- Monia Woody Dillavert: Have a great sweet babies!!!
- Danielle Patricia Murphy: Good Morning from New Jersey... looks like it's getting more crowded in there everyday.
- Merritt: Good morning! (And good evening, to you, Burnee). I had my first full night's sleep in ages last night! Boy do I feel better.
- Kristi Smith: Good morning, Merritt!
- Debi Strong: Good morning from Montana! I see there were less treats, but larger ones (more rabbits).
- Key North GA Mountains: There YOU are Good Morning!
- Ray North GA Mountains: Oh, look at those three precious faces and that one butt. How cute!
- Kristi Smith: More visible feathers this morning and kiss fuzzi!
- burnee: Oh needed to share with you!
- Mollie: Good morning from Atlanta. If you can't see the Blue Box of Death, press the Ctrl key and then press the plus key (+) until the complete box is visible.
- Melissa: Good morning from Maryland. We caught up on all the chat from last night, when that the owlets were well fed, and finished my cup of coffee.
- Judy: Daylight, full tummies and now sleep time...
- Ruth Mabbertley Schmitz: good morning from Minnesota. Gotta get me some rabbit!
- moon8: full tummy nap time!
- Shawn: Good morning from overcast but still dry North Carolina.
- Judy R: Greetings from Iowa. Looks like another beautiful day here!
- Boots: Good morning everyone! In response to rabbit head. I was fortunate to check in when Molly actually banded on the ladder under the owl box and spent some time there eating. She then delivered a rabbit to the owlets.
- Pat D: Looks good for anymore treats - think I'll get on with last night's washing up!
- burnee: Burnee, did you catch the tour of the Carbs Gardens? Thought it was excellent!
- burnee: No I didn't, any idea what time that was and if I see if I can find it?
- Ruth Mabbertley Schmitz: Is there a link to gardens? ... did not hear about this ... would love to see.
- Key North GA Mountains: Good morning! My sister from Savannah, GA is up here. It is so nice to have her visit http://www.owls.com. She is an addicted owl watcher also, boy this will be fun!
- Sue Bradshaw: Have been watching since little hatchlings. They are so big now and they have a full house for sure. Morning from cloudy, misty VA.
- Angela Arnsden-Hartson: Good morning! I'm glad to see the kids eating food. ... lol Parents are making them work hard to eat!
- Barb: Well, I just heard some owl noises. Must be a food coma going on inside the box from all the rabbits last night.
- Karin: I have sound! Not any hissing but I do hear chirping!
- Karin: Hi Barb, I suspect they are so satisfied they are just resting quietly right now. There is still sound if you listen carefully.
- warm: are they done feeding and still tonight???
- Judy R: Yes! Food deliveries usually start about dark. 8ish Call Time.
- Kasey: Headless rabbits? Are they eating the rabbit heads before delivering? (I know that sounds awful!)
- Karin: That's what they usually do. I confess I didn't actually witness the deliveries last night, so I don't know if that was the status with these as well. Carbs seems that the mom and dad need the the catories, too!
- Kasey: that makes sense, they have to eat too.
- burnee: Anyone know where's Merritt, notice they've not been on for a while?
- Kristi Smith: According to her last post, she was actually getting sleepy so maybe she is catching up on some zzzzzz!
- Pat D: Merritt went off to bed before I logged on this morning. Think she's got a bit of catching up on sleep to do.
- burnee: More than a bit I'd say lol
- Karin: Molly and McGee headless rabbit, got all owl tummies full!
- holkie: to start the day!
- holkie: good morning from Holland Michigan.
- Charlene Green: I hope the last 3 rabbits were bigger than the first one. He was mistaken for a gopher originally. They must have checked the still photos to see it was a rabbit, but it was really small.
