GREETINGS from beautiful Iowa !
I will scroll down to see what all happened last night. I saw two babes on the roof. then one flapped off. another one trying to work up the nerve to step out. How precious. Why do I feel so proud? I had nothing to do with this 😊

Such a feelin's comin' over me

There is wonder in most everything I see

Not a cloud in the sky

Got the sun in my eyes

And I won't be surprised if it's a dream

Everything I want the world to be

Is now coming true especially for me

And the reason is clear

It's because you are here

You're the nearest thing to heaven that I've seen

I'm on the top of the world lookin' down on creation

And the only explanation I can find

Is the love that I've found ever since you've been around

Your love's put me at the top of the world

Something in the wind has learned my name

And it's tellin' me that things are not the same

In the leaves on the trees and the touch of the breeze

There's a pleasin' sense of happiness for me

There is only one wish on my mind

When this day is through I hope that I will find

That tomorrow will be just the same for you and me

All I need will be mine if you are here

I'm on the top of the world lookn' down on creation

And the only explanation I can find

Is the love that I've found ever since you've been around

Oh my goodness We missed it! I haven't been feeling well lately so have been going to bed by eleven. Do I understand that Max is still out flying around? I guess that's Pattison on the perch. What is the "kestrel box"? Was there food last night? Sorry to ask so many questions but this is very exciting. Before you know it, the other two will be venturing out. We've been neglecting the little fellas. lol Just saw something fly by two times...

Barb
Carlos and Donna have a nest box for kestrels and have had them nest there in the past.
The only time Carlos got excited about live streaming something else from his yard was if kestrels came back--daytime birds so he can turn the cam off at night and they are Donna's favorite bird.

I've found one advantage to being on EDT. If I can stay up late, I can catch the beginning of the evening "show". When I get up in the morning, I see a little of it before sunrise in San Marcos. Of course, I think most of the fun happens in the wee hours of the morning in San Marcos, but I don't have to miss out completely and I can still stay awake at work!

Have you tried a full screen? I get an occasional hiccup where it freezes for a second but then continues and my browser doesn't have the spinning whatever of death as I wait for comments to load. I do need to refresh when I get back to the full web page because there are too many comments at that point.
Today, 04:41:05 – Flag – Like – Reply

James Hill (in ItfortheShilling)
The chat stream is very the shilling and memory intensive on your machine. When it gets really busy, it makes things dicey, especially if you spend a lot of time typing comments or hanging out with your mouse in the white space - both activities which cause the stream to pause until you're finished. Once the dam breaks, the inrush of data takes a while to get situated. That's why I tell folks to always keep their mouse pointer away from the white space unless they are actively clicking something.
Today, 04:39:09 – Flag – Like – Reply

Jan (Bayonne, NJ)
I've been keeping my pointer out of the white space ever since you first mentioned it way back. And I gave up almost entirely making comments for the very reason that it held things up so dreadfully. Even liking something was holding everything up. My computer is 5 years old and I need a new one: even getting more ram at this point is useless. The processor was never made for the streaming of today. Just gonna have to bear with it . . .

Is it morning? I live in Owlifornia, about 50 miles from San Marcos. Being on owl time doesn't make it any easier. My days and nights are totally horked up due to MOD! I just finished a five hour project that I have to present in 8 hours. To get where I need to go is a 1.5 hr. drive. IF I could do the math, I might be able to figure out if I have any time to sleep! Hmmm, better factor a shower into the equation, too!

Thanks James, they seemed hesitant to follow each other out of the box a few hours ago when I went to bed. Seems these owls learn to fly VERY quickly, faster than I expected. I wasn't worried, we get fledging birds in our bushes that are still hopping and flapping and I sincerely doubted that owls would be any different.

Good thing owls have wings. Humans generally use stair gates to keep their young from falling from the heights and carpet the stairs. We've had our share of keeping an close eye on a child, watching for signs of serious injury after taking a nasty tumble. It's a gut reaction to think the worst for a moment when a bird falls but it doesn't last long.

That concept really does not make sense. Molly flew and came and out of the box. I would imagine the same would be true for any owl. The box has enough rough wood on the outer layer as we have seen for them to grab. We are forgetting GOD has given these birds the natural ability to care for themselves w/o us trying to take control

Molly is a fully grown owl that knows how to fly. Max will eventually learn but till then he is going to have a hard time shimmying up that metal pole - he's already trying to get back in by hopping up the ladder but cannot fly the last few feet

We have barred owls. They nested in the yard and I would hoot to them. One evening about 3 years ago, I must have said something really bad because one of the owls scolded me for about 30 minutes and they did not bring their owlets into the yard after that. Wish I knew what I said. Wish I knew how to apologize.

