Good night all. Wish I could say "Gee, that was fun, and we were a part of it.!" Glad to see that things cleared up and posts started coming through - even if they were several hours late. I was beginning to think we were ging to have to quit this site "cold turkey". Will check in again tomorrow. Jan, I left a reply below to you and Natalie about the NY gathering.

Lynda C Have you been following the chat there ? A lot of discussion whether to name or not to name the owls - some are adamently against it and others can't get a consensus of what to name them. There is also a picture of Pete a short way down in the chat. And a hilarious dicussion about "gag shag". Yvonne had posted the term and described it being used here and what it contained. Pete had never heard of it and thought ihe term explained exactly what it was. Maybe we need to email Pete with a link to the wiki so he can look at all the terms used here ?? For those who missed my pouting earlier....My Finches fledged today.. At first only 1 was left at nest, perched on Light, looking for everyone else....Was still there when I left for school.... Came home 6 hours later, and babe was gone !! Glad it went though...... I was sooooooooo tempted to take it out by Einch Feeders so could be with other Finches.....LOL Mother Nature took its own course as usual......

It's happened in the software development industry too. We had a bunch of local folks who had been with the company 10-20 years laid off and replaced by programmers in India. They come here to train, the but the 13.5 hour time difference and their accents are very hard to get anything done in a timely manner...I'm just crossing my fingers as an analyst that I can't be replaced but I won't hold my breath.

Good luck with your Rx Tech. Cert. I worked for a retail pharmacy chain for 13 years, through the most turbulent times in the business (all the acquisition/merger madness). It has changed drastically since I first went in. The cert. will pay off, as there is no chance of declining prescription volume any time in the near future. On the contrary, the volume is going to skyrocket over the next few decades. Sad in a way, but it will employee a lot of people just to keep the pills flowing. But if you want to make the big bucks (not that I would want to) then you're on the wrong side of the counter. Drug rep salaries have exploded in recent years. Many of my former coworkers (as corporate buyers) are now pushing drugs, so to speak, and are making a killing. It's a very twisted world we live in.

And I give a "thumbs down" when drug reps take precedence over me when I'm waiting in my doctor's office sometimes 😬 . I worked in an emergency room for 10 years and the amount of money drug companies spend on "advertising" by having the reps bring in all sorts of "goodies" for everyone working that particular shift - from boxes of donuts to frivolous little desk clocks. Every time one of the physicians would fill out and mail in a "survey" on a particular drug, they got a $5.00 check from the drug company.

Jan (Bayonne, N) I've seen emoticon programs on the net that you can use in your emails. Don't know how well they work; gotta check 'em out. I like outlook express because I don't have to go on the internet to check my mail. It automatically downloads all your web mail when you open it - and I like it's interface clean and easy!

I would be very cautious with the "Free" emoticon addons for email. The way they work is by linking to images of those emoticons on the (questionable) company's web server. That means that anyone who reads one of your emails is automatically connected to their servers. There are some privacy implications there and I personally choose to block all linked images attached to emails for that reason. i don't want a third party that I haven't made a relationship with to know when and how many times I read a particular email. That isn't any of their business. [tin-foil hat attached firmly] Yesterday, 23:53:47 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🧱 pursja 🚈 Natalie

This is what I posted for the question of the night, and just to clarify, I don't want to be in the commercial, but in a beautiful place like the commercial.....I just don't know where they are....

I want to be in a chair by myself (with my shelties by my side) on the beach, in the Corona Beer commercial. No beer though, maybe some mango juice served in a coconut shell, that would be fine. Just swaying Palm Trees and the ocean to look at and no people. A place you couldn't pay me to go to would be Las Vegas or Disneyworld......I shutter to even think of those. There will likely be posts appearing out of order and some may have been deleted. Some folks who posted duplicates went back and deleted theirs and others may get flagged by the spam software for repetitive text. Those of course will probably be deleted by the system.

Friendly tip: when the system fails, it is never a good idea to keep reposting the same message over and over. It only slows down the server once things start ticking again. Yesterday, 23:20:54 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🏄 Natalie

I see your posts Adam.

Well, I checked in to say Good Evening about a half hour ago. The post stayed until I refreshed and now it's gone 🙁 🙁 . I was nothing of consequence anyway. A beautiful day today. It did get up into the 80's and a little humid. At about 5:30 pm EDT the sky got dark, the wind picked up and the temp dropped about 12 degrees in 10 minutes. Clear here now and 65 degrees, a little breeze and nice dry air. Should be good sleeping weather tonight. I'll be on for part of the evening, but mostly lurking. Good evening. Have only stopped in briefly a couple times today to check on all the owl boxes, did a few "likes" but didn't go far into the basement. Just checked on 5 of the owl cams - the Dutch crew has at least 4 mice cluttering the floor; the Star Ranch Mom was up for a stretch and the three little ones are huddled closely around the egg (anyone else here feel that it won't hatch ?), all quiet in Bob & Brenda's nest , but the kestrals were pretty noisy; only 1 in the Tel Aviv box - the rest must be in th other room; and one in the Corwall nest is struggling with a critter. Will be around for most of the evening - but probably just lurking.