- Marcia Bernach: good morning from Texas. I could not see any action this weekend. my netbook would not load the stream no matter what I did. looks like status quo.
- Brenna: good morning! It is well here in Ontario, Canada too! that one babe looks like he's just climb right out of his nest!
- Kristi Smith: she was eating a little down-down this morning!
- burnee: Good afternoon from west UK, where at least the rain has stopped. for now lol
- Karin: It's raining here in Boston this morning.
- Kristi Smith: Good afternoon to you. A very wet morning here in Alabama! The rain has stopped here, as well!
- Kasey: Raining in NY too.
- burnee: And would you believe it, the sun's out now but we've still got them clouds too
- Karin: Good morning owl-lovers! Greatbox, four rabbits! That one headless rabbit per seater. Lots of judy calories.
- burnee: Good morning from Stillwell KS!
- DanJanda: who is in the door?
- Kristi Smith: Either a gluttonous owl or a hungry one!
- brie: bye
- Linda: Just signed in, is that molly i see in the door
- mj: One of the owlets.
- Kristi Smith: No, one of the owlets keeps peeing to head wassaya out of the door!
- tm: No, one of the babies. I think Wesley.
- tm: Correction, probably Max. He should be fledging soon.
- Linda: wow, looks like they are getting adventurous and want out.
- brie: lamganging to school soon
- David from Milwaukee WI: so will I in 20 minutes!
- brie: who lives in MI!
- Pat Drumm: Hi Brie, I do. Hartford, MI.
- brie: Can'ton MI!
- David: North Maskegon
- brie: cool
- holkie: Holland here! Hi neighbor!!
- Terry Johnson: Mangalot!
- Charlene Green: Farmington ME, if you are still on!
- Debi Strong: Good morning from beautiful MI! (the way I life should be). It should be an exciting week as Max is very close to the age of fledging!
- brie: I live in Michigan!
- brie: Its sooo dark them
- guest: It's only 400 clock there they are 3 hours behind us in ga.
- laura Jellery: they are full this morning, goodmorning from woodstock canada
- Kristi Smith: Looks like he/she decided to go back inside and munch on whatever was already in there!
- Candace Maxson Dwyer: Good Morning from Lex Ky.
- guest: what are they doing
- Carol Lang Hammevell: moving closer and closer through the door. hey mom, I'm hungry here.
- South F1: hello world!
- guest: hi
- Share 1222: Molly looked into that box just before she flew away, and I swear she said, "Still hungry? You have to be kidding!"
- guest: so lol! lol so funny
- Les-Arno Coyte Poole: Breakfast ready!
- Debi Strong: Good morning Owls and Owl Watcher!! Just checking in for a minute before I drive off to work. Looks like an OK night for food - 2 rabbit 1 - and no major drama. Will be back when I can throughout the day.
- Share 1222: If I count right, Molly just brought in the 4th rabbit. She and McGee are doing their part to control that population!
- Nancy: Has anyone seen the rabbits they bring? Are they larger than the gophers?
- Dafonaurus: Main target? 2 rabbits last night is the equivalent of several gophers and a bushel of rice. Good treat!
- wend: I wish the top screen hid the camera on the inside.
- Nancy: I does, in the daytime
- Jan: What is that action going on in the doorway?
- Karen Baker: LOL, I have no idea. I just came on too and it looks like one of them is throwing his/her head against the top of the box.
- Jan: Throwing a snif, maybe?!
- Nancy: If you can watch in the daytime you will be able to see all the ways they can move their heads!
- Lucky: Max is suppose to hoot around May 11th... too-ooooo
- Amp: if they leave the nest now, where will they go and will they be safe?
- Nancy: not yet - they are still mostly fuzzles, fearfiers are coming in and then they have to go through the whole learning process
