Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more Information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

Yes, he's been flying. He and Austin are hanging around the nest box still, just going from there to the kestrel box to the neighbors house and back. Max and Patti have been out hunting with Moly. We're expecting them to leave the box soon and then Austin and Wes will get the hunting lessons.

I've noticed that they are starting to squabble over who gets a treat, and wrestle for it. The one who wins usually flies into the box to eat it undisturbed. I would imagine that is the start of their separation from each other.

Barb, of course youre absolutely right, but (let's say I'm still sleepy, haven't really even gotten out of bed yet) reading that it sounded to me like no one was using the box's microphone to communicate, like placing an order. 😊 Oh well. I'm certain this is going to have sounded funnier in my head than I can communicate it myself. I apologize in advance and accept your groans. 😊 😊

Owlosaurus, OMB is the Quilters Message Board. www.quiltingboard.com. It is a community of quilters, just like this community of MODS, and just as awesome. In fact, that's where I heard about the owlbox. Check it out, but be warned, it is just as addictive. 😊 I'm strictly a nonprofessional quilter too. And yes, I Love Minkie! Isn't it so snuggly!!

Thank! I will check it out. My usual quilting forums on GardenWeb - a forum, though, and not a chat room. MUCH slower and discussions grouped under headings, with messages being added for days to a particular post. I'm new to this chatting stuff and didn't think I would like it, but I've certainly earned to love this site and the chatters here!!!

OMB is the same, and there is a place for non-quilting stuff (hence the owlbox). We show off our work, encourage each other, problemsolve, have swaps, etc. and just have fun. We have one person who raises miniature horses and has a cam in her where they stay so we can watch the mare and help notify her when labor starts, and watch the birth. "Mare Stare" LOL. There is a monthly doll quilt swap where you are assigned a partner and make a little quilt of your choosing for each other. It's a great way to experiment with new techniques, and the quilts are really cute.

Good Morning, Everyone and Everyow! from Florida!
Sorry I missed the picnic, but appreciate the photo, Cheryl. Your timing is excellent!

Today I'll be doing some gardening, when I'm not watching owls, and finishing a baby quilt. Yesterday during the picnic I moved my sewing machine into the office so I could watch, chat and sew all at the same time. What a multi-tasker! Hat

Burnee, Cheryl, Pat and others from UK - I would love to see your gardens! Maybe today I'll take a couple pictures of mine and post them: would love it if you would do the same.

I may post a couple of pics of the gardens I work in too - they are somewhat larger than mine - one in particular is a large country estate that I work at 3 days a week and has a rose garden, a topiary garden, walled garden, veg garden etc etc - always something to do at that one at year round!

Hi Nancy! The picnic went very well - there were a couple of 'gitches' with the streaming - largely due to batteries running out. I think - and also the sound wasn't too good at times - but other than that it was very entertaining viewing!! Largely due to a good turn out - 300 people I think - and a couple of very good hats - I'll try and find a picture of one of them - well worth seeing!!

Annie (in Illinois) The picnic went very well. There and on here too. The feedback was a bit hard to understand at times, but the hats of a few women were a "hoot" and kept you giggling. Someone had designed and had a pattern made of owl scenes, then made into a shirt for Carbs. It was cool. Their grandson Austin did a great job, considering they had to run off batteries I think there was between 200-300 ppl Today, 04:19:33 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by CherylOwen Nancy in Stow, OH

I looked on the Internet. No significant earthquakes. Wind from the west but a chance of fire hazard later. I do not know why the owls are being strange. Maybe all the excitement yesterday. Maybe the coyotes are roaring.

Looked at the comments on the PDF of the chat during the picnic. Sorry I missed it! Anyone know how many people were there today?
James - Shrunk the 2 PDFs on the wiki for you. 😊

Thanks, all! That was a neat article, Mary Carroll! Dood Fink - It was kind of odd seeing the Snowy Owl in that setting, and going to the African Savanna exhibit and seeing it surrounded by Rhododendron bushes, and moss growing on the African Village huts, but they still do a good job there. My daughter and I got to feed some giraffes and the meerkats were cute. 😊

I believe the only reason that owl is in the zoo is because it was injured and can't live in the wild. So, I think it is getting the best possible care. They are pretty good about that at this zoo. There are two bald eagles there that are also unable to be released for the same reason.