Ivnn I know the pain...I was in very bad shape a few years ago. I went to a really good chiropractor, and I recovered. I was a new person! If you can find a good one, chiropractic is just wonderful, amazing. I felt better after the first appointment, and it just got better and better. I was very severe, her worst patient (well, back and leg-wise, anyway!). I could barely walk at all, couldn't bend over at all, had no energy, and excruciating pain. I couldn't take care of my pets! I had to tell you this, I can't stand to think of one of my owl friends in pain, and I truly believe in it. So does my sister and my brother now, too. My brother had terrible dizziness and nausea. I did see your post and I left a reply somewhere 💛 I have not heard from anyone recently but there were some who were interested. I was going to wait until after July 4 to make another announcement. Do you think that sounds ok? The July Metropark schedule did arrive in the mail but I haven't read it yet which means, yes, I do have more details but I don't know what they are!

My family is really bugging me to get on FB so it seems imminent that I will be there myself. being dragged kicking and screaming to FaceBook! Yesterday, 16:46:58 – Flag – Like – Reply Liked by National Chris - Still in Olympia, WA

6/29/10 Egg hatching and viability # 4 was technically due yesterday. But if it doesn't hatch pls understand that non-viable eggs are seen regularly in many raptor nests. Might be infertile, might have gotten too cold, might have a pin hole crack from weeks ago, etc. But this happens. So, if it doesn't hatch, well, it doesn't hatch. That's the way this all works.

Having said this, it still may hatch. But another thing to keep in mind is that if hatches today it'll be 4.5-5 days behind #3 and 9 days behind #1. Tough to compete for grub when your siblings are that much bigger and stronger. Pete

My favorite summer recipe:

Freeze fresh lemon juice in ice cube trays. When frozen, add 1 cube to a martini glass, along with some crushed ice and a sprinkle of Splenda. Pour chilled vodka over the ice. Garnish with a little lemon peel curl. As the ice cube melts, the drink just gets more lemony. mmmmm.... lemon ice martinis!

I've been on the phone with Thanks Bill There were a couple things there I hadn't tried so I gave them a shot. Unfortunately, that didn't work either. I've been on the phone with Apple tech support and they admit there's a problem but don't have a solution yet. I can transfer over contacts from gmail and outlook, but only names and email comes over, no phone numbers or addresses.

I have one more thing to try tonight after I get back onto my computer at home. If that doesn't do it, I'll just have to start entering info by hand. Either that or find a whole new bunch of friends!

Hello....I haven't been around much lately. Hubby is home on leave this week. I have popped in for a quick look here and there.

I saw a bit of the concert chat last night. I will date myself and say my very first concert was in the early 70's. I saw the Allman Brothers Band at a tiny auditorium.

We have a lot of Summer Concerts in The Grass around here. I have seen many unknowns that have been great and some old timers that have faded away. I think Gary Puckett has been one of my favorites of the oldies.

But they were gray. I looked in my bird book and they were band-tailed pigeons. Never seen them here before. They were in the tree with the little re berries on it. No idea what the tree is, but they were eating those berries. Stayed around for an hour. Sunny and Izzy were very interested!

Awesome song, and a very smooth rendition of it. Of course Brooks was the one to bring that tune to the attention of millions. 🙂

Interesting that you posted it this morning because last night I was about to re-post my favorite version, in our Favorite Live Performance thread.

Remember you said my Elvis impersonator didn't count. 🙂 You see, most of my true favorite live performances are from people most of you have never heard of and many which can't be found on the net. I've been to many concerts and I am always disappointed with the Big acts, every single one I've attended has let me down in some way. On the other hand, I've been blown away by so many intimate performances given by local and unknown artists which, in my opinion, is so much more enjoyable than standing in a screaming crowd of thousands.

I can't stand concerts; never could, even when I was in my early twenties when concerts really took off. I take the music I love very personally and I need the intimacy you mentioned if I'm going to listen to it. I don't have any desire for a performance directed at 40,000 people - I want it directed at me in the sense of my being part of a small audience. One of the reasons I love "Rainy Night in Georgia" is it's sense of intimacy and it's instant creation of an atmosphere; you feel as if you are with the artist. I'm married to the song, not the artist - I realize that after I listened to Captain Luke. Of course, the first time I heard it, it blew me away, and it was sung by Brook Benton, so I have fondness for his rendition. But Captain Luke has a rich, deep voice that lends itself better to the song.