- guest: after they are born it takes 80 days to learn how to fly!
- Carlsy: Carlos said yesterday that mom was trying to entice them out
- Lesley: I'm from England. Someone is getting adventurous
- toni - rctees: no, is going to take the plunger?? Have they been "hanging out" like that all night??
- gmm: I can't believe I have been consumed by these guys for 44 days!
- Judy: all day's old today!
- gmm: trying to determine what these 2 love squares are doing - grooming each other?
- emerebba: it's raining on them! the eagles?
- gmm: peeing rain on the NJ eagles
- emerebba: mama eagle looks a bit grumpy!
- gmm: check this one out
- gmm: good morning to you, pretty quiet...
- br: Good morning
- emerebba: that little guy is sure venturing his head out the door.
- Teneal Pardue: this is sooooo nice & finally getting sleepy - good night/morning
- Cynthia Richards: It sounds like I'm hungry too
- gmm: ok...not sure how good night and good morning to all- enjoy and send up a prayer that I get some sleep
- Cynthia Richards: No time to eat, still wanting more. I guess
- Teneal Pardue: They were out for a while but they're on fire now.
- gmm: poor burnee... I am soooooo glad I missed the event with the live rabbit..... I think the sound would be still haunting me- I heard one garden any types... it's moping in the dark almost
- Teneal Pardue: great missed too
- Teneal Pardue: Blue box says it was McGee with a rabbit
- Boots: Yeah! Checked in at just the right time.
- Cynthia Richards: That was so cool
- gmm: was the imon or did? My screen is fuzzy and I can't really tell
- Teneal Pardue: I couldn't tell but since the parent didn't stay long, I would guess McGee.
- Cynthia Richards: St. Louis Mo here
- gmm: I am still 20-30 min abouts are you? I am in PA
- Teneal Pardue: Charlotte, NC
- Teneal Pardue: I'm a horrible mommie!
- gmm: one of my closest friends is in Burnsville, NC
- Teneal Pardue: Ahh, just outside of Asheville, my hometown.
- gmm: she talks about Asheville alot- maybe you know each other- she is the one who hooked me on the web cam
- Teneal Pardue: I don't know too many people in Asheville anymore besides my family. I moved away when I finished college.
- Teneal Pardue: I'm EST here
- gmm: am going to try to go to sleep for about the 5th time-----the sun will be up in only about 1 1/2 hours here
- cheer on fellow MDOS
- Cynthia Richards: Are we back on them? It's Monday morning and I'm up at 3:30 am to check on the kids.
- gmm: yes we are...!
- gmm: that screeching sounds like they have a sinus problem LOL
- Teneal Pardue: lol
- Wendy Laitheer: Hi Night Owls. What have I missed since about 11pm?
- gmm: not much- depends on your time zone but it was a bit over 3 hours before another treat arrived special delivery
- Teneal Pardue: Not much, from what I can tell. There have only been 5 deliveries tonight, and at one point it had been over 3 hours since a delivery.
- gmm: what is that faint squeaking I hear
- Share 1222: I just can't believe they aren't bringing more treats! I assume the food distribution has not been equitable. Oh... there was Molly, I think. Did she bring food?
- Teneal Pardue: They say it was Molly with a rat.
- gmm: who said it?
- Teneal Pardue: Are you showing a blue box just above the top screen?
- Teneal Pardue: The site administrators keep a tally and post it there.
- gmm: no but then I don't have it on a very loud- don't want to wake the hubby
- gmm: Teneal- ok I see it now. It was gone briefly- thanks
- gmm: wow! was that dad with no goodies?
- gmm: poor babies- this is soooooo MAM! haven't ever gone this long without food for the kids have they?
- Teneal Pardue: Expires for 48 hrs tonight me too be very sorry to worry. MAM have always come through.
- Teneal Pardue: Where in the world are MAM tonight? The kids are hungry!

