A haiku is a non rhyming poem with 3 lines of 17 syllables: 5 syllables in the first line, 7 in the second, 5 in the third. Those are the only technical rules. Traditionally, a haiku is about something in nature, and the three lines together express a complete thought. You can use any punctuation appropriate throughout, and any kind of word, so long as it fits the syllabication. Try it; you'll like it!

Someone who posts a comment with the malicious intent of tying up this keyboard. They often use multiple personalities to reply to "each other." The punctuate their posts with multiple emoticons and random repetitions of letters and symbols. They often make comments meant to stir up trouble. Many disguise themselves with gushy words and phrase, and they ask the same questions over and over even when they have been answered. If you are uncertain, click on someone's name and "view details" of their chat history. You will soon see what I mean.

Is everyone up on our new troll coping strategy? Owl Totem, Annemarie, Susan, Latrippi, you and others may have missed it. Whenever someone knows there is a troll comment (confirmed by looking at a chat history or an educated guess based on context clues or previous experience), we are to reply with one of the following comments. This will empower us to deal with them, and give us an outlet for our frustrations. The code words are:

Smurf. Pellet. Smurf Pellet. Incoming pellet. Ukiah (haiku backwards). UPS (Ukiah Pellet Smurf). BS (Blue Smurf). Bats! (Especially for Teneal)

Outside camera was moved to get a better view into the doorway. It may also be a new camera as he was having problems with the old one. Go to <http://mollysbox.wordpress.com/blog/> and go down about 6 photos or so to see the new camera set up with landing pad, etc.

I wouldn't mind posting my own, but there are now so many poems that it would be quite a job for one person to transfer all the poems so far. Maybe there is someone who has the time and would like to. Or we could divvy the work up somehow.

Oh: If you keep 2 browser windows open, you can put them side by side and leave one on the video and the other scrolling down to the chat. IN that cse, you'll need to mute one. As Carlos just said! 😊
