I had to sign off way too early this afternoon and then hit parent/teacher conferences with a trip to Bunco afterwards (no prize again!). I have been gone far too long on this, our last full day!

I will have to go again as hubby just came in to tell me we have to hunt another mouse in our hearth wall/entertainment center. It's the 3rd one in there in the last 3 weeks! Aaack! I'm moving out of here! I am truly enjoying Carrie ripping her leftovers even more right now, I'll tell you.

Off on the hunt...BBL

Joan Schultz-Pipeline to the fiction

Time for me to call it a night. It's been fun!

I was just thinking back to the day this early summer when a few of us were on and this "video" of an owl in the box showed up "upstairs." We were all confused: was it Molly for real? Was it a tape? When we realized the show was about to begin anew, we could hardly contain our joy that the roller coaster was starting up again! Such a blast! I look forward to that day again and to sharing our joys, disappointments, sadnesses, boredom, weather reports, recipes, and all the rest over the winter. Such fun! I choose to be happy for the owls and for us!

Please post pics often tomorrow, if Carrie allows us the opportunity.

SUCH FUN!

Well, it's 11 p.m. here and we need to get to bed. I hate to say goodnight. I will miss seeing our precious owls...but, I will love getting to chat with my dear friends here! I know us all...we'll find others to watch even if they aren't quite as cute as these. 😊

Love that Carrie was smart enough to have something stored in the pantry for tonight! I keep telling y'all that the babies of the family are always the smartest! (Not just because I'm the baby of 7 😊).

I am going to leave you with one more "peppy" song. Jade has teased my since the last clutch because I bop my head just like an owl when I listen to happy music.

Unless the weather clears a lot, I'm betting Carrie will be in the box in the morning and it wouldn't surprise me if she might stay in the box tomorrow. She can stay dry, relatively warm and has food. It might be slim pickings out there for Molly, McGee and Ashley tonight and I don't look for much, if anything for food deliveries tonight.

I don't know how to post it, but there's a YouTube video of a large choir that creates a thunder storm and rain with their feet, their voices, and snapping of their fingers. Anyone know what I'm referring to?

Caryn- I really and truly know what you mean. I lost my wonderful Mom to the terrible disease called ALS last March 19th. I can still remember the panic I felt when she was gone. I stared at her and held her hand and just sat until the hospice nurse said my family had to go because they were taking her body. I knew her soul was gone but felt anxious about the realization that I would not see her loving, beautiful face anymore (well....not in this life). My Mother was "pure perfection". During that time my husband encouraged me to "check out" Molly. That was the first clutch and now that I look back on that time- Mollyland filled the biggest void I had and filled my heart with such peace, love and joy....I will be forever thankful for Carlos, Mollyland and all the MODs that carried me through that tough time! I have never spoke of this until I told Carlos, Donna and Amber at the picnic. Thanks a BUNCH everyone!

Good night, Everyone and Everyowl. I'll be back in the morning and tomorrow evening as well. And after that, too, of course.

REMEMBER: I want everyone (and the owls!) back here for my birthday on Feb 12th. Sandy in MI has a birthday the same day and YQ's is the 11th. It's a party, right here in the SPO owl box chat. I'll supply the mojitos if you all will bring snacks.

I wouldn't miss it Kate. I'll be in FL then - leaving here mid-December and back in early May. I think it was you who mentioned Sunday making blocks for a quilt ??? I'd still be glad to do one or two. Just a thought I had, though. Rather than make another quilt for Carlos and Donna - which I am sure they would appreciate, but don't really need - why not make a couple of owl-themed children's "cuddle quilts" and donate them to the Linus Project or some other worthy cause with a note to Carlos and Donna that it was done as a thanks to them for what they have done ?????

Prayers for Carrie & Ashley. Lord, watch over our little owl family... we have all learned to love them. We have watched them grow and learn and pray that they have long happy lives and have families of their own and they take care of their owlets like Molly and Mcgee cared for them. I will miss seeing their little feathery faces everyday but I know in my heart they will be ok... Also, please watch over all the MOD's and help us all to get through our 'empty nest syndrom'... ~Amen

Just out of curiosity, Austin is son? grandson? I came into the middle of the owl box show this time around and have heard a lot about Austin, so wasn't quite sure. It was nice seeing him on camera for the first time tonight though.