Funny you should say that, Mary. I like to play sound clips from the bird websites and I have found that barred owls will carry on a conversation with you. I can sit in the bedroom with the windows open and "talk" to them. They are rather amusing.

But I imagine they probably think I'm a bit boony as my call never varies. 😊

 Good morning from Atlanta. Whoever just fell is probably not going to have the wing power to fly up 15 feet. She'll have to climb at least part way back up.
 That's why Carlos installed the wooden T.

 That may be a bit pessimistic considering what we've been watching.
 One of them flew away from the nest box earlier and was gone for quite a while.
 Then they flew back up to the platform/perch just fine.

 With your aviation experience I'd think you'd know that flying up 15 feet is different from flying straight 15 ft. But I'm not pessimistic at all. As somebody else pointed out, there are ladders to climb and the final flight back to the perch could be as short as only a couple of feet--which we know they can do.

 Two out, two inside. Max and Pat are the ones outside. The owl "in the tree" is not actually in the tree, but rather sitting on the ladder which holds up the main camera.
 They've been flying back and forth from perch to platform to ladder for awhile now.
 Max (assumed) flew off for a while, away from all the perches and apparently went looking around.

Teneal, the owl "in the tree" is sitting on the ladder holding camera OB1. He's sitting right in front of it, and just off to the right.

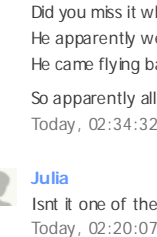

Did you miss it when Max flew off the top of the box and flew away from everything?
He apparently went exploring around the yard and was gone for quite a while.
He came flying back in and landed on the platform or perch.

So apparently all those insisting that the owlets couldn't make it back up from the ground were underestimating our owlets, just a little. 😊

Any ID is almost impossible to pin down from the fuzzy images we are seeing but logic would have us believe it was the oldest owl. Max has been the most adventurous to date so I'm sticking with my assumption it was him, unless he tells us otherwise. 😊

I was supposed to work from home tomorrow, but Noooooo, I have to meet with IBM tech services at 9 am to deal with an issue they claim is not an issue. Even after opening a ticket with them, recreating the steps of the bug I found in their software, taking screenshots of my steps, and they still want me to show them how I found their bug by having them take over my laptop remotely, which can only be done within our firewall.
The noke of them!!! 😊

Long story short, I cannot watch my friends behind the firewall. 😞 I will claiman ill stomach after lunch.

Cheryl, I've gotten accustomed to sleeping with the video running. Of course I turn it down but, the sounds do mix very nicely with the sounds of local birds/wildlife. It adds a little white noise to the atmosphere. ...and then that happens and I'm startled momentarily!

Barn owl, screeching in the dead of night
Take your youthful wings and learn to fly.

Gardening is what I do for a living - and it is quite strange at the moment, normally I'd be cutting grass and routinely weeding this time of year but I'm still doing some of the jobs I'd normally save until next winter - and I agree about the greenhouse - loads of stuff waiting to go out but haven't been able to yet - although I think I'll have to take a chance this week - there's only so much potting on you can do!

Morning Everyone!! How different from a couple of days ago, then I logged on and it was 'there's an owlet outside the box!' and I didn't dare move from the screen in case I missed anything - this morning I logged on and it was 'there's an owlet outside the box' I'll go and put the washing out before I sit and watch for a bit! Much more relaxed about the situation now thankfully!

Thanks, Christina. Lynda, I believe the quality is a lot lower, it was harder to capture shots, and then the second smaller camera would freeze. On my MAC, I am able to capture a screen just by pushing several buttons, then I crop the camera 1 shot and the camera 2 shot. Apparently with my age my reaction is a bit debayed also, not as quick as I use to be, but the quality of the camera1 seems a bit less tonight. Judging by the flashes, Carlos is going to have a lift had to be great for him. I am going to have to dog this off and get to bed! At least we got to see Max on his first official flight, that first feel of a lift had to be great for him. I am fun ya'll, perhaps the second will come out tonight?

After they all get out and start flying, they will remain dependent on their parents for two months, must be when they get lessons. Barn owls can live up to seventeen years.

It's funny that I missed all this for a puppet with my son and the animal he wanted to make was a rat! He said it was in honor of me because of the owls and the fact that we have little mice that like to visit our basement from time to time (need a cat or an owl). The part that made me laugh the most, after he told me he picked a rat for me, was that he would be headless until they attached the head at school. I was sitting and working on a headless rat owlet while I could hear those crazy owls in the office. Molly and McGee would've been proud!

I'll just be lurking for a bit and then off to bed. Maybe I'll get lucky and see another flight first! Good night all! 😊
