             Bette (with the beautiful avatar <sup>(1)</sup> WAY back in the chat - in reply to my post you asked the best East Coast time to watch the owl activity. It's a GOOD time all day and and all night - but for the evening activity from midnight EDT (9:00 Pacific time) until 2:00 or 3:00 a.m. EDT is about my limit - bt's of activity after that but I just can't stay awake.

Ok, I just found the PDF or chat stream where the childhood picts are. Merritt, Chris in Oly, Dorothy and Jan, you were, and I'm sure still are, beautiful! I loved reading the bangs stories again. Little girls are so funny. The only time I cut my hair was when I fell asleep with gum in bed and didn't want to be found out. I needed to cut the evidence away. Then, I had to explain the haircut! Uhttp://mollyowl.pbworks.com/f/SPO_Chat_20100513_8am_3pm_PDT.pdf

Just popped in to catch the tail end of Carlos speaking. ... see that we have a new view for tonight. Should prove to be exciting! I've been cleaning (a much neglected for the past 2 weeks) our home today like a madwoman! It feels good though, to get it back into tip top. Almost finished 🙂 Tomorrow going to put out some summer flowers (silk...) to liven up the joint for summer, and all of my patriotic trinkets. I do love summer! 😃 Going to finish up and then head out for some grilled food (courtesy of Five Guys Burgers and Fries) with my boyfriend - YUM! Maybe to be followed by a nice evening walk and an ice cream cone <sup>29</sup> Should be back later tonight for watching the action. Hopefully 3 will be out tonight! Hope everyone is having a wonderful day! L8TR.

Becky from Purdy Farms... I went to Moclips and then came back through to Union. I mowed my lawn and watch the eagles. Must have seen them 50 times on Tuesday. 2 of them were flying ans swooping and then the front one crashed into a tree and I was taking pictures. I have a shot of himgoing down through the maple. I ran up and went into the woods to look for him. He was on the ground and flew up to a branch. He or she is ok. Then it flew off. I am glad it wasn't hurt. I couldn't believe my eyes. They were grown ones with the white heads....:)

Oh no! It seems like s/he is OK if it flew. I see them out here all the time, especially by the water in Purdy. They are my good luck charm! Kinda the opposite of the black cat across your path (that has always been good luck for though!)

I would like to repeat this Important and Handy Tip:
If you are having trouble with your chat stream freezing freezing, be sure to keep the pointer of your mouse out of the white area where all the posted comments are. If you leave your pointer in this area, all the posts will start to back up. Keep your pointer as far away from the white space as possible, and all the posts will flow more freely.
The posts are either flowing "live" or "paused." Look for either of those words beside the blue word "Admin" in the upper right of the chat stream and you'll be able to tell if the posts are paused or not. If they are paused, they are backing up. If they get too backed up, your screen will freeze.

                    MODs, commonly referred to as crazy owl people, owl freaks, and weirdowls, are people with the mental illness Molly Obsessive Disorder. You can usually spot these people by the way they act. Some symptoms include burnt food, high Internet bill, constant use of the word owl, and constant call-in orders to the pizza place. Try to stay away from them because the disorder they have a contagious. Other symptoms include lack of interest in daily life, neck trouble, weight gain due to inactivity, and owl behavior, i.e., staying awake all night and sleeping all day. Also wing stretching, which is really arm stretching, but we think we are owls now, so there, and practicing standing on one leg when we think we are not being observed. Trying to produce a pellet requires specialist treatment and probably confinement

I am back in the land of the living, and checking in for a moment. I have missed you all LIKE CRAZY!
Will be back on tonight, but wanted to tell you the newest hubby story. Beacuse I have been in bed, I have kept the computer next to me so that I could check on the owls if I woke up, with the sound on very low, but still just loud enough to hear.
Last night, in the middle of the night, hubby is fast asleep on his back. All of a sudden, he sits up and and starts shaking me, saying "Honey, the owls need to be fed...". Then he lays back down, turns over, and starts snoring.
Still laughing about it! See you all later, my lovelies!

