Okay, now I am seriously going to take a nap. Heard Carlos and ran back to the laptop. Have to take our dog (Kupphofter) to the vet for a check up and pick up repaired vacuums. My husband swears I took them in to get repaired so I would have an excuse to not vacuum so that I can be here.

JanetMcD, some of us follow her chat and know exactly what she said about the Royals, and we know about the post she severely edited. We don't usually engage in discussions that are going to get everyone stirred up. All are welcome here, but arguments and agitation are not well tolerated. Please help us all remain peaceful. As Stacey said, this is a NEUTRAL site.

Merritt, don't want to cause a stir, but I went to Stacey O'Brian's website and saw where she said she had been banned from this site for saying negative things about the Royals and the owl box - I guess I missed that last night - I checked out about 9pm CST last night - don't usually comment too much - was just wondering

Merritt, do you think it might be a good idea to add a wiki page specifically for helpful info about Moly and McGee and the owlets? I just now finished adding the stats and saw that you had put Jame's tips for differential ID in the timeline. Leaving it there is fine with me, but maybe we need a page devoted specifically to tips like that. Or maybe not. What do you say?

Good morning from Atlanta. For those who can't see the complete Blue Box of Death, here's the nightly death toll arranged by time, not parent. I'll post it on the wiki as soon as it posts here.

May 4/5. Total treats: 12. 8:36p Moly, gopher; 8:53p Moly, mouse; 11:17p McGee, gopher; 11:58p Moly, rodent; 12:08a McGee, mouse; 12:41a McGee, rodent; 12:41a Moly, rodent; 1:32a McGee, rodent; 2:35a Moly, rat; 2:55a McGee, rodent; 2:58a McGee, mouse; 4:41a Moly, gopher.

To see the entire Blue Box, make sure your mouse pointer is on the page, press and hold the Ctrl key, and move your mouse wheel forward a few clicks. To return the display to its original size, press and hold the Ctrl key and move your mouse wheel backward. (You can also use the + and - keys instead of the mouse wheel.)

Reliable sources now say that reports of deliveries of antelope, landsharks, polar bears, buddies, and carrots were premature and that, with the exception of carrots, the owls will not start eating these until they begin hunting for themselves. Although owls do not eat vegetables, they do eat vegetarians, so they have been consuming carrots all along.

Cat, as allegedly informed and rational observers of nature, I think we can absorb both the points of the view of the predators and the prey. After all, our entire lives are fraught with contradictions.

that is nature every day- life and death - we go our merry ways and never give a second thought to the animals that wage that every day

ginger

And since we have become so removed from the life and death struggle ourselves, we do not give a second thought to all the animals that we wage war on every day to eat them. We think of them as food and not as living animals.

My battle cry is "Switzerland." Most of us can cope with the ugly reality of animals eating other animals, and use a bit of dark humor to make it less ugly. However, I take Cat's point. If I can avoid inflicting needless suffering on others by changing my vocabulary, I will.

I didn't get to watch last night but they seem awfully hungry right now. Usually by this time they're quieting down. Was the hunting off last night or are they just getting so big that they need more? Little suckers are going to have to start venturing out soon. Mom and dad won't be able to keep enough grub on the table. Are they still delivering this late?

As a side note...here in Frankfort, some of our neighbors are coming and going from home in canoes and such. The water is really, really high. I sure hope it starts going down soon. Prayers please for those people forced from their homes and businesses.

Good morning. Sorry to hear about all that awful flooding. The owlets have screeched until the break of dawn, and treats have been delivered right up until daylight, as well. The night is not over yet for them. They had a rabbit each yesterday, so 2 treats each tonight is not a bad haul. No one should be going hungry. Lastly, M&M will continue to hunt for them for the next 1 to 2 months.

They probably have more important things to do right now. All of TENN. got water, much flooding. 2 months of rain in less than 24 hours. I feel badly for them. If you don't live in a flood area you wouldn't have flood insurance.

Good Morning. Just to let you know, I am in Germantown (Memphis) I had no flooding, just a massive amount of rain in 2 days. Water stood around sewers until they could properly drain. Once they caught up everything was fine. North of Memphis is Millington Navy Base. Homes there were flooded. A very sad thing for all those people. Please keep them all in your thoughts and prayers.

Good morning from OH...it's gloomy and overcast here. Yesterday was a beautiful, sunny day just like it was on May 4, 1970 when 4 studrnt's died from National Guard bullets. I was there that day, as an observer, like hundreds of other students who were in the middle of changing classes at noon. I saw the Guard and student's go up over "Blanket Hill" and disappear behind Taylor Hall at the top. I was on the opposite side of the commons. When the shots were fired, a student next to me said, "Oh, they (the students) have fre crackers again. They had them on Saturday night." I met up with my roommate to walk to our rented rooms across the street from campus. We cut through White Hall and by the time we were coming out the other side, we were met by students saying, "Four students are dead. Kent State is cbsed and they've ordered students to evacuate!" No one could begin to imagine the intensity of the shock we all felt.

I apologize for such a serious post...I know this is not the appropriate place. Yesterday, I went back to campus on May 4th for only the second time in all these years and I saw a documentary of the events of May 1-4. I walked around the area where everything took place and I woke up this morning with all of that on my mind. My remarks are not meant to be a political statement in any way...just comments on the enormous tragedy it was for all involved.