So cute how Carlos had Austin give us a shout out. Such a good grand-dad! Sadly, I need to hit the hay. I'd like to listen to Carlos but he's doing a sales push...understandably so. Carrie is content in the box with a full pantry. Safe flying when you join the hunt. Enjoy the watch and I'll check in if I wake through the night. Otherwise, I'll see you in here about 5 a.m. Chicago time.

I haven't been able to do more than peek, and occasionally leave a short remark--I hadn't thought I'd be able to be here at all, so anything's a bonus. I haven't been able to scroll back and read as much as I'd like of the evening's comments. Perhaps they can be recorded in a pdf (she said, hopefully). Just wanted to add my sentiments to what others have so beautifully recorded. This has been something of a peak experience, both on the basis of gazing through this very special window on a seldom-seen world, and in the discovery of a small universe of wonderful folks. I've loved it all, and look forward to Life After the Owl Box Goes Dark, as the chat stays open. Thank you, all of you, for a very special experience. Good night--enjoy a last night with Carrie. Love to all--Ellie

Ellie, your words join the many expressions of love, joy, sadness and hope that have been made throughout the chat all day and evening.

Thank you for your meaningful words. I hope you will be watching the rest of the events and happenings of this evening and will be here with us tomorrow evening as the cameras go off. I have so enjoyed chatting with you, reading your wonderful words of wisdom and sharing so many evenings with you these past several weeks. Hope you will also be with us in the chat room "after the owl box goes dark". I, too, would like to have some of this chat saved to the wiki.

Totally. Interesting how Mendel's law works. I was also living proof. I was the spitting image of my maternal grandfather until approximately age 35. Then my entire physiognomy changed to my paternal grandmother!! Freaked me out !! But no offspring of Maude escaped her genes! LOL I think there's some law out there about this happening in mid-life.

I got a warning to go to channel 96 because there is a severe thunderstorm coming our way, then I went to channel 96 and there was nothing there "shrug." 3 years ago, San Diego area was ablaze with fires, with temps in the 90's, and now, rain rain rain. Such strange weather.

Oh, Amber....Yes....I remember the fires three years ago! Bryan and I had to evacuate from our home and drive down to Pt Loma to stay with our friends for a week. It was so scary when we finally came back home as we were not sure what we would find! All was well, though...Just a lot of ashes- very messy cleanup job!

It was a very scary time, even people in Point Loma didn't know if the fires were going to make it that far, it smelled so bad and smoky, I remember being so scared three years ago. Glad that is all over.

because it's pouring rain, and it's close by? I dunno... I really don't. Don't think any of us do, really. But it's dry, and safe, and it's got left-over rodent, so it seems like a good choice to me. Wesley, the youngest from the first clutch, hung out for quite a while after the others had left, as well. Maybe it's in their contract.

I was glad he was there to do it. Surprised, and glad... he's not big on those kinds of events. (Kinda reminds me of JH that way. Witty, smart, but kinda curmudgeonly... 😊) Had a hard time with the HORK today. Couldn't find that line between humor and sarcasm that would work...

It isn't very likely that it would ever happen. Somewhere in all my reading with the last clutch, it said that owls won't hunt in their nesting area.

Which is a pretty good deal for Tauntz!

I know that Austin kept trying to get Wesley to come out, turned out Austin had to stay in the box because it got too light.

Then the next night, Wesley stayed by herself, then flew. If anybody remembers different, please mention....

They were both together for a while, then Austin flew off to the palm tree alone. Wesley stayed a while longer, hoping against hope, then finally flew off to join his family in the palm tree. Here's a link to the video. Are you emotionally stable right now? 'Cause it will make you cry.

Marla - I loved the nose, but that avatar is LOL funny!

What I remember, (fairly clearly, I think) is that Austin had already left the box, but was coming back with fair regularity. But it was so very obvious that it was time...

Austin came back in the early morning hours, landed on the box for a bit, and flew off. Wesley went to the top of the box, stood there for a while, looked around, then looked off in the direction Austin had flown to. She gracefully lifted her wings and flew off, and it was the last time we saw her. Absolutely breathtaking, and beautiful. Sad, yes, but so right.

