Natalie Since it's a slow moment, I thought you might like to see some photos of the co-operavtive farmwe belong to, just down the street from us . (It's supposed to be the oldest continuously working farm in the country.) Going there is each week is the highlight of my summer--you can pick all the flowers you want, as well as

Speculation by the monitors on the 'official' dhat is that the battery is dead on Austin's camera. Carlos can't switch camera feeds from the park so unless he has some kind of teleporter it probably won't change until he gets back. No confirmation on that though.

(You all can hint, hint as much as you want but there's no one at the Royal house to make the switch! 🙂 🙂 Today, 15:04:35 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🥼 Cheryl Owen

Um, I do believe one of the PCs that they use to broadcast with is in their possession. Very doubtful they can change anything until they get back, juice or not.  ${}^{\textcircled{}}$

Pretty sure that's why they shut down before leaving also. Today, 15:09:25 - Flag - Like - Reply

I meant an actual Trek-style teleporter so he could send Austin back with the equipment to make the switch. He's pretty clever and obviously has some deep pockets but this one is beyond even him!

	l knov away	hole recordings have been marvellous, but I think it's a shame that Carlos didn't read from this chat room. v I'm an oldie, but I just found the other chat room too fast, and difficult to keep up with who was answering who, whereas in here, as long as you are not for too long, you can usually find who you want to speak to. Almost without exception people are so friendly in here and if anyone from this board should to UK would love to see you.

Sugapea I'm Patty from the San Francisco Bay Area. My husband promised me a Barn Owl Box and this experience has taught me so much on the subject. My intuition tells me that if another Momma Owl makes a home in Carlos' box... say in 2-Year time... that he and Donna might film it once again. Perhaps they'll charge a fee...or not. But, I can't believe this is the last time...that this will never happen again. What we have seen and shared is wonderful...far too powerful and almost sacred...it must be experenced by many more people.

I went to that site just a few minutes after it happened yesterday. Really tragic. Can't stop thinking about it and how lucky, lucky, lucky our owls have been on this site. The beautiful Tawny Owls have now lost 2 babes and are down to just 2 left. They've been plaqued with short food supplies, bugs in the nest and other hardships. It's hard to watch but it certainly is reality. Nature is hard and sometimes cruel. If we were watching a camin a gopher nest think of the sadness we would have seen!

Jessica I have a question of old: I tuned in just when the owlets were very fuzzy-like chicks. (Pre Mohawk LOL) I watched "gee-...fun" Saw were Wes was trampled near death as a hatchling. Do you think that contr. to his hesitance? Is so, hopefully more fear than damage. Now I worry about his out of box survival... What do you think? Today, 09:13:00 - Flag - Like - Reply

Owlosaurus M

Jessica, I've been watching since the beginning and think the 'trampled near death' was an extreme overreaction by some watchers who were expecting the youngest owl not to survive. I think the differences we see in Wes are simply due to the fact that he's a full 7 days younger than the oldest and 7 days is a long, long time in 'owl years'. They develop so quickly! Plus, the youngest in any clutch or litter is almost always the smallest and the weakest. That's why we call them the 'runt of the litter'. But they often catch up and I think we can easily see that Wes has grown up; he's the same size as the others.

I'll preface this post to say that I am not making fun or light of the oil spill situation in the Gulf. We all know that it may be or is one the biggest environmental disasters ever in the U.S. and will be affecting the environment, the economy and the livelihood of those in Louisiana, the whole Gulf Coast and, perhaps the East Coast as well. My post is simply poking fun at myself for misreading a headline in our paper today. This was an AP story and probably appeared in your papers as well. It is a sign that I really have MOD when I readthe headline as -"OWL Spill Cam Becomes Internet Sensation" "Oil Spill Cam Becomes Internet Sensation"

Too funny...! I had a similar experience when, after a month of MOD and watching owlets, I actually tuned in to a bit of TV...the Food Network. A chef was hosting a gourmet picnic and it showed his barbeque full of fancy charcoal...instead of square briquettes - the charcoal was larger... and oval... and sort of puffy...well, you can probably guess what I thought of immediately...horked up owl pellets... I lost interest in the show...!

