Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to Like us on Facebook.

Ruth - the owl whisperer! Ruth - I would be so honored... I see I forgot a line.

Way down in the nest, the little birds rest, all through the night. With a wing on the left, and a wing on the right, the little birds sleep all through the night. The bright sun comes up, the dew falls away, Good Morning, Good Morning, the little birds say!!!

Of course, my as teens, my children didn't appreciate it as much as when they were wee ones!!!

Owlosaurus Did you get my emails last night? I'm going to gather them and send them to Donna by snail mail but will also send you a copy their email, like we discussed. I won't be able to get to that until tomorrow though I don't think. Maybe later this afternoon but it's turning out to be a much busier day than expected! Our friend's baby seems to have decided to be born this weekend (maybe today!) so I'm scrambling to get the baby quilt done today.

Owlbominable Snowman (a.k.a. JH) Good morning everyone. I'll be in the basement making a PDF of the chat from last night. We had a special guest drop in.

Eric Blehm stopped by to say thanks to all of you from the SPO site who have writn on him about the book. A short PDF containing his posting and some of our replies can be found in the PDF linked below, which covers 9:30-midnight. Eric's entry is timestamped 22:21:40 in the chat. (direct PDF link) - http://bit.ly/EricBlehmVisitsSPO

Owo, he was talking about Wesley hoping back and forth about 50 or so times, he appeared to have gotten a treat with some sugar in it. He also talked about the picnic in San Marcos tomorrow, not to worry the 6,000 number is from all the notices sent out, there probably will be about 150 or so there tomorrow at the San Marcos picnic. Today the temperature is in the high 60s tomorrow it will be 77 degrees and sunny, he also said someone is flying in from Florida for the picnic, is that you? Also that he heard of a get together in NC and one in Boston, MA., apparently Christopher Adams aka Rocketman, the illustrator is going to be there. Eric Bhelms trying to work his schedule out so he can appear at, I think the San Marcos picnic. I was half listening while doing something else. I hope I caught most of it. Also Chr Adams is selling limited editions of four of his illustrations of the ebook.

I knew I was forgetting something, Good Jessica, you caught it along with Barb and Cheryl! Austin is going to be broadcasting the picnic, with a laptop apparently he is getting through school, should be interesting, they even have someone bringing an extra power source! Which is great, always plan for problems to pop up, hopefully it will go smooth, sounds like they are going to have really great weather, we are in the 90's here in NE Florida. There are plenty of Moly get togethers planned.

If I got enough people to commit, I could even publish it myself with a quality self publishing company. But that is a last resort. I'd rather leave the publishing to a big publishing house. Have people include a good email address that will last a while (this could happen in two months, six months, or a year from now?) and/or a phone number or mailing address. Best, Eric

Good morning. Just caught up on some of the morning chat. I was up a couple times last night as our youngest had a little trouble sleeping. I had to be with her for about an hour at 4:30 or so and we listened to the robins waking up--and then back to my own bed for a bit of a nap.

I love the sound of Robins in the morning, Barb. And around here, theirs is the last song of the evening. When I lived out in the countryside near a woods, I loved listening to the evening song of Wood Thrushes - probably the most beautiful bird song I've ever heard. But the Robins are a close second! They're both in the thrush family.

Barn owls have such beautiful faces. I love how the facial disk looks like three feathers braided overlapping each other so tiny and perfectly laying against the head. I have been told that the nickname for the barn owl is "Monkey Face". Anyone ever head that one? Just thought I would share a little this morning. I hope all of you MODS have a wonderful Memorial Day weekend. Celebrate and remember the soldiers who have served, and all who still are.

I've heard people complain how cramped they are in there, but that's just a human point of view. The owl box still means safety and security to them during the day. They seem to find great comfort in squishing all together, and grooming each other. That owl box has been the right size for each stage in their life, and it still is. But not for much longer. . .

Think Wes was really hungry. Had been watching him sit on the perch to the right for a long time just hissing. Think it was Austin who flew in to join him and when delivery was made to Austin, Wes jumped for it. Don't think Austin was quite so hungry so let it go. Believe it is Austin who flew in with a rat.

like you got back problems (worn spine) and blocked leg arteries which put an end to air travel or long journeys. New Zealand was always on my "wish list" but now adopt the attitude of "what you aint had you don't miss" or at least try to.

Hi, we'd planned to do exactly this in the UK. My daughter is bedbound with severe ME and we of ten take holidays in this way. I've made owl cup cakes..... pellet biscuits..... and have a couple of sugar mice so far!

I think you bring whatever you want to eat and drink to the picnic (probably no "Happy Juice").

As an animal lover of every sort, this site is truly amazing- Have been HOOKED! I have been too shy about writing but the time is drawn' to a close. I feel as low as the regulars & even feel close to a lot of you. Please forgive me! Myshenst Merritt especially. Also Billin SD as that's where I reside. Do list on for owls in our yard every night. But, I feed the raccoons, skunks, Mockingbirds and whatever comes my way-stray cats. What's a girl to do? Hubby doesn't appreciate the mess but I lover's them all - even the mice, opossums & skunks. We live near an amazing lagoon so that that is where I will seek my solace. Looking forward to the picnic & hopefully meet all you MODS. My hubby told me I have owl fever. That's a new one. As for The Royals, -they rock!!!!!! Whh I could meet you all in person.

Morning Everyone!! Just signed the e-card - how we're supposed to sum up this experience in so few characters is beyond me but I've had a go LOL! ... only had a quick scroll through the basement and I see I missed a visit from Eric! ... if you're still lurking, it's really good to see you here, and thank you again for everything you're doing - really looking forward to the book - and the hardback version 😊😊

Isn't it amazing that a whole rabbit can fit inside?

Zesty- I wanted Web Inspector Adam to draw me a picture of an owl's insides showing how they fit a whole rabbit in there. 😊 I'm still waiting for it.
My theory is there's a tiny black hole at the center of an owl.

I like your theory! ever read "the little prince"? remember the drawing of the snake that swallowed an elephant? reminds me of the huge capacity these owlets have for eating

Great chart! Yeah, where do they fit the rabbits, and flat rats too! 😊 No wonder they stand up so tall, until the rodents are squished inside!

OK, all. I am off to bed, right after I make a PDF of our chat from this evening.

Below is a shot of Wesley from earlier tonight, flying down from the rooftop with what appears to be an additional set of wings. 🙄
Maybe our youngest owl really is speda!!

Have a great night, see you tomorrow.