The night before the cameras went down on the first clutch, I was a wreck. I was depressed about the whole experience being over. I thought I would never connect with the people from the chat again. I didn't know if Carlos would ever turn on the cameras again or if owls would return to the nest box. But I was so ready to get some sleep and to turn my attention back to my job! Like I said: I was a wreck.

But within a few days I realized the chat would continue and that many of us are connected in a way that can't be severed by flipping a switch on a camera. And then the owls immediately returned and I knew this once-in-a-lifetime event might not be as fleeting as I feared.

In my opinion there are a bunch of owls that know about this box now, Molly, and all her daughters. We will have more clutches in this box. I really do think Carlos will share them with us. The big question in the future will be which female will be laying the eggs?

I share all of the poignant comments and tears on the closing of this chapter of Molly and McGee, but I hope there will be other chapters or sequels to this experience. Mixed with the sadness will be joy that these two small creatures have nearly reached their maturity and will soar to new beginnings. If we take nothing more away from this experience, let it be a better understanding of nature and the world around us - of the owls who have inhabited this owl box and of the people we have come to meet in this chat room. Let each of us take those special moments with us in our hearts and minds and know that it only takes a bit of kindness and love to make the whole world a better place.

Tip

I wanted to tell you that while at Myrtle Beach, this year we stayed in a cabin instead of the crowds of the campground. Every eve between 7:30 and 8:30 a pair of owls would come out and call. The first night I saw one of them perched on a limb in a tree. Another night I saw one swoop down from the woods to a tree -- it was huge, of course, the dimness of eve probably exaggerated the size. The first one would call, and after 3 syllables, the second would call/echo except at a higher pitch/tone than the first. This year, for Molly & McGee reasons, that was the best part of my trip -- and what I missed most when we left!

YES, I know the code for the discount 😊 But how can I get the Molly songs? and how will I know if anything is happening here? Forever thankful -

I, too, am a lurker from way back...started watching the day before Max hatched (how's that for timing) and while I've only chatted a couple of times, I want to thank everyone. It has been so enjoyable watching the owls with people who feel the same way as me...there are people out there who have no clue what it feels like to have MOD...their loss! I really enjoyed reading comments, jokes, haikus, comments with pictures...the works. There were many time that it just made my day. Thank you for The Hork, I always know I'm going to laugh at that. If we can't laugh at ourselves and what's going on around us, what can we laugh at. And I hope that little Miss Molly decides to grace us with her presence again some day in the near future! Thanks Again all of you!

I heard that too, he said the picnic is in the past and we should live in the now because you never know what the next 5 minutes (I thought he said minutes) may bring. I spend too much time rehashing the past! So my ears pricked up when he said that. What a good philosophy.

 one joke for you guys and an some lolcatz

Two guys are out in the woods hiking.

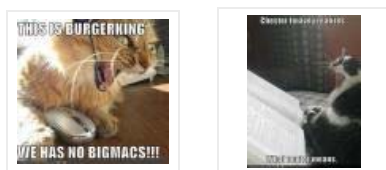

All of a sudden, a bear starts chasing them. They climb a tree, but the bear starts climbing up the tree after them.

The first guy gets his sneakers out of his knapsack and starts putting them on.

The second guy says, "What are you doing? He says, "I figure when the bear gets too close, we'll have to jump down and make a run for it." The second guy says, "Are you crazy? You can't outrun a bear!"

The first guy says, "I don't have to outrun the bear. I only have to outrun you..."

I love it when Carlos makes the comment like he did last night. Something like: Some of you say you can't afford anything, but with the prices being cut and the 20%, that is only xx amount! He was talking about the callendar IIRC. Let me tell you, as of late, the word ONLY in front of $5 makes me laugh. I did manage to get a journal with Cashley on the front and that only because a couple of my survey places put money from surveys into my PayPal. Anyhow, what is he talking about??? JH, too funny!! That pot is small!!!