Cheryl Owen - Custom Mugs that will ship to UK

Cheryl, there's an internet site that will imprint any picture on a mug. The mug with photo is just $15. I don't know what shipping to the UK would be but I'm certain it all comes out to much less than $50. You might want to check it out. I'mgoing to post the website address as a reply to this in case the site spambot is triggered by the address. The site is Cafepress(dot)com. Look for 'personalized mugs'.

From a superficial vantage point, it seems that while owls can hunt by echolocation using their face, that hunting by the light of the full moon also helps. What's in the pantry ...?

Owlbominable Snowman (a.k.a. JH)

It's not really echo location, because owls make no sound with which they then listen for the echo. That would be bats. The owls do however listen for their prey and the shape of their faces helps funnel sound from their prey into their ears. Here is a great video which explains it all.

Just a note/question for those of you having problems Zooming the screen on your web browser. Is your web browser up to date?

All current browsers will zoom the page. Many old browsers will not. If your web browser is old enough to not support zooming, then you really ought to consider updating it!

There are security issues involved if you don't. Plus, new shiny browsers make surfing the web a breeze. 🙂

My favorite - Google Chrome. http://www.google.com/chrome Easy installation, easy transfer of all your old settings, works beautifully with this site, is very reliable and stable. Natalie, I am a long, long time Firefox user, supporter, and advocate. I still am. I have however changed my recommendation to those who are less tech savvy. I now recommend Chrome for those folks because it is very hands off. It takes care of itself and seems to be the safesest bet for someone coming from IE 6 or 7.

I still use FF for all my website design/development work. It's great having both options. 🙂 Today, 07:57:08 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🌽 Natalie

When I finally left at 3:30 this morning (Central time), an owlet with the huge treat was still on the platform. Does anyone know what it was, and did the owlet finish it or take it inside the owl box. I just couldn't stay up ALL night to see. Today, 07:35:04 - Flag - Like - Reply

Okay group - the picnic ... where is it aired - perhaps RIGHT on here? at sportsman's? or will we have to tune into U-stream live? ... (hope not - I'm not real comfortable there). I took notes yesterday morn. with Carlos - but reviewing now - he didn't cover "where" we outside viewers are to be participating. While someone provides an answer, 111 go and grab my vit tles ... some fried chicken in a basket, my dispenser of kool-aid, perhaps some chocolate brownies ... Today, 07:25:56 - Flag - Like - Reply

It will be right here. Just up above, like always.

From what Carlos said, the owlbox feed will be turned off while they are out at the picnic. (maybe only one?) They only have so many PCs and recording/broadcasting devices. 🙂 Today, 07:28:55 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by 🚱 Ruth ~ from MN 🚈 Natalie

I'm guessing here, as we normally see what they're seeing - I know what you mean about the other site - I ve tried a couple of times but I can't keep up and there doesn't seem to be any way of scrolling back through the chat to see whats going on! The site reduces both the size and resolution of the images when you add it as an avatar. Here is a larger (image I hope). It's not really like a netsuke because there is no figural component. It appears to me to be purely decorative.

Also I joined the UK Barn Owl Trust the other day and all my stuff has just turned up - two beautiful posters - one is a photo of 4 owlets in varying stages of fluffiness - probably what these were like about 2 weeks ago, and another is a print of a painting of 2 adult barn ows - I will be getting frames for them this weekend! also lots of info, pens, pencils, notepads - a paper barn owl model to make and a couple of barn owl pins - one of which is already on my handbag! maurmcc, what part of delaware are you from? We used to vacation annually at Bethany Beach. Have been back every once in a while in the last 10 years but not for at least 3 now. Was a lot of fun as a kid to go there.

Later I had a cousin in Wilmington but we didn't have a chance to visit before he moved north. Would love to go visit the DuPont/Winterthur museum there.

I'm in Bear - yes; BEAR, Delaware - about 10 mins. south of Wilmington - Bethany is only a few hours away - so nice there. Cost of living here is great and it's the home of tax-free shopping! Today, 06:04:19 - Flag - Like - Reply
