       While I was watching the video, I wrote two poems. (Well, I call them poems anyway.)
       Poemupon the Occasion of Wesley's Second Refusal to Launch
       One little owlet sitting on a ledge.
       Along comes another owl and says, "Let's fledge!"
       So they flew to the jungle gym not far away.
        Out flips the third owl and save "Let's play!
       So they jumped and they hopped on the trampowline Till Wesley stuck his head out and cried, "That's mean!
       I'm still in the box and you're teasing me!
       I'll come out when I'm ready; just wait and see.
       And when I do, I'll branch like the baddest owl around.
       But right now I'm staying home, fluffy in my down.

Poemupon Wesley's Expedition into the Morning Air
       One little owlet peeping out of the box
       Sets a foot on the porch and my, how it rocks!
       Sets out another foot and hops to the perch,
       Catches his balance when he feels it lurch.
       Feels the air in his feathers, hears the mice on the ground,
       Watches his dutchmates, tries to turn around,
       Is the last one in as they all go home to bed.
       He was a hero for a minute, now he's just a sleepy head.

                                         There is some speculation about all 4 being back in. Possibly one (Maxie? Patti?) has decided to spend the day with M&M in the trees. We're waiting for the owls to move away from the camera so we can see who's there.
                                         I didn't see it all so don't know. I'm just reporting what the live cammoderators are saying. They think only 3 in, but aren't sure either. Folks here seem to think all 4 have returned to the box.

So, for those of you who saw Wes step out or have looked at the pictures: this owl is HUGE, right? We knews/he was tall but I was really surprised at the size.

He stretch full out first thing too. Today, 06:40:10 - Flag - Like - Reply Janet no wonder, being cramped in there so long. LOL Max and Pat did LOTS of stretching on their debuts. Pat still seems to stretch bunches Today, 06:43:21 - Flag - Like - Reply

Ugh! vSo if I had not decided to do my chores first this AM I would have seen Wesley's Debut 😃

Owlosaurus That's what I do to. I learned early on that if I was on the chat I missed the action but if I stared at the picture I got too far behind in the chat. If you have Google Chrome you can open two tabs in one window, resize it to 1/2 page, then just drag one of the tabs out to your desktop and it will automatically open a new window. Very quick! A few weeks ago when we had multiple cameras going at hight. I would have 3 or even 4 windows open

                           If you use google chrome they have some tools that allow you to watch 2 screens. I can now watch the owls and read the chat without missing out. It was very easy to download chrome (I did it on a 9 year old computer) the extensions were also easy to install. Once I set it up it is easy to do I think it takes about 3 clicks to get me up and running in 2 screens

                           We might have a nomenclature problem. I'm not sure anymore what "out" means. If it's just plain out of the box, then it was 8:20, 8:21, 8:24, according to the tape. If it's flying off, then it was 8:20, 8:21, 8:30. (Although the box says two 8:21s because the first was closer to 8:21 than 8:20).

Time for the daily summary of the night's events, to be collected by our friend Latrippi and included in the Molly wiki a eated by some wonderful volunteers from this chat room. If you would like to add your favorite moment from the night to this summary, please feel free to reply below. The summary is posted at http://mollyowl.pbworks.com/Timeline . To catch up on past events, be sure to check this out!
At 5:11am PDT, with one owlet in the box and 3 out, the owlet in the box tentatively stepped out and sat on the perchattached to the house. He stretched his wings and teetered on the perch as if unsure of his grip. While on the perch, the three that were out slipped back into the box behind him, and at 5:16 the one on the perch stepped back in, too. Moments later, the "blue box" confirmed it was Wesley who had stepped out for his very first time. Go Wesley!

Hi Merritt. You do any awesome job with summary and links list every morning. I was watching this morning when Wesley stepped out and only saw 2 come back and slip to the box behind Wes on the perch. There was some debate just before that over how many were in the box when Wes stepped

So, I woke up, turned the computer on next to the bed, and looked at it groggily...My brain said: "Huh, that looks like Wesley.", and I went back to sleep.
About twenty minutes later, I really woke up, and my brain said "Holy Cow, was that Wesley???!!!"
So, MODs, what's your opinion? Officially, did I see himfledge or not? I await your verdict.