YTO: I realize it depends on the quilt and the quilter's skill level and methods--but what is the average time you spend on one of your quilts? 😊

Sometimes forever, sometimes only a few days or weeks. I like to do intricate patterns which take me longer, but I will do a couple of easier one so I can have a sense of accomplishment, or I would wither up and die! Molly has seriously dented the time I spend in my quilt room, I might add. But after tomorrow I'll be there a lot more!

One more push - does anyone in the group want to participate in making 12.5 inch blocks to put a quilt together for Carlos and Donna? I would be happy to be the main contact. If we get too many blocks, we could raffle/auction off the additional quilt(s) and the money would go to the San Marcos Wildlife Center.

I can sew but I have never quilted before. How much skill is needed to make a block?

Today, 18:21:43 - Flag - Like - Reply

The Bionic Woman

If you can sew, you can make a block. The block we would look for is a 12.5 in square piece of fabric. It could be one solid piece of fabric or it could be one with multiple seams sewn together. The main goal is the size. I am trying to gather interest. We can talk color and more specifics if there is enough interest.

My cat, Gillie, 4 yr. old calico, used to sit on my lap at the computer and watch the panda cam when Mei Lan was a tiny cub at Zoo Atlanta (and Gillie was a tiny rescue kitten), until they were both pretty much grown. Then I got her two kittens to watch and she lost interest in the computer. Tonight with the rain coming down she could hear the amplification all the way downstairs and came up to the loft to sit with me and listen...she's a medium-haired and fluffy... a pretty goofball...very quirky.

I didn't name them! But the owners of the camera apparently have already received flack from some typical American dimwits. They had to explain on their blog that a potted plant in the US is known as a pot plant in much of the world, and that the owls are not actually eating nor living in a pot plant. 😊

I got my Molly Book, signed! I ordered it way back forever in March or April before the kibosh (sp?) got put on any non-essential spending in our household. It is just beautiful and will hold a special place on my bookshelf forever.

Lookit that, Carrie has more rat jerkey to dine on, cool! I'll be peeking in and out until after dinner, it's my night to cook. Have a honey-mustard pork roast in the slow cooker, but I have to go slice up some taters for au gratin potatoes to go with it and get those in the over.

How do we love thee? Let us count the ways. We loved the little eggs that you were & thrilled with the cracking! We love the struggle you made to emerge & the complete helplessness you were. We love the tenderness of Molly & food delivery by McGee. We love the tiny sounds you made & the wobbling as you arew. We arinned as we clicked on & heard shriekina even before we saw the picture of your funnv little faces. We laughed at your antics:face plants.stretched out legs, & falling over backwards, staying as landed, PRICELESS! Your tilted, faces melt our hearts. Studying buzzing flies, the gunslinger-stance, stomping, cleaning, your dappled blue/gold garments, the flight! You have stolen our hearts!

Your comment says SO much, morning glory, and you have put it so well.

I saw a post from you earlier today with your memories of your 1st TV and other "long ago" things. I was there and "a part of it", too. Times were tough, but we didn't know it. I don't know if life was better then, but it was simpler. I'm not sure I would want to go back, but glad I experienced it as I think it molded who I am. 😊

Lynda, Times were simpler. We had to be creative because we didn't have much "stuff". Of course, young people today are incredibly creative & intelligent!

I do strongly believe that youth want & need boundaries and we had that. Youth may kick "against the goad" but they feel secure. It was a blessing to have a family that cared. Enjoy this last night! (This is not well thought out because I'm listening to MSNBC at the same time! (& I have the nerve to talk about the kids & their)new electronic gadgets! 😊

Remembering how much concern & love went out to Carrie in her younger days when we all noticed a problem with her eyes that Molly so lovingly took care of or how much smaller she was than Ashley. All of th owlets are special and this one has made an impression on our hearts.

I don't think the rain drove her inside last night, Julie; I think that the food she stashed convinced her to stay. If she had gone back to the palm tree, she would have been protected from the rain, too. And owls, like all other birds, are pretty well insulated. Yes, the rain would soaked if they were stuck out in heavy rain for a long period of time, but lighter rain rolls off their outer feathers. And the down underneath those feathers keeps them warm.

But these are BARN owls, Jan. We were told from the very beginning that barn owls melt if they get wet. They can't fly, they can't hunt, they get trapped on the ground and can't escape other predators. Don't you remember?