Good Morning to all. If you look at the Dutch owl site check this out. On the right hand side you can click on the recording 24-06 which is under the camera 1-camera 2 buttons. This is a recording of a food coma. It is hilarious. The "fall" comes about 40 seconds into the recording. Last night was fun and lots of giggles with the posting of live voices. You never know what the evening will bring when checking in here. Another way too hot day here today so I am off to get cleaned up and head to town to get the weekly shopping done. Will be checking back later in the day as a good excuse not to go outside and for sure will be back this evening. Hope you all have a great day today.

for anyone with kids, the woozle tracking story below got my stream of consciousness flowing about tracking, and the great book from the library my 10 yr old and i read this spring: Stories in Tracks and Sign: Reading the Clues that Animals Leave Behind by Diane K. Gibbons. It's really well done; heck, i learned a lot. With each photograph, you are to guess who and what may have happened, then turn the page to read if you were close.

Good morning; Just checked and read Carlos' latest blog. So good to hear that Molly and McGee are still around checking on the owl box. Wonder what they would do if they found another bird taking up residence in there. Carlos will be doing another live update when the e-books are set to be delivered and they plan on going on vacation by July 9th. No sign of our babies they are off on their own now we wish them well. I am envious of your milk procurement possibilities. We can not obtain raw milk in my state, thanks to over litigious worry-warts and such. We do have groups that drive to SC once a week for purchase. But that's too organized and requires more effort than I'm willing to give. Yesterday, 10:16:18 - Flag - Like yeah, in colorado, it is legal if you are a shareholder in the company; that's how they get around it. I make the effort to obtain it for my kid, truly, and it's only a 20 minute round trip situation. now, making butter with the cream is always a miraculous procedure.... every time for me...not to one of my old friends, though, who had to churn it in the old fashioned churner as a kid....he thought it took forever.

much easier on the back, what with no bending over. 🐸

Strange story. A friend in Dc went to the American Library Convention, got a free copy of one of Wolfgang Puck's cook books and stood in line for an hour to get him to autograph it as a gift for me. Puck tore the book up because he had not bought it.

So I looked us "temper Tantrum" "Wolfgang Puck " on the internet. Here is another story.

While working in the kitchen of his restaurant Ma Maison one day in the 1970s, Wolfgang Puck was visited in the kitchen by a waiter asking for mint sauce on behalf of a customer. Puck said the restaurant had no such condiment. "Isn't that mint sauce right there by your shoulder?" the waiter asked, pointing. Without a word, Puck picked up the jar and hurled it to the other side of the kitchen, where it shattered on the floor. Then he turned to the waiter: "No," he said, "we don't have mint sauce."

Guess I'm heading to bed. Got to take my daughter in for the written drivers test again tomorrow. She went on Sat when I was at the zoo with my husband and failed it. 🙁 She was very upset, 送 but the reason is because she didn't realize how literal the test is. She knows all the rules, but she learned them in drivers ed almost a year ago and some of that stuff is slightly different from the WA state manual. She should do fine tomorrow, but we are all on pins and needles. Then tomorrow night she has invited 10 sixteen year old girls for sleep over! My husband tried to plan a quick business trip out of state but that didn't work. Anyway, tomorrow will be a long day. 🙂

I have posted photos to facebook on two different sites. I have posted links to everything everywhere - on 4 facebook sites and the wiki. I have sent emails with all the links ot all who attended and all who wanted to but couldn't. it has taken since Saturday to get this all done the way I wanted to. I am sick of posting and looking at photos! I just wanted to get it all done before I forgot somebody. My last act tomorrow will be to send Carlos a link to all the photos and videos and give him permission to use them or post them on Molly's blog to report on the Seattle event. Don't know if he will or not, but it would be fun if he did. may also send to Eric Blehm, Chris Adams, and $\operatorname{Vacadude}$ just for fun.

Now, for the last sets of photos I plan to post here, I will post some fun ones. If you want others or want to know where to find them, let me know.

(As he has for several weeks and I didn't know why) and then MAMA House Finch showed up and they both sang for a bit(so I thought) before MAMA House Finch flew into the Breezeway and BABIES chirped week here, weather-wise, so I'm going to enjoy it! I'll check in and read posts, just maybe not post quite as much. Today I spent a little time gardening, walked the dogs, played Frisbee with my husband! Oh, yeah, did lots of laundry too. I hope everyone had a good day.

