Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more Information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

The pictures from last night are wonderful. The gender comparison is interesting. Looks like Max is Maxine.

Austin must be putting up pictures now because they are appearing. There are quite a few and wow, so good!! They are calling the owl named Austin a male, and Max a female. It is pretty evident in one of the pics and something I've said for awhile. Oh, the pictures are so good!!

So we've got fledging which has to do with feathers and branching which has to do with leaving the box and hopping around. Is there a naturalist name for being gone from the box during the day like Max has done?

Annie, let me know how those storms are, everything in your state eventually travels here to Ohio. Are you by the lake shore like me or further south? Right now it is in the 80s with a 70% chance of thunderstorms. Let me know how bad it is, so I can plan my outdoor activities. Thanks.

Thanks to everybody who replied to my plaintive request for detailed stats. I left some individual replies to people. I have learned my lesson: From now on I will log on and collect whatever stats there are before the last owl is back in the box. So here they are before I put them on the wiki:
May30/31. Total treats: 5. Branching stats: First owl out at 8:24p. Second out at 8:24p. Third out at 8:28p. Fourth out at 10:45p. Three in by 5:21a. It's official: Max has left the building. But he's roosting close by in the palm tree with Max and Molly.

Still aggravating, and they will continue to be so for about a week. I broke down and counted the whelps this am. Only 17, but that's at least 16 more than tolerable. The worst two are on my toes. One on the little guy, far right. Almost impossible to wear shoes without rubbing that one. Another is under the joint of my big toe. Joy, joy!

Hi, Alyce,
Carlos said he thought the owls would all be gone within the next two weeks, and then he and Donna are taking a much deserved vacation 😊
Owls do mate for life. Check out some of the links for Barn Owls (e.g. the Barn Owl Trust). Also, if there is enough food to catch, a double clutch can happen - that is, another brood can occur.

right before my son graduated high school I told him I've spent his life teaching him about life in hopes that he would be a good person with strong values and morals and convictions.... Now it was my turn to see just how good of a job I did in doing that....he spent his life learning from example and trial and error.... its all a part of life and we as parents hope we have done the best job we could have... so with that in the boxing Molly and McGees have taught Max well and Max knows its time to move on with his life and start his own soon... although we will not be seeing him/her in the hick may be/she will still stop by during the night hours for us to enjoy until Wesley moves on

A long time ago... Carlos said that if there was enough food, that owls been known to start laying more eggs... while the 1st bunch is still around. I hope Molly enjoys summer and hangs out with her family... instead of sitting in the box when the weather gets really hot.

But if your question is "when all activity with this owl box will end" refers to watching the camera, it will end when all the owlets leave and will not be happening again online. However, this web site (and probably the others) WILL stay available which I presume means chat will be active. Yay!

Oops, my son distracted me and I hit post before I meant to! I was going to say I love the States!! I've been to Florida several times doing the usual Disney Stuff and stayed in Miami for a few days- now my kids are a bit older I'd like to explore some of the other bits - I've also been to San Diego several times and Las Vegas (crazy place LOL) and Atlanta - and a very brief stop near New York. My husband has never been to the states so I'm hoping to get back out there again in the next couple of years with him

Legends of the owl are quite amusing. In the Arctic North a little girl who was so scared she flew straight into a wall. It flattened her face and beak. Thus was borne the owl. 12th century English owls were not allowed out during the day because one stole a rose. Menominee (American Indian) owls were not smooth talkers and lost a talking contest to a rabbit who received his choice of day or night. The rabbit chose day so the loser went the night. Pish owls are just too beautiful. If they come out during the day they are mobbed by other jealous birds.

(Chris, I just answered you in the other chat. Not that I actually have the answer! 😊)

thanks! They are not focusing on the owls right now so it is hard to get a straight answer as to what has happened from them. Of course, if I had been paying more attention and had kept my eyes focused on the box all night, I would probably know so I can't blame them. 😊

I thought 2 were in, then Sumpth Big arrived and 1 flew out. Which leaves 1 still inside. I think that's right. But yes, the discussion is drifting pretty far afield in there!

What happened to OB2? Down, or off line on purpose?

Several of us questioned that statement early on. The apparent consensus from informed folks in the field is that it was simply bad info, which has been repeated in quite a few places.

Carlos said today that the owlets will soon be leaving to go to college to study Hunting and Owl Management. 😊 It's kinda looking like Max will soon have his Phd. meanwhile the others will be getting kicked out of the house for not studying at all.

Clearly, Wes is studying philosophy and poetry. Tonight, he's reading Keats!

HAA! Latrippi, you hit the nail on the head. One of my daughters has a 29 yr. old boyfriend who is going for his Phd in Philophy AND poetry. No kidding! And he hasn't left the nest yet, either! 😊

Have you guys seen the Japanese barn owl clips on youtube? Someone must have one as a pet - you can see the relative size of the owl - <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=frd4D-Zp4J8&feature=related>

Interesting. Now why aren't people fussing about that? Keeping an owl away from it's natural habitat, huh? 😊

Something sounds wrong: either that, or Wes is having a temper tantrum.

Nothing wrong. Just normal every night squawking. It comes and goes, but mostly stays with us. It gets turned up a notch when he hears one of the adults nearby.

Stillno Downy-hat Lady? Kind of getting me 'down' - it was so, so...reminiscent of the carefree, pre-flyaway days of their youth!