OL - in the land of sugar

It has been such a joy watching the tenderness with which this little owlette has been treated in the last 24 hours - what my eyes saw was a mom and dad that finally gave her some "special" attention and time - which she really longed for. Our Ashley made us so proud - so noble a creature, so sure of herself, with hardly a misstep. Such a quick learner. Thank you to all of you for this wonderful collaborative room to gather, where the sum effort of the all served the greater good of the each-- many heart hugs to you all!!!!.

I will forever be grateful to Carlos and Donna for giving me such a wonderful outlook on a life of a barn owl... Thank you !! I normally don't show much emotion at times, but I am a MESS !! Yes I admit I have been a WW at times but its just because I care so much for these girls.... Nature is what Nature is... and I can't change it. I pray that A&C will live a long happy owl life and I can't bare to think of anything else..... sorry for rambling, but the closer it gets to light out, the more emotional I will become... It turns out that our Carrie was really smart. She's getting to sleep dry. I know she'll be out in the rain tonight, but you can't blame her to enjoy her last night in peace. Then again, who knows if she'll come back to the box when we aren't watching. I can't tear myself away knowing the time is short until the cameras go dark. I can only thank Carlos and Donna for sharing this with all of us. Hopefully, we'll all see another clutch come Spring. I'll continue to stop by to say Hi if anyone is here.

Hi y'ow! Made it back while there was still some light left in the box. What a nice treat to have been able to peek in on this beauty today! Still no book her in Virginia though. Is Lucky still here? Got behind a Florida car with a "Save the Manatees" license plate on the way to the gym. We stopped at a light, and I noticed a little "Fins Up" bumper sticker on it. Had to smile. 😊

Yup, that is why she is sleeping so hard -- had a lot to eat last night!!!!

A rat, a mouse, and a large, furry rodent that was too heavy for Carrie to fly up to the box with at first -- she was on the lower square. She wrestled with it so many times, and it was so long that her feet would bump it. She just got too tuckered out, and flew up to the box to rest and dry off, then went back and successfully got it up into the box, and ate at it until noon.

Dear CAR! What a beautifully expressed sentiment! Carrie has been a serene Queen all day, posing, looking out the door, & picking on the food she'd stored neatly in back corner. So many pictures were taken. We were all mesmerized with our last day and amazed how she'd matured almost overnight. With that said, I'm sure she'll/he'll squawk as loudly tonight! Dear Carrie...

I hoped I would get home in time to still see your beautiful colors in the daylight. Finally you are here alone again and I can say good-bye. I can see that the split in your soft feathers above your beak has closed up a lot. You are so very pretty/or handsome...whichever, it truly doesn't matter. I can't believe that you and Ashley and your Mom and Dad have touched my heart so deeply! Spinach Soup continued: above - that's 1 10 oz. pkg of frozen chopped spinach!

Cook and drain the spinach. Set aside. Cook the onions in oleo until soft. Meanwhile, bring chicken broth to boil; add the cremora and stir well (to get lumps out if necessary). Add the cooked onions. Add the rice, potato and carrots. Cook 15 minutes. Add spinach and simmer 15 minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Enjoy!

My computer is awfully slow right now....sorry this took so long...

 Before things get busier this evening, a few links that any of the quilters here might like. YTQ also posted several others a day or two ago.

<http://www.quiltshops.com/index.html> Allows you to search over 200 different shops for a fabric pattern, color, etc. FYI - 10 pages of "owl related fabrics" and coordinates <http://search.myquiltshops.com/cgi-server/quiltshops/nph-myqssearch.cgi>

<http://www.quilterscache.com/> go to Quilt Blocks Galore <http://www.quilterscache.com/QuiltBlocksGalore.html> When you click on any block pattern go to the last page of the pattern to check out some quilts made by others with that block to see some great ideas, colors and variations (such as "Mary's Quilt", etc.)

Hi Lynda! If you could recommend one website for a beginning quilter (NOT a beginning seamstress, though) what would it be? 😊

Susan, I don't have any favorite ones saved. I wish I could be of more help. My best advise would be to do a Google search for "quilt patterns", "Beginner's Quilting", "Basic Quilt instructions", etc. If I can come up with a few links for you in the next few days, I'll look for you here and post them.

