Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

I've heard various types and levels of "hissing" for a long time - some describe it as like "taking the last sip from a cup through a straw". I've also noticed that the hissing sounds are made when they inhale. Is this common to birds all birds when they hiss, tweet, twitter, sing, etc. Most mammals talk, bark, whiny, meow, etc. when they exhale.

Thank you everyone. Fusible web is a godsend when doing these. Each hummingbird had as many as 14 different pieces of fabric. and I machine stitch around each piece when it's done. Haven't gotten the knack of free-motion quilting down yet - but working on it. It sometimes takes me longer to pick out the borders than it does the rest. I like to use Moda marbles and batiks to add color contrast. Hmm- on my "to do" list - an owl wall hanging right from scratch !!! "I think I can... I think I can..."

I took a Jenny Hanks class last weekend. One of the tips the teacher gave us, that really "stirred the pot" was to pick the border first! I'd never heard that. When I left to play at Mass, the ladies that had attended the class the day before were sitting in front (oustide) and were talking about that VERY thing! Must have been a big deal. Finding the right border... And thanks for the tip on fusible web. I take tips everywhere I can get them! I'm new to free motion too, but you have to start somewhere. 😊

I repeat this whining worry every night it seems---I hope Molly and McGee give the two younger owls as much attention as they need to become independent. They are certainly behind the others by quite a bit, which is fine if they get their fair share of the parental attention required for survival. I am sure they know what they are doing, but I obviously don't really trust them to do it without my help!!! 😊 I really do hope Carlos stays around to make sure all is well!!!

 Watching owlets from our box
 Keeping vigil with words and clocks
 It is they that are clear and we that stay near

 They do what they do and we turn on to
 The night and the flight
 Sharing owl delight

 As I bid you goodnight
 TI tomorrow again
 We will watch from our box
 See you then, see you then.

 I've heard the annoying, loud ads in the other chat room and that's bad enough. But, on the transferit.com site it is deafening and I probably will not go back to the site - even if I do want a mousepad . That's worse than any TV ad I've ever seen and those blast it deafeningly loud sometimes.

We need to quit putting human behavior such as "spoiling Wes" or "enabling", etc... These owls are instinctively doing what they need to do. They don't think in those terms. We need to trust their instinct and stay back and enjoy the show. (Ok...off my soapbox now.) 😊

These are owls. Raptors. Fierce predators. We've seen Wes come out of the box and flap around so we know he's not terrified or injured. He's the biggest owl in the box - obvious when you see him outside on the perch and confirmed by Carlos. He's healthy. Watch Austin fly and you'll see he isn't very good at it yet either.

I hope I'm right in my personal feeling that Wesley will be fine and do what owlets are supposed to do - perhaps just not as quickly as his siblings. He doesn't seem to be exhibiting any signs of lack of food - plenty is brought into the box still, with snacks left over. He's not unlike the "runt" of any litter of canines, felines, etc. The # of days given for reaching various stages is an average. Put in terms of human development - some babies roll over, sit up, walk, etc. much sooner than other babies. I think all will be well.

He's the youngest. Everone worried about him at the beginning because he was so tiny, not realizing that his maturation is behind everyone else. Molly isn't with them in the box anymore. Her influence is no longer present. But that is a natural chain of events. He's healthy, has other sibs to encourage him, and he will be on his way in no time. Then we won't have any owls to watch.

Q: How many people does it take to put a fallen baby robin back in it's nest?
A: Six. One to pull the high tree branch down to meet the e extension ladder, three to hold up said ladder, one wiry teenage boy to climb up, and one to cheer us on! Great teamwork in my neighborhood tonight! Oh, and we fed it bits of a nightcrawler before we put her back, since it was nearing nightfall, and we wanted to give it strength to make it till morning, when mom and dad could take over feeding it.