If we had a pot of gold, he'd probably pledge it to Jerry Lewis sometime in the middle of the night. ...
       The stories started with him saying one night, about the owls, "They keep saying the same thing over and over", then turning over and going back to sleep. I think I leave it on now just to see what he's going to say next.

       Christina, when I was working at the McCarter Theater in New Jersey, they did the play "Born Yesterday." The star of the show was (and still is) a friend of mine, and in her honor, I dyed my hair blonde, and we both wore a button that said, "There is no such thing as a dumb blonde." Funny! But boy could

What a loyal friend! Hair color is a myth. The jokes have only been validated by Hollywood, In my humble opinion. The play sounds like it was a lot of fun. I Googled to double check the storyline. I think it's funny when a real blonde can play the stereotype well. Did her character turn out to be the Merritt- you've GOT to stop telling people stories about me!!! 🙂 Actually, for many, many years I played dumb (like in Judy Holliday dumb)blondes, including in some commercials. One year, I had done a series of commercials for Baker's Square, in which I was a blonde Mom with a blonde daughter, But then I was cast as Georgia O'Keefe in a stage play, and had dyed my hair very dark black. But they called me and needed to do one more commercial for the series, so one morning at 5:00 AM, I went in and had my hair dyed blonde, shot the commercial, went back and had it dyed back to black, and did the

                     Hi Everybody. Just stopping in for a quick peek. For those of you planning on being here tonight and who have trouble with your screens freezing, be sure to keep the pointer of your mouse out of the white area where all the posted comments are. If you leave your pointer in this area, all the posts will start to back up. Keep your pointer as far away from the white space as possible, and all the posts will flow more freely.
                    The posts are either flowing "live" or "paused." Look for either of those words beside the blue word "Admin" in the upper right of the chat stream and you'll be able to tell if the posts are paused or not. If they are paused, they are backing up. If they get too backed up, your screen will freeze.

  JAN, noticed a post from you about your "treasure chest" of bird feathers. I also have several from songbirds.. I knew that it was ilegal to possess feathers from eagles and other endangered species, butdidn't know it was illegal to collect feathers of song birds until a few years ago. Many of mine were from walks in the woods or the remains of a songbird that succombed to various species of hawks. My favorite feather is from a common loon with a perfect white square on jet black. I'll probably keep it as it was given to me by a wildlife biologist one summer when I went with the group when they were banding bons one night - quite an experience and all for good, scientific reasons.

                           They will eventually molt the feathers they have now, and their adult coloration will replace them. Actually, I think it takes two molts to complete the

                    I found a of website on San Diego newspaper article dated May 12 regarding your owls: https://admin.signonsandiego.com/news/2010/may/12/san-marcos-Hope this helps. I love checking in on them in the daytime so I can see their beautiful feather colors, and the nightime is so cool with them active and peeking out from the inside of their house. This is so educational. Thank you so much for providing this.

Barred owls often call and can be seen during the day, especially cloudy dark days. Barn owls are more nocturnal, I think

Jan (Bayonne, NJ) Some owls are also crepuscular, and hunt during twilight hours. I always thought so in the past, but from watching the events playing out, I'm not so sure. You can see that they have instinctual hunting skills that will be soon activated by the movement of prey.

Looks like Wesley is just doing what the others are doing a few weeks ago, but because he's abne in doing it now, his behavior stands out more.

I know, I feel the same way. We are humans, after all, and bok at him with human eyes and all the emotions that we have. Nothing wrong in that, as long as we keep our perspective and realize that it's only our input, and not reflective of the actual event. We're smart - we can handle both views! It is a dimorphic species wherein the sexes can be visually determined. The underside of the male's wings are white, while the female's are a creamy color with gray flecks. The body feathers of both male and female are gold with gray flecks. I also read that a male barn owl usually has all white pantaloons. Today, 10:47:11 - Flag - Like - Reply

Jan (Bayonne, NJ) True for when they are adults, but these are juveniles. They will exhibit characteristics of both sexes until their first molt, so it's impossible to tell genders at this time.
