Not sure if anyone has seen this little collection of owl videos....they're kind of cute, but watcher beware...just a little light humor. The little pink owl is trying to just stay in one piece...but somehow always manages to meet his unfortunate demise one way or another.

There are many others in the collection if you go to YouTube to watch. I just thought the "windy day" one was appropriate for today's weather.

I posted this video late last night...so thought I'd share with you all a "tid" earlier. It's a great video (that I found on YouTube while searching for something else) set to music, of Barn Owls in full flight (the first two clips are not our beloved Barn Owls, but I think maybe Burred Owls?) I just think they have gorgeous wingspans and their flight is majestic and haunting all at the same time 😊 Enjoy!

Gotta call it a night, folks - but can't leave without these parting words:
"(stomp, stomp) "But, Ma, I don't need a jacket. The other kids will think I'm a nerd"
"YES you do. The wind is blowing out there and you've been huddled up for weeks with 3 down comforters wrapped around you. Besides, I know it is much colder than the 58 degrees Carlos reported a few hours ago."

Nite folks - it's been fun.

You did just fine. I suggested we write an acrostic with our names or the owls' names to describe what this experience has meant to us. Someone wrote one based on Carlos and another person wrote an acrostic about the dogs next door! Really, anything is ok so long as the first letter of each line forms a name. We were literally watching the wind blow today, so I thought that would help pass the time! I started us off with an acrostic using only one word for each letter in my name, but others have written phrases and whole sentences. Anything goes as long as it means something and you are having fun!

Thanks Merritt - I guess I didn't catch the part (when I was skimming through the posts earlier) where it was suggested to be about the owls/this experience. I was scrolling so fast, I thought people were doing them about what they thought about themselves...lol. So I went with that 😊 I will most definitely like to do some more over time...and perhaps capture "the experience" using my name too 😊 Thank you for your suggestions and keeping us inspired. I so love that about you 😊

A friend, Kathleen, made this collage/timeline from her own screen shots of Owl Box moments. I'm thinking maybe she should approach Carlos to include an 8 1/2 X 11 poster among the other Moly memorabilia. Over-cost $ would go to the San Marcos Habitat Fund. Would anyone besides me want one? They'd probably cost between $5 & $7 (Kathleen could work it out with Carlos...) I told her I'd put out some feelers to see what the chat group thinks... 😊 There's a bit of nice text on the collage, thanking Carlos for this experience.

Hmm, he's a little bit younger than them and should fly surely by tomorrow (I doubt he'll be like Aust in and fling himself out of the box the first time), but sick, no.

I didn't use any specific filter. I've been playing around with various blur/bloom techniques. It's a little similar to a dry brush or a watercolor filter but the results are more controllable. I'm not using Photoshop, but a free editor called Photoscape. Very rudimentary tools in comparison.

Here's the song I want to hear when Wesley takes to the skies:
Somewhere over the rainbow
Way up high,
There's a land that I heard of
Once in a lullaby.

Somewhere over the rainbow

Skies are blue,
And the dreams that you dare to dream
Really do come true.

Someday I'll wish upon a star
And wake up where the clouds are far
Behind me,
Where troubles melt like lemon drops
Away above the chimney tops
That's where you'll find me.

Somewhere over the rainbow
Bluebirds fly,
Birds fly over the rainbow,
Why then, oh why can't I?

If happy little bluebirds fly
Beyond the rainbow
Why, oh why can't I?

melissa, I'm sure glad I didn't offer my list of suggestions when you first questioned what your "bird" was 😊😊. Where we used to live, we heard them during the day in the spring in some woodland wetlands. At first I thought they were ducks "peeping" as they went to hang out there, too, until the "puddles" dried up in late Spring. We now enjoy the Spring Peepers that serenade us at night from a small farm pond near our house.

I posted this earlier.
The Weather Channel says the winds are 16-20 mph in San Marcos. Up till now it's been fairly calm for the initial test flights.
It will be interesting to see how Max Patti and Aust react to the wind. Will they find it too scary, or will they use it to their advantage to really do some acrobatic flying now that they have some experience?
We shall see.
I've noticed the timing of their initial flights coincided with the difference in the number of days between hatchings.
According to my estimate Wesley should fly either tonight or tomorrow. The wind may affect his decision tonight!

Oh, I love Shelties. We had two when I was growing up. Great dogs. My sister now has a collie and I have a border collie. So we've kept to the same family tree.

That never worked for me either. If you are on a PC and have Windows 7 or Vista, in the bottom right corner of the screen there is what looks like a magnifying glass with 100% right beside it. If you hover your mouse over it it will say "change zoom level". Click on that and adjust up to 125%.

Right click and see if you have zoom.

I don't have a % thingy on the bottom of my screen and the (+) (-) thing doesn't work for me either. Unless I'm on Chrome.

I'm going to start watching more when it gets darker. I just hope I can stay awake for awhile, after the burglary last night. I really got no sleep from 3am on. We were out helping the police look for kids running around the neighborhood, after they broke into our truck, and I'm sure some other vehicles around here.

I wanted to share the art work from my 6 year-old great nephew. He calls this, "Connecting circles of primary colors." That is how he described it and my brother (his grandpa) put it up for sale on ebay and of course soft hearted great aunt bought it. He was so surprised that someone placed a bet on it and was more surprised when I went to pick up my purchase. He is so precious and so is his art work.

I was telling a friend about this owl site and she shared a story - and a couple pictures - of an owl that sat outside her patio door for a couple days. It seemed fascinated with her cat. Judging by the amount of down on the owlet, I'm sure it was young and was probably between first fledge and first real flight. I think it's a great horned owl, but not sure. Cute though!
