Good morning owl you Molly fans. Can someone please update me on how Wesley's been eating the last couple of days? Is he able to handle the big critters and is he getting his share? Thanks!!

Here is another really cute site that Hunting/Fishing posted yesterday. It is a live cam of a bluebird nest and 5 babies have now hatched with-in 24 hours.

I was lucky enough to see the 4th one hatch yesterday. It reminded me of when Wesley hatched. It is a calm and peaceful site and papa bird comes in often too to feed the babies.

Enjoy!

I saw someone's post early this morning about "I love to singa" about an owlet that wants to sing jazz and not classical music. As a musician I went into search mode and found it. You have to register with a NON-yahoo or hotmail email, but you can watch it for free. It's a Looney Tunes Cartoon from 1936 and it's too cute! It's worth the 5 minutes of their process to see this cute cartoon of 4 owlets. Three hatch as classical musicians and the 4th is jazz. Here is the link if you're interested. Enjoy!

From what I read, she lost two of her babies...must have begun with 5. I think that is current. I did not even see the pics or know them, but knowing how I feel about the babies here, it brought a tear to my eye. how sad....

Very short and simplified answer - the camera is color balanced to work with the infrared light coming from the IR illumination, so anything that is being lit by the camera's light will look neutral. The moon, reflecting light from the Sun, is in essence it's own light source, receiving NO illumination from the IR light. It's a totally different color of light, therefore the true color gets shifted by the camera. Think of different film types - one for outdoor use and on for indoors under tungsten lighting. If you shot a roll of 'tungsten' film outdoors on a sunny day, you'd have a similar shift in colors.

Bently J., I don't know if you saw this (posted over an hour ago), a haiku is a non rhyming poem with 3 lines of 17 syllables: 5 syllables in the first line, 7 in the second, 5 in the third. They are simple to write and can be as eloquent or silly as you like. Best of all, they're a great way to pass the time while waiting for some action!

Review a few prior posts for some fabulous examples.

Actually, we started on the east coast and moved across the country over the years until we got here. We like Olympia and hope to stay here, though I do miss real winter once and a while. Seattle itself would be too big and crowded for us.

Seattle would be much smaller for us. We love it. However, we would love it even smaller. Houston is horrible and too big. Just today I got out of the car and said, "I hate this place." without realising we were at a place he chose to eat. I meant Houston. He felt bad for a while. I felt bad. However, he understood. We both hate it here and I am from here.

For those of you wondering what's up with the poetry, a haiku is a non rhyming poem with 3 lines of 17 syllables: 5 syllables in the first line, 7 in the second, 5 in the third. They are simple to write and can be as eloquent or silly as you like. Best of all, they're a great way to pass the time while waiting for some action!

When we first moved into the house we are now we also had them get into the food on the porch. We had it in those bins that stack with doors on them. We heard rumbling on the deck and saw they were into it. We turned the bins around so the doors were up against the house. Next night more rumbling, looked out and there they were, two of them standing up turning the bins around to get in. Yes very crafty indeed.

Great picture! It does look like something small, fuzzy and gray lodged in the porch. Could be a mouse. Maybe a dropped treat?

Today, 12:50:03 AM EDT - Flag - Like - ReplyBarb

There was some discussion about that. Possibly a pellet that was kicked out.

Today, 12:52:21 AM EDT - Flag - Like - ReplyJames Hill

We think it is a pellet. There was a little commotion last night after one of the food deliveries. The owlets were shuffling around trying to get in position to score the mouse which had just been dropped off. One of them apparently kicked some detritus out of the owl box, including a pellet which was still there this afternoon. A few thought the mouse had "gotten away" but others witnessed an owlet make short work of it. 😊

Ah thanks. I considered pellet but dismissed the idea because the shape seemed wrong. Didn't know about the thing last night. I miss too much!!! That's the problem with having a real job; some sleep is required.

Today, 12:55:45 AM EDT - Flag - Like - ReplyJames Hill

I'm pretty certain it is a pellet. One big factor is the fact that it was still there this afternoon, and Carlos never said anything about a mouse being on the porch. I find it hard to believe that neither Molly or McGee would have picked up a rather valuable food item like a mouse on their later visits. This happened on visit 2 I believe. While it does appear to have a strange shape, it may have been fresh and stepped on before being kicked out. Just a hunch.

I have checked the other chat and wonder why Carlos is in that chat instead of this one. This one opens first on my computer, and the things that are said seem a lot more interesting. I don't mean any offense at all, I am just observing. I keep thinking we might be missing things Carlos says.

Does anyone know if we are? Just curious.