Never mind, I see the food list changing, thanks for that! We can't access it at school so I have been getting the details on what was brought in for my students. Cute joke, but I admit, I'm glad it ended when it did! 😊 Now we can still graph the information, polar bears don't fit on our graph.

Someone impersonated her in here last night, but apparently the real Stacey may be chatting here after all. Go to <http://wesleytheowl.blogspot.com> to see for yourself. When in doubt, always click on the poster's name, and click on "view details" to read their chat history. If you suspect a fraud, trust your instincts until your doubts are completely assuaged.

I did and I replied but it has probably reached the basement by now. I had to re-post and the 3rd time worked. Nothing serious! Now I am curious about you reading that I sometimes don't stick around here long... I am on and off the site but when it gets towards midnight I usually do call it a night. Otherwise, DH will be coming in here telling me the time and how I need to get some sleep. I read that you have insomnia? Do you stay on all through the night? As I started to write this the website was updating and all sorts of new posts showed up so I will read and then probably "retire" for tonight. See everyone tomorrow, same place, same bat channel I am sure! To answer your question, I cannot recall this exact moment what I wrote - the old CRS syndrome! But it's there somewhere... I missed the last drop off. Hate when that happens but I had to refresh my browser.

Hi! I think during all the drama you wrote that sometimes you leave the chat and just watch the owls for a while. I was afraid you might have done that before you read my reply, especially since I was delaying in replying to you. Now, I'll go back and look for what you wrote back to me!

Sorry but it was a technical issue - too many characters. I did not "copy" but have learned my lesson on that since so I can edit and not have to try and recall what I wrote. Yes, too much drama at times but all seems to be ok now. Thanks for your support too. I recall you trying to help out and thought at the time that that was very nice. Did not realize you had spent so much time. Hope everyone feels good Karma from now on. During the day I have the site up and running but have to go about business and check on the owlets. Same at night too. Sometimes I just watch and sometimes I read and catch up on activities here. This is the first chat area I have ever participated in. See how Molly, McGee and their kids brought everyone together. That is a beautiful thing. OK - I am going to log off now. Everyone sleep well and don't stay up too late! 😊

My one and only contribution to any of this (ever, I promise) is to say that Carlos was on earlier by voice and has asked everyone to get along. He said anyone is welcome to state his or her opinion once, but said that once is enough. Not jumping in the middle of any fray, just repeating Carlos's words.

 Shouldn't be a problem. Mine gets really hot, too. I hear a fan running in mine, though. Does yours have a little fan?

Chris in Olympia, WA
 Streaming video makes a computer work really hard. It is not good generally for a computer to get very hot. Laptops are often not well ventilated, in part because they are smaller and there is enough air around them or most things. You can get a stand to put your laptop on that has a fan in it (made just for that purpose) and that can help. But if you don't plan to use streaming video much after this, you may not want to pay for something like that. You can also just prop the laptop up so more air gets underneath it. You can google it or go to your local computer store and they will also have ideas.

 Some nights it's just like with us humans. We may run through the drive thru and that's our meal for the day or we may treat ourselves to the buffet. I'm sure that Molly and McGee are busy hunting but just aren't finding much tonight for whatever reason. They may find more as it gets closer to daylight when the little critters start coming out. The owlets have had good meals the past couple of nights so they are ok if it's less tonight.

No one that JL pointed out caused any grief or said anything demeaning to any one, the owls or the Royals. I have thoroughly enjoyed this experience and all of you who have been here from the beginning. I feel the sense of a "family" here with all of you who have been here from the beginning. I now step down from my soap box.

 Thanks! He would do that if I asked, though I already have a pretty large screen. But before this and after this I'll never need one. He has three monitors in a row in his ofce (works at home) and they are linked such that the images can flow across them. I mostly just do simple stuff.

 For those of you that were not on Sunday afternoon: Carbs walked around outside of his house with a video camera. There is a very large tree close to the owl box. Only a few branches are visible when the cam is in its normal position. There is also two ladders that are holding the cameras. Molly and McGe sometimes uses these for perches. Carlos added a "patb" and an additional platform for safety too.

From what I have read, owls are not fledglings. They are branchers. From which they gather strength and ability to fly from branch to branch. Do they not need trees residing next to them to do this? I am not knocking the Royals (am I right) for posting this box. However, maybe the person who sold this to them should have consulted with them about location and surroundings? Can someone go in and create a safe habitat now before they begin trying to branch? Also, I caught up on Stacy's blog and she appears to have the same concerns. And WE do need to ask for changes in the laws of putting up owlboxes. We gained from his experience and have enjoyed it. Can YOU not help change the laws of owl box locations, construction and surrounding habitats? Apparently, the Royals have a great area for owls to hunt. So that is not a problem. Do not want to step on anyone's toes (or talons).

Go watch the tour he gave of his property. Carlos has stated many times that the tree is about 3' away from the box and there are plenty of bushes, etc for them to climb and hide in. We only get a very small view of what is available to these owls. Carlos has been photographing birds for years so he knows a great deal about habitat.

The owls checked out the site for two years before inhabiting the box. There is also another owl box in San Marcos, so the owls apparently know there is sufficient food, with from 9-17 rodents per feeding period brought about every hour. As has been mentioned, there is a large tree next to the box and a platform, as well as other trees in the immediate area.