And I'd like to add that I did a search on eBay today for "owl fabric" and got over 600 listings.....from a fat quarter to 1/2 yard to by the yard.

Really some cute ones. Makes me want to start sewing again.....well, almost. 😊

I saw that, Barbara. I like the websites that list a lot of on-line quilt stores, quick searches for theme related fabrics, etc. I have also had some great luck with some eBay quilt fabric stores. I was able to find just what I needed of a discontinued fabric line to finish a quilt last year. The gal was wonderful and helpful.

The link for the owl fabrics doesn't work. Just do a search for "Owl Fabrics" 10 pages of owls fabrics, owl related and coordinates.

Hello Owlies Just listening to the raindrops on Carrie's roof, working on the AVATARIA II collage. Nice and sunny here. Waiting for pest control to come; we have hundreds of little yellow jackets flying under the shingle line into the attic area adjacent to my bedroom. (Found 2 in my bed while taking a nap this afternoon.) The company specializes in "ecological control" so the treatment is not supposed to be harmful to me or my kitties. I have a 5:30 conference on the internet and am madly washing quilts and such in preparation for this weekend's MOD MEET across the street in Seattle). I'm so glad we're still "hangin' out" and look forward to next week when I can spend a little more time with y'owl. Love, Lady Kathleen Hi Kathleen! I hope you get rid of the yellow jackets. Are you Alpha? I had them come up last year before I had my new roof put to get rid of yellow jackets. I also used them for termites that they sprayed inside for, and got rid of. They use all natural sprays etc. Good luck!

Pursja - I want you to come back and give me your opinion on how the Barn owl eyes are illustrated in the movie. I've seen two or three trailers and I am disgusted because instead of the deep dark eyes of real barn owls, they've given them human eyes! I find that not only creepy, but it ruins the the beautiful natural look of the owls.

Ms Carrie looks like she has things all set up for a long wet night indoors. Plenty of food, sleeping soundly with the sound of rain drops on the roof. Ahhhhhh, peace at last.

I see Carlos listened and is now offering "Deet! Deet! Deet!"

A caution for those who buy it though! Deet is also the ingredient in bug spray, so some people might think you are advertising pesticides!!! LOL

Nice to see her one last time in color. They will all be missed. I'm surprised that Ashley hasn't been back. With the first clutch, they all hung around the 'playground' for a while together. I wonder if it's moving quicker because of the time of year it is. Less time to train them before winter?

Wonderful images! Thanks. We have a nesting pair that live very near our house. They have been rumored to have captured a few small cats (one neighbor said she had "proof"...I didn't want to see them). Just in case...our mini dauchshund isn't allowed out at night without someone with him. We see them from time to time.... hey fly over our house. They are magnificent!

Interesting mention of eagles vs. GH owls. The eagle might not necessarily win. ouch. Apparently they are also not the best tenants, or at least the "rowdy teenagers" are not.

'Tis almost morning, I would have thee gone—
And yet no farther than a wan-ton's bird,
That lets it hop a little from his hand,
Like a poor prisoner in his twisted gyves,
And with a silken thread plucks it back again,
So loving-jealous of his liberty.

I would I were thy bird.

Sweet, so would I,
Yet I should kill thee with much cherishing.
Good night, good night! Parting is such sweet sorrow,
That I shall say good night till it be morrow.

Chocolate is a European Eagle Owl; the owlets in the pot plant are African Eagle Owls. They look smaller than Chocolate, but I can't really tell from the view; I'll have to look it up. But they still have that same silly football helmet on!!!

I see our little Cherub stayed the day!

When I left for work this morning she was working on eating that huge possum or whatever it was that was delivered around 1am PDT.

What happened to it? Did she manage to get it back to the box or is it still on the landing pad?

Good evening all! 😊 Looks like Carrie decided to spend the day in the box--smart owl, given the rain and the fact that she was very well fed last night. If it rains all night tonight, it'll be interesting to see if she stays there another night. She can't possibly be hungry now!

I got a portable hard drive today--never used one before, but want to put all my old photos from my old computer on it. I may need a little help from some of you wizards out there (James, Jan, Kathryn, Colleen, etc) 😊

Hope you've all had a fun day!