The time stamp is West Coast. I'm thinking they're due for a feed. 100. I love how their cries are getting weak and no one is at the door. It's like they're bored and calling only just warily. I really need to get moving. Lots of junkwork to get in before the rain comes!

thanks for posting the chart. I think the baby that was poking out earlier was just very curious, at this point, I think of a human baby and how it learns to walk in stages: 1st crawling, then pulling up, then pulling up, walking along while holding on to someone or something else, a human baby can be extremely cautious as he proceeds to walk independently, he will not let go until he is fairly comfortable. I think there's some sort of instinct at work. I know I am comparing owlet to human baby with notes of my own experiences, but maybe there is a relation here?

gill... please take advantage of the other nest cams too. molly and family are far and away the best but there are others that are wonderful too. I start by morning with the family owl... you should hear her call. It is so cool. Then I work my way down and around and always end with molly's crew. The babies are adorable lol. poor phoenix has had 2 batches of eggs already the season to hawks and crows. the second hammers are going to fledge soon.

In all seriousness, the wee raptor block the lens, the night camera actually sits lower than the day camera and this is a view with them at the far left corner of the box, opposite the door. they are sitting, when they are up you just see legs and feet and when they are at the door you see complete backside with their bodies pressed up to the lens.

I can't help but giggle when somebody gets startled by the puppet show. I picture somebody who for a second thinks there's a monster owl or mouse invading the backyard. It's a way to forget that we're actually looking at a monitor in Carls's house that's pointed at the backyard.

Anyone have a tip for this? I am having trouble most of the time with pop up blockers when I try to look at people's print screens. I went into pop up settings to allow pop ups from all sites, and that didn't work, and I clicked on the little pop-up at the bottom of the screen and turned off pop up blocker and refreshed the screen, but it still blocks them most of the time. I can't figure it out.

Colleen, you need to "white-list" the following website in your pop-up blocker: http://www.js-kt.com
That is the website that actually hosts the chat and the photos. Try copying that url into a browser window and then tell your pop-up blocker to ignore all pop-ups from that domain.

I look forward to seeing the owlets first flights. I would also like to see a rabbit pellet come up. Beyond that, I could relate to the bonding ritual that evoked memories of my distant past. Otherwise, I think I've seen enough in the old, and on with the new. I would rather watch one hour 10 show on nature than watch a website for weeks when nothing much happens. The chat on sportsmansparadise can be useful if you are watching in the recent proximity of the posts, but gawg backwards and searching for things is impractical. I have wasted many hours on this internet, but thankfully not a lot of hours on it with this site. But it has been interesting and educational

Tommy knows he has not stated emphatically one way or the other. But, given a lot of the grief he's taken from many who question his intentions and ability to reason, I'd be surprised if he goes through it again. His voice and tone has changed considerably in the past few weeks. Can't say that I would blame him if he decides to call Cut once these owlets fly the coop.

I can tell that Carbs has really enjoyed this, but it has also taken over their lives. I wouldn't blame them if they didn't want to do it again. We selfishly want the birds to sit it again, but few of us have the time and energy to sit up not only an owl box, but add-on, a perm, and a platform plus message cameras switching views throughout the growth period and even within each day, and do all the work associated with this. If they weren't retired I don't see how they would have managed. That's why most wildlife cams are pretty much set up and left alone and you see whatever you see without any management by the owner. Carbs does a lot of work, which makes this site more interesting for us but harder on him.

Not to mention the writer, cartoonist, at the interviews, classroominterviews. I have sent the cam art to several teachers here in my town and it has spread like wildfire. I get emails several times a week from teachers thanking me for letting them know about the site. They keep the classroom computer on it all day so they can watch the owls. It has really been a great learning experience for so many, and the ones that really touch my heart are the people who are going through hardships, health wise, themselves or with love ones and how this site has helped them to bear it more.

Na, Tbyrd, I'm sure Carbs knows the majority of us are right there with him. It's mostly a select few who have become very vocal and critical. Some are trained people who should know better than to pass opinion off as the gospel or use emotionally loaded dialog to build a following. They should also know how to be objective in asking their scientific opinion instead of spreading fear and misinformation. I'm wary of any emotionally charged dialog from an expert who doesn't cite reputable sources to their claims.

That said, I wager that these birds fare far better than any brood raised "in the wild." And I'm tickled that I've had the opportunity to observe the whole process, practically unedited.

I see that 17 treats were brought in last night (I've just logged on for today). Does anyone know if the little owlets have actually eaten all of that yummy food?

Logging in, gull free, for the night watch. Bills paid, recycling accomplished and trash taken out. Wheel

Some basement chatter makes me sad. Wishing peace to all.

Mel too. Finally gull free! Cat boxes cleaned, garbage out, furries fed, furries got their pills, homework done, and corn bread in the oven for dinner! Open a can of chili and I am ready for the night watching! Yeah!

With so many fantastic photos over there, I'd love to be able to buy a "coffee table" color glossy book w/ the best of them. This is the first year -- it's classic.