       Please be carefull, used to feed mine and they found their way into attic, took roof felt off for their nest and then chewed through the electric wiring which was obviously in their way. Caught them eventually with humane traps and took them 5 miles to a wooded area away from housing. I really miss

Thought I'd check on Wesley this morning before I got started and see he did come out briefly. Thanks so much for those who waited and saw this to let all us

When I first log on this morning, there was disagreement over whether there was 1 or 2 in the box. Saw Wes come out, 2 go in, the Wes go back in. So now we

Blue box now says all 4 are in the box and that Wes was the last to go in. Click on the attached if you want to see a copy of the blue box was 97 on my garage thermometer yeterday. Unbelieveable for this time of year. I so wanted to see Wesley pop out for the first time. Sorry I missed him. Maybe tonight he will give us an earlier glimpse.

                    I feel like I've been rewarded for bad behavior! I get to work, log on to the see my owls, push papers around on my desk until it's fully dawn in San Marcos and there's no chance of any more treats or flying. Then I sneak peeks all day long. And this morning I got to see Wesley take those first steps out! So cool!!! OK, now I really am going to get some work done!

                          Wendy, hold down your CTRL key and hit the + key until the screen size changes enough to see the whole box. Then CTRL 0 (zero, not o) and the screen will return to normal size.

                    Good morning! I tuned in to see an owlet on the perch, then watched himstretch his wings and teeter on the perch a bit. I thought, "Is that Wesley? He seems a bit unsure of himself." And now the blue box confirms! Looks like somebody is still out there flying around, though, because they don't have a time listed for

                    He took a few timid steps out to the perch, looked at the top of the box like 'oh, what is up there'?, lost his balance, had to figure out how to turn around, and crawled back into the box. I think it was Wesley!

                     Good morning. Going to be a hot, steamy day here in the Northeast - temps into the 90's even here in the Western Maine mountains. If any of you were chatting last night (around 11:00 pmEDT/8:00 pmPDT) you may remember chat by Merritt about a missing post by Emily (I think) of a Japanese haiku she had submitted a little earlier in the evening. Chris may have found it in the PDF (???). Perhaps you could tell Merritt that the missing haiku was the second \textbf{posting Emily made}. \ \ \text{It was on the first time} \ \text{a few hours earlier and the first posting was still way down in the chat stream-maybe} \ \text{around 5 or 6}
                     PDT. With this confusing message, I'm away for the day - back this evening.

Sounds like the crowd yelling, "jump," "jump," "jump," "jump"...

Why do I keep thinking of the jumper in Lethal Weapom?

Someone said yesterday "I will always remember Wesley standing at the door."

Yes, months from now we will treasure these moments.

                           Imjust guessing pattison cuz she seems to have liked it up there all the time, and I thinkinkg Max just took his "catch" in to Wesley, so Pattison just flew off to get His own prey... All speculation based on their actions I have monitored the past few days.

                    Morning! Just checking in to see if Wes decided to get over his 'bashful flying' problem while I wasn't watching. But no...
                    I'm off to work now and may not be able to check in very often until tonight. Have a great day, owls and people!

                           Good morning. Sorry to hear about your sore throat. You might want to try raw garlic. But make sure you eat it with food or it can upset the stomach. I eat it every time I feel a sore throat coming on and it goes away. I haven't had a sore throat in many years. Garlic has good anti bacterial, anti viral & anti fungal properties.

Thank you TML...Been around since March (just hanging around in the shadows). Just haven't caught that little bit of info.

My cockatiel used to do that when she was napping, or sleeping. I guess they like to give their feet a break every now and then.

That happened to me to, but it seemed it was all Facebook related stuff, so I just closed exited Facebook. It seemed like it was forcing me to do my chat

Happy - but really to retain warmth. I had a blue heron in my back yard and he would fly in and stand in one spot. The sun, after a few minutes of being in the sun he would pull up a leg and stand for hours. I loved it. Bittersweet when he never came back.

This owl who's afraid of the dark

Get's up and is out with the lark She yawns through the day Makes eyes at a jay

Who's screech is worse than it's bark.

He said the IR camera shifts the frequency of sunlight into green. Since moonlight is reflected sunlight, the IR camera "sees" the moon as green.

                    Being half asleep there I kind of missed what went on whilst trying to take a screen shot!! Was the first one a parent with a treat or one of the babies? I saw the second one which was obviously Molly or McGee but hit the wrong button with the first one and opened a new tab - so I don't know if the first one went in the box or flew off!!

have tomorrow what we call our HOGs breakfast (Hungary Old Geezers). But I needed to wait a bit before I took my last insulin shot. I love to learn because I had teachers who taught me to read-a gift I appreciate every day. Thanks for doing what you do.                     Yeah, that's Austin's M.O. Besides, if you look at the blue box, there were four times an owlet went out and two times in, so that would make two owlets in the box when Austin leaped.