Oh, cool shot on OB2! Was just thinking... How many other people would put their lives on hold the way Carlos & Donna have done, for us? I mean, they could just turn off their cameras and take of f in their RV like they were planning to do a month or so ago. Would I be able to be that noble & giving? Just outstanding! Gorgeous, Karen. So bright and cheery. I don't have a lot of brights in my fabric stash (at least 200 yards combining my sister's and mine) and I don't combine brights very well - even when I try. Thanks for sharing. This must have been the first time the topic of "quilts" has come up in the chat room?? The talent and creativity of people here is just awesome!!

Beautiful quilts, Karen. I looked at your facebook photos too. I have made a few small quilts. But, currently I'm crocheting and using "knifty knitter" booms, making blankets and hats for babies and children at a couple of our local hospitals. If you want to see photos or information you can check out "Blankets for Babies" on facebook.

I remember the very first time I visited this site on 3/22 right after Maxie hatched. I thought it was a still picture because Molly was not moving and it looked too perfect to be real. Then she turned her head and looked right at the camera lens. I gasped and was instantly smitten. So beautiful! I love the night time antics, but I'll miss the golden colors of the day shots the most I think.

Mitakuye Oyasin is a Lakota Sioux prayer. The phrase translates as "all my relations." It is a prayer of oneness and harmony with all forms of life: other people, animals, birds, insects, trees and plants, and even rocks.

Aho Mitakuye Oyasin... All my relatibns. I honor you in this circle of life with me today. I am grateful for this opportunity to acknowledge you in this prayer....

To the Creator, for the ultimate gift of life, I thank you.

To the mineral nation that has built and maintained my bones and all foundations of life experience, I thank you. To the plant nation that sustains my organs and body and gives me healing herbs for sickness, I thank you. To the animal nation that feeds me from your own flesh and offers your loyal companionship in this walk of life, I thank you. To the human nation that shares my path as a soul upon the sacred wheel of Earthly life, I thank you.

To the Spirit nation that guides me invisibly through the ups and downs of life and for carrying the torch of light through the Ages. I thank you. To the Four Winds of Change and Growth, I thank you. You are all my relations, my relatives, without whom I would not live. We are in the circle of life together, co-existing, co-dependent, co-creating our destiny. One, not more important than the other. One nation evolving from the other and yet each dependent upon the one above and the one below. All of us a part of the Great Mystery. Thank you for this Life.

A brief post by Cheyenne below ment ioned mitakuye' oyasin and the use of owl feathers in ceremonies. I wasn't familiar with the term, so a quick Wkipdia search http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mitakuye_Oyasin. I think an owl would be pleased to have its feather used in such a moving ceremony.

Can any one tell me who this is lying down? Anyone? Is he OK? Should I be alarmed? What's wrong with him? Is he eating? Can't he support his own weight? Is he suffering from heat exhaustion? How will he be able to, you know, do his business if he can't walk? Will his siblings kick him out of the box? Do you think he is mentally capable of catching his own food if mommy shuns him? Can't someone install a whirpool so he can exercise without needing to risk falling off the perch? Has anyone ever seen him blink? Maybe he's you know... What's that black dot in the sky? 😞😞😞😞

Snowman, Carlos said earlier that he is dying. But he also reiterated his policy of not interfering with nature's course. He surmises that this owl, and perhaps all the owlets, have consumed rodents which had eaten poisoned bait. He has revised all his predictions as to when the nest may be empty to perhaps never.

No, I don't quilt. Thought of sewing at one time - in order to work on parachutes - but gave up on that thought and moved on to photography

However, looking at the photo below, I think I'd have to design my first elliptical wing parachute after an owl's wing, if I ever did take that up again.

When my husband was in Saudi in 1991, a letter addressed to Any Soldier came to his camp. It was addressed from our hometown, so the letter was given to him. I was able to make contact with the girl and invite her to his homecoming party. She was the insurance clerk there. Then when that same son was in high school, we ran into her at a football game. She was dating a teacher there.