Even easier is just choosing all photo files to back up, without the dragging and dropping- that is .. if you want to save all photos and not just certain ones. You can also choose what documents, ect., by file extension, if you want. Each hard drive is a little different in how they operate...mine is set to back up any new documents, photos, ect.- the first time I backed up, I backed up everything I could, now just add to it each time... if that makes any sense to anyone- lol. 😊

Word of experience on external drives. COPY your photos to it and use it for a while before deleting the originals from your other drive. External drives fail a little more frequently than internal drives, but they usually do so in the first few weeks of use if they are going to. That said, the golden rule of data management still applies, backup, backup, backup. Preferably to more than one drive or DVDs. I've had drives (internal & external) that were less than a year old fail and some others last 8+ years. Same with DVDs. Unfortunately, none of the formats are truly archival.

I wonder if Carlos knows what an incredible life changing person he really is. Look at all that he's accomplished with this. People got businesses started, kid might go to college, organizations got money, people made new friends. I mean when was the last time you heard of people going all the way across country for a 3 hour event? And is it just the owls? Naw... cams of owls in other places.. they're "nice" but nothing like here and it's because of one exceptional human being. If he could become an ambassador we might even have world peace. 😊 I just feel so honored to have shared this what seems a very brief moment. I wish I could have actually met and shook his hand. The man is a phenomenon! And I bet if you told him that he'd just say he was "havin' fun"

I hope she goes off with mom and dad tonight though so they can teach her to hunt. Like I said last night, she seems very content to sit at the house and wait for home deliveries! As much as I don't want to see her go, I know she has to someday. It sure was fun to get to watch her another day though.

Riding the Snotwagon - Now there's a term I wish I'd known when my twins were little! On reflection I estimate they rode it for 24,901.55 miles - the Snotwagon that went 'round the earth.

Did any of you ever experience what I called Snail Trails? I had an ankle-length, navy blue winter coat which I wore when I took the boys for a walk in the snow. I thought it was so darling that they kept coming up to hug my legs and then ran away. It was darling until I looked down at my coat and discovered that they were actually wiping their runny noses on my coat!! It looked like an army of snails had crawled all over it!

You have it right, Leslee. That camera (actually 3 cameras) are fed through an old security system VCR. It records all three cameras (owl box and two on the kestrel box) on one VHS tape. The video is recording when that R is visible. He also has that feed from the recorder sent up to U-stream, which is how we get to see it.

When he is playing with the video and rewinding/scanning forward, he is doing all that on the VHS recorder.

I am fairly certain that Austin is to thank for most of the technical experimentation, but Carlos has done extremely well to keep up. But I have a suspicion that maybe Carlos accidentally changed an option on that recorder to record in B&W instead of color. Which is why OB2 is now B&W along with the "red R."

http://sportsmansparadiseonline.com/Live_Africa_Animal_Cam.html I've had this African watering hole on for awhile; it's thundering and lightning and pouring rain; an antelope braved the rain and came to drink a bit aao. It sounds wonderful. Someone actually zooms in on animals. And the 3 dotted owls that Cindy mentioned is in the second camera. So you can watch them both at the moment. It's night at both sites so it's infrared. Also for the African one, you'll have to hit the arrow to make it begin. It's in the big screen; owls in the smaller like our outside nest box. I've been soothed for the last hour--in Kansas w/an African thunderstorm in the background! I'm logged into Molly and this other one both and keep jumping back & forth.

McGee has come later in the evening...I've seen him closer to 10 p.m. Pacific time. They've switched to the night cam. I actually like it because it gets a closer view of Molly. You'll know McGee is coming because Molly starts making all these noises (responding to his approaching call)...it gets very loud and...ummm...a little intense!

Let's put it this way: McGee doesn't mess around! He's fairly one-track minded. =)

Does she ever leave or does all her food come from McGee?

I think McGee brings it all. She can't leave the eggs for too long.

The announcer this morning told us that she leaves 2 times a day to stretch her wings and go to the bathroom. Very brief, and always at night.

I think he said that McGee brings her food a couple of times a day, at night. She saves some, putting it in "Molly's Pantry"(the corner of the box) to munch on all day long.
