to see...whomever had that idea, it was EXCELLENT! 😊

We have such creative and clever people in this chat!

So...if I have any future questions, etc. regarding the Wiki...I should use that chat link? Do people visit it often?

Yesterday, 23:56:51 – Flag – Like – ReplyLatrippi

No need to copy stuff to the Haiku page. Haikus are poems. When we started, we made a single page for Haiku but within 2 days that pretty much got filled up. Then people started adding pages for themselves (good idea, I think) and I thought, those pages should go in a folder to keep things tidy. And that folder should perhaps be called "Poems" since not all the poems are haiku. (I might have called it Poetry, but oh well!). So it's not consistent, but ... seems to working out. 😊

I like the idea of "keeping things tidy" as well. I'm a complete organizing freak! 😊 I will just keep my stuff in the POEMS folder then...under my own page. I like the idea of sorting those by AUTHOR...makes it easier to find I think...

Yesterday, 23:55:22 – Flag – Like – ReplyMelanie from Milwaukee, WI

Also... I could create a new folder (if I knew how to do that...or had the authorization to do it) called PHOTOS and move all the images into that... Just trying to keep it organized 😊

I absolutely WON'T do anything without permission...as I am new to this and don't want to upset the system. 😞

Good idea. We Only have 2 GB of storage space, though, and the PDF's take up a lot of room. So I don't want to mislead people into thinking they can store photos and videos on the site. We just can't accommodate that, I'm afraid! But I just made a folder called Images for the 5 or 5 images used in the wiki. Thanks! Take a look at the Timeline, if you want to ponder a place and way you could maybe help! 😊

Why can't I play outside?

Do we always have to hide?

Out there's where I should be.

There is so much now to see.

Well go then if you must.

I'm not sure why you don't trust.

I have tried to do my best

To train you and to test.

But let's now say goodbye

As you may not return (or stay alive).

I guess I must let go,

Trust my babes are in the know.

Promise me you'll go for cover

If a shadow you see flying suddenly over.

I wish not to see an empty chair

At the breakfast table we all share.

Babies cover up the camera, waiting at the door, so Carlos set up another camera to get close up views for M&M making the deliveries.

It was a rabbit, and I think I saw the owl deposit it on the porch in front of the door. Please tell me somebody else can see it there, and saw what I saw!

I don't see anything on the stoop, either. Just one very hungry Wesley (?) rockin' at the door.

That was worth the wait. Can't wait to see what it was...at first I thought it was a rabbit, but there was a long fluffy tail. What could it have been?

Wow...hopefully that will feed all of them!!!

Is there anyone on here tonight that could post some Haiku/Poems for me to the wiki?

Yesterday, 22:38:00 – Flag – Like – ReplyMelanie from Milwaukee, WI

Latrippi - I posted something in response to your suggestion below...regarding the Wiki.

Yesterday, 22:39:53 – Flag – Like – ReplyLatrippi

Melanie, sorry. I just remembered to eat dinner (!). You need an account on the wiki to add and edit, but you can just request one and I'll give it to you.

It's almost as easy as posting here (almost) to add your own stuff to the wiki. Really! That way, you will be EMPOWERED to do it yourself! 😊

I requested an "account"...and am awaiting an email I believe. 😊
 Would be happy to add my items/poems to the wiki page! I don't want to burden anyone with that silly task...but definitely would like to be a part of this wonderful creative history - I feel proud of some of the ones I came up with and would love to share along with the rest of the creative bunch! 😊
 Thanks for your assistance!

Yep, just approved you! You could make a page for your own stuff, like a couple other people have done. I'll help you if you want to do it now. If you have a question, post it as a comment here: <http://mollyowl.pbworks.com/ChatPage> I'll keep my eye on it for few minutes...

I think I got it 😊 ...I just created a "page" under the Poems tab, and am currently adding in my stuff. 😊
 I'm sort of techno savvy....so I SHOULD be okay....
 If I come across a question or something, will most definitely use that link to ask 😊 Thank you soooooo much!
 Appreciate your help.
 Maybe the more accustomed I become with the wiki (never used one before)....maybe I could offer MY services and help out...?

I thought I understood nature. After all, I watch Animal Planet and Planet Earth. Only now I see that there is a world of birth, life and death that is hidden from view but is pulsing all around me. What is unseen has become extraordinarily visible. That's what I've learned from coming here. That is the lasting gift of this experience.

Just thought I'd share.

I wondered earlier, since Carlos always seems to mention gifts they receive, if we might send Donna and Carlos a book of poems, sonnets Haiku, etc. Maybe then, he will know how great SportsmansParadise is. And that it isn't a bar.
