Carlos is just keeping on the outdoor cam for now, because we can't see anything inside anyway. There is not an infrared camera in there now because of another set-up he's using it for, so it's pitch black without it, and even if there were infrared in there still, the owlets bunch up against the lens and completely block the view!

POETS & JL -- & Chris from Olympia, WA: Currently, there's a single page on the wiki for poetry and it's very long already. So far, it's one night's worth of poems, which JL copied over (from Friday night), and a few (very few) that some have copied over themselves.

Should we break it into pages, by week or night? Or person?! Or -- what? What's the best way to encourage people to copy their own poems over?

JL (and anyone else!): if you could help with saving Chat Stream Transcripts and / or with the Timeline, that would be GREAT. And if you actually managed to grab a copy of Friday night's chat stream, that is awesome! I emailed you earlier this evening but pro'ly you didn't see it yet. For some reason. 😊

A haiku is a non rhyming poem with 3 lines of 17 syllables: 5 syllables in the first line, 7 in the second, 5 in the third. Those are the only technical rules. Traditionally, a haiku is about something in nature, and the three lines together express a complete thought. You can use any punctuation appropriate throughout, and any kind of word, so long as it fits the syllabication. Try it; you'll like it!

It shouldn't matter. It will still be an outlet for us, and we will certainly have fun doing it. If things get out of hand, we can all just go into silent/ignore mode for a while. I don't know, maybe this will backfire, but I kept seeing trolls all over the place this afternoon and regulars here were replying to them as if they were normal. They weren't. They had a terrible track record of abusing this site. I could see it in there chat histories, but I don't think anyone else was checking. To be sure, we shouldn't have to, but if you trust me, I will!

Someone who posts a comment with the malicious intent of tying up this keyboard. They often use multiple personalities to reply to "each other." They punctuate their posts with multiple emoticons and random repetitions of letters and symbols. They often make comments meant to stir up trouble. Many disguise themselves with gushy words and phrase, and they ask the same questions over and over even when they have been answered. If you are uncertain, click on someone's name and "view details" of their chat history. You will soon see what I mean.

Is everyone up on our new troll coping strategy? Owl Totem, Annemarie, Susan, Latrippi, you and others may have missed it. Whenever someone knows there is a troll comment (confirmed by looking at a chat history or an educated guess based on context clues or previous experience), we are to reply with one of the following comments. This will empower us to deal with them, and give us an outlet for our frustrations. The code words are:

Smurf. Pellet. Smurf Pellet. Incoming pellet. Ukiah (haiku backwards). UPS (Ukiah Pellet Smurf). BS (Blue Smurf). Bats! (Especially for Teneal)