Hi I am back. Two thumbs up from DH for the pork chop recipe from Becky, and one thumb up from my daughter. She liked the pork chops but not the hash browns as much. She said they weren't like the ones she gets at IHOP, LOL~~! 92 days ago, 23:15:45 – Flag – Like – Reply Liked by 🔐 Bill in SD 🍘 JH (Post Pondering) 🔯 Colleen 💿 Karen from Mississippi 🌠 Ingrid 💀 Christina Sigvertsen Podvin 💽 Lynda C 👤 reenee 🐹 pursja Collapse list

Marla Woody Dillsaver Kathryn...I made it too!!! My in laws are here. My son didn't like the potatoes either....I told him to just push them off..."oh, yeah,"" It was so easy to make. Good idea with adding onion. Thought some sour cream would be good on top of my potatoes!!! Everyone liked it!!! Patricia, I'd love to have your pork chops recipe with the apples....yum!!!! 2 days ago, 23:25:12 – Flag – Like – Reply Liked by K pursja W Kathryn R

Eynda C Most restaurants don't know how to make good hash browns any more (hash browns for me are cubed, boiled potatoes) and most restaurants deep fry The spice Cled your choose came out good. I will try them again, but next time with real apple them. They really need to be browned in a fry pan with a little onion. Glad your chops came out good. I will try them again, but next time with real apple cider when it is available in the Fall.

Lynda C Mine weren't dry, Marla; the potatoes never browned. I used some frozen very small cubes of potatoes and they stayed as white as they were when I put them on. I'll try the shredded ones next time, or make my own hash browns. Where can you find apple cider this time of year ?? 2 days ago, 23:38:08 – Flag – Like – Reply Liked by Kathryn R

Afterwards, my friends and I were hanging over the rail of the boardwalk, we turned around and saw four tall really skinny dudes in those montrous platform boots. It was them out of costume. No one else was around, it was weird. Wish I had asked for an autograph. They probably would have denied that they were KISS. 2 days ago, 22:09:02 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🔯 Colleen

Kristi from VA Okay, so in my younger years (read 20s) we used to follow around Garth Brooks before he retired. We flew to see him. It was a great excuse to travel. Saw him in Baton Rouge (he sings a song about Baton Rouge), saw him in Philly, Clearwater, Chapel Hill, Richmond, and his last concert at Texas A and M stadium. Usually, we went multiple nights and would sit in really good seats. We went to see him when he did the live show at Central Park. In fact, if you watch the live show DVD there I am - we were in the front, and I touched good old Garth. We had to get there at 5:30 a.m., and we waited all day to see him. Don McLean was there, too. Some others, can't remember. Times have changed - I dumped listening to Garth and the person I used to travel with. Needed a little honesty in my life - oops that's a Billy Joel song. 2 days ago, 21:45:49 - Flag - Like - Reply

Christina Sigvertsen Podvin Here it is...Season bone-in or boneless chops with salt and pepper. Saute till brown. Transfer to a large baking pan (I use the disposable ones) Cover with frozen hash browns, pour apple cider or juice over them and cover with foil. Bake on 350 for 45 mins to an hour. Uncover and brown hash browns on top. YUM!

This is what I copied a number of days ago from Becky. Sorry I missed your post. Hope your dinner turns out. 2 days ago, 20:52:09 - Flag - Like - Reply

I will ask again just to make sure. Are we to cover the hash browns with juice or just up to the level of the meat? I am confused. 2 days ago, 20:59:19 – Flag – Like – Reply Liked by Wathryn R

Lynda C You might want to cut that to an hour, Kathryn. I think the recipe says 45 - 60 minutes at 350 degrees. Becky are you here? (or anyone else who has made her pork chop recipe...) I just broke down and bought some pork chops and hash browns, I was stuck for dinner and wanted to make your recipe. I just had one question, do you put anything else on the hash browns, or do you just pour the apple cider over them?

Eynda C Mine didn't turn out the best the first time because I ued the wrong kid of hashbrowns, but her recipe says to pur the cider or apple juice just to the tope of the pork chops. I didn't pour it "over" the potatoes as I thought they would gt mushy. Maybe that's what I did wrong 😕 - so guess I'm not much help. Did she post her recipe on FB ?? I have a little story about an egg tempra art class I had, speaking of Wyeth's work. Since egg tempra painting is very slow and tedious work, the whole three month class was spent on one painting. We finished our paintings and framed them in class, and I took mine home for some last minute touchups before we had to enter them in the gallery. I set mine down on the floor for a photograph in front of a blanket I had set up and ran upstairs to get my camera. When I came back down just a few minutes later, my dog had totally ruined the picture by licking and biting at the paint. He never chewed anything normally but must have smelled the egg yoke in the paint. I had to go back to class and tell the professor my picture had been destroyed by my dog. As soon as I started to tell him I started crying (it was three months of work), and he just gave me a hug and I got an A anyway. He had already seen my work in class. I told him sometimes dogs do eat your homework!

Barb Eventually they will stop banding these birds once they have a good population. They are doing well as a whole but are still not at population levels that don't need to be monitored. Just like Barn Owls, in certain places they do not need to band them because the population is very stable, we hope the Peregrine will achieve that as well. 2 days ago, 20:02:59 – Flag – Like – Reply