Memorial Day - a time to remember our loved ones, those who serve and those who gave their all for us. One group who remembers every day is the Bangor (ME) Troop Greeters. They have greeted every transport plane that has landed in Bangor since 2003 - over 5900 flights and 1,000,000 service men and women. They greet them with a hug, a handshake and free use of a cell phone to call home. When these folks are notified of an incoming flight, they often get up in the middle of the night and get to the airport in all kinds of weather. Many are veterans themselves, many are in their 70's and 80's (one lady who volunteers had not driven at night for years). PBS did a documentary about them last year. For those who think patriotism is declining - don't tell these folks that <http://www.thememtroopgreeters.com>

It was very special and DH called me and said it was unexpected and very moving and as you might expect most of these guys aren't easily moved to emotion.....

How sad we did not honor the homecoming of those who paid the ultimate sacrifice for our freedom by seeing them return home. Clearly their families never were nor ever would be in the camera's eye. The reasons for the ban on coverage were as transparent as polished glass.

Yes I believe that is correct.....as well as the deceased being flown directly to Dover versus Bangor.....it is definitely still a point of entry (I asked DH to be sure and we had friends return through Bangor back in January 2010 so he tells me). It is such a blessing on this country that many people are still so willing to serve and acknowledge those strangers (except via service in our armed forces) returning home again.
Today, 18:51:27 - Flag - Like - Reply

Mary Carroll, the coverage historically has never been of grieving families. The coverage has been to welcome our war dead home, just as we welcome the living home as they joyfully depart.

Lynda, Great to see someone broadcasting this, coming from a very military town, military neighborhood and a military family we always greet our fallen and our returning. We honor them in all that they have done and sacrificed, anyone who thinks patriotism is dead in America is spreading more progressive liberal lies. Reality is the truth and that is the fact of life in America. There is a quiet uprising that is going to rise up in November and all the other elections. We the people are fed up with untruths in the mass media. Again these are just my thoughts and what I see.

Yes, normally I just wear what I have on and don't bother to change my clothing 😊

I use a 12" cast iron pot, put some oil or fat in the bottom and then layer the following to make glorified "Toi dinners"
Sliced or quartered potatoes (always on the bottom)
Sliced onion
sliced mushrooms carrot chunks
some sort of cooked meat on top (this last time I had 1.5 hot dogs I cut up and put three big portabello mushrooms there as well).
season all to taste or wait until served and add what you like.
It all cooks in about 15min on a really hot charcoal fire--put a ring of briquets around the top of the lid.

Thanks, Karen. - Denise - a good idea from Karen. Most areas also have a quilters group and many of the quilters have some expertise in quilt restoration. Your pattern sounds like a "Sunbonnet Sue" pattern with the girl appliqued onto each base square. Advise I always give to people who are storing quilts - always roll them (vs. folding) to save wear lines at the folds. Also, I don't store quilts in plastic bags (which can trap moisture) preferring to roll and store in old pillow cases (one on each end) or similar bags that I have made.

Mike, thank you ever so much for sharing that video. I've seen it before and it still touches my heart. My husband was in the service during the late sixties and I remember those days him coming home. It's something that will be in my heart forever. God Bless our military and all their families. God Bless America and of course our little OWs.

Yes, we went to Fort Bragg and watched the cargo plane land with my son-in-law who had been in Afghanistan. I'll never forget it. Never.

I have seen this before and cried again when I watched it now. It is so touching and a very proud moment when loved ones return from battle. God Bless Them All.

Thank you, my late husband spent 20 years and flew helicopters in Viet Nam. I think sometimes we don't appreciate our Military as much as we should. Thank You again!!

OK - just a couple. The first is a Log Cabin block design using all "pine bough/pine cone" themed fabrics. Currently only the top is finished and has to be "layered" together. The second is one of the quilts I made for my sister's grown children after she passed away. I wanted to use as many different fabrics of hers that I could and they all have a "scrappy" look. I made a quilt for each of them (all different) with matching pillows as memory quilts.

I love your project using your sister's fabric for her children's quilts. Very touching. I'm sure it meant a great deal to them. You do beautiful work!
