Just can't stay away 😊. You folks are TOO funny. I was scrolling down a short way and "When are they going to turn the inside camera on?" - not too far up from that "We need the outside camera so we can see what's going on out there." -- Can't please us, huh?? 😊 OK, I agree, it WOULD be nice to have the wider angle view of OB 2 on during the day as well 😊

Better than the Terminex - but I will remember what it's like waking through mounds of the slimy goose droppings most of the summer when we lived at the dam. Beautiful birds for sure, but we and the summer cabin owners had some serious concerns about that mess on the lawn, small swim beach and the water. Each goose drops about 7 lbs of it a day and 25 + geese makes a real MESS - especially at for eating grass and apples that dropped from 2 apple trees!!!

farcats right? we have several. This one was ready to "blow" ... lurking around her deck- and lo and behold, she couldn't get too far from the hand that feeds her - and birthed by the step in the flowers. ... and as for "Winnie" ... My husband was in veggie garden - getting to be dusk - and he hears yelping - thought it was our dog. NOOOOO it was a coyote chasing OUR dog across the field. He called for her and she took that as the opportunity to chase the coyote HERSELF. oh my ... fear factor. She returned with tail between her legs and he ran to shed for dirt bike - and chased it back down to river. ... went back later with gun -hoping he fired some rounds in the air. ... we will need to gather the coyote hunters to our area. 😊 ...

Just thought I would share yesterday's picture of my mama squirrel. She came for food 3 times yesterday. I believe she has been really busy with her babies and hasn't been able to get away as often. I fed her well and gave her a small cob of corn to take with her. She has learned where to peek for food. Got on my window sill one morning 😊

LOL, gave up on feeders last year... I just put seed out under that pine tree from time to time - especially after a good snow. That's why I am well known by the neighborhood wildlife. Malards, all sorts of birds, squirrels AND even bunnies stop by from time to time! 😊 And I do have a finch feeder and hummingbird feeder outside my living room window, hoping to see some hummers this year! RECIPE FOR PRESERVING OWLETS - By Storymom
Take 1 large field, 4 adorable baby owls, several trees, a cool brook, a large quantity of field mice and a pinch of pebbles. Mix the owlets and trees together and stir frequently. Pour the brook over the pebbles. Sprinkle the field with flowers, various grasses and the field mice. Fill the trees with a gentle summer breeze. Spread over a deep blue sky and bake in the summer sun. When done, set away safely in a cozy owl box or tree stump. Wrap securely in awe and store in the hearts of everyone.

Don't know if anyone was listening last night but Carlos and Eric were on talking about the hard cover book. Eric has had enough interest for him to take the plunge and become a publisher! So by this weekend (or shortly thereafter) he hopes to have a paypal account set up for pre-orders to help him defray the cost upfront!! All pre-order books will be autographed by Eric and Carlos for sure and possibly Donna, Chris and Austin.

In addition, people were asking about getting on Oprah! They both said they would be glad to do that but 'we - the community' needed to put in the requests. So just thought I would pass that along!

Good morning everyone from OH - I'm so happy to see two little owlets still in the box 😊 ! I missed the "show" last night - I slept straight through from 8:30 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. ! Too much late night owl gazing recently...I understand Wesley Anne might have laryngitis from 😞 ... or was it more like 😞 ...!

For those who missed it last night "Eric, Chris and Carlos will be on here at 10am PDT this coming Sunday morning". June 6 to clarify, as it was clarified last night 😊 Sure there are others that captured more details, but I did hear Eric say the HE is putting up the money to Publish Hardcover books AFTER the Ebook is delivered to all. That is at least 2 weeks AFTER all owls fledged. And the hardcover book will have some additional info and such since the Ebook is a CHlds book. CHECK THIS WEEKEND TO PRE-ORDER HARDCOVER BOOKS. I believe I heard that we need to go to Eric's website.....www.ericblhm.com..... Would truly appreciate anyone correcting the errors I have made here, or adding additional info. 😊 I know there are many others on here that are more on the ball than I am!

Nah, I can get overly emotional about anything. LOL I'm one of those people who cry over commercials. The owls just give me an excuse to let it out. And I love, love, LOVE words - poetry gives me a chance to use them in more powerful ways that seem silly in normal conversation.

The non-profit organization I work for runs an accredited high school for students who have used up every chance at regular county schools. Either kicked out or failing or, in some cases, appointed by the courts to attend. Serious disciplinary and attitude problems when they come to us. I don't work for that particular program here, but we all see the kids every day and get involved in their successes and struggles. Last week we had graduation - not CEOs but regular diploma earners that they have earned through the program. Wow, right? Each graduate has to stand up and say a few words to the assembled group, which includes their parents. Talk about emotional! Some people can sit through it dry-eyed, but I cried through the whole thing. I'm tearing up now just thinking about it. Yeah, I have an emotional well, but it's not very deep! LOL

They have been gracious hosts and have been at his nearly 24/7 for nearly 4 months. For much of this time they have been in the public eye - giving talks at schools, interviews, online updates from inside their home and had online cameras posted in their yard. They DO deserve a vacation and I hope they might be able to do that "in cognito".

I've been sad to see a few (very few!) people criticizing Carlos for selling items and for making money off of the owls in general. But he hasn't sold anything until people asked for it. He's said people can download any picture they want for personal use, they just can't sell them or use them for personal promotion or gain. Then people started asking where they could buy the pictures, so now he's offering them for sale too. There's no reason why he shouldn't be able to recoup some of what he's spent if people want to purchase hard copies of the pictures. Making money of something creative and wonderful isn't an evil thing. Good for Carlos! He deserves to have good things happen to him because of this.

Mark, it is an infrared camera and everything looks MUCH brighter than it really is. We can see blue sky when it's still quite dark to the naked eye. You might want to take the time to learn about the equipment that is being used before you make statements like that.

Someone's dreary dreambox.
Really, mark? A small camera flash from almost 100 feet away blinds you? That sounds impossible.
The owls are fine, the flash doesn't bother nor hurt them in any way. Someone from the dept of fish and game has seen the photos and the setup and has given their approval on what is being done. Calm down about the flash, already.

The still camera flash is not IR! Check your facts dear. If you do indeed love the owls, you would be against the flash. It blinds me, it blinds them.

I know the camera flash isn't an IR, the live feed is from an IR camera. The flash is low level and is not as bright as it looks in the live feed. There are different kinds of flashes, perhaps you didn't know that. Have you taken many photography classes? Just want to know what makes you an expert in wildlife photography and flashes. Give your credentials. Carlos has taken courses and traveled to other places to photograph birds--this is not his first experience with photographing birds and he is not ignorant of their needs.
Today, 06:20:30 - Flag - Like - Reply

Someone's dreary dreambox.
Mark, you know not of what you shout.

The camera flash does indeed put out a huge amount of IR! Google it. Read. Almost all flashes do.
And guess what, the webcams are picking up that IR too, because they are IR cameras.
Do your own research before trying to argue something you apparently know nothing about. It's getting old.

RECIPE FOR PRESERVING OWLETS Posted by storymom
Take 1 large field, 4 adorable baby owls, several trees, a cool brook, a large quantity of field mice and a pinch of pebbles. Mix the owlets and trees together and stir frequently. Pour the brook over the pebbles. Sprinkle the field with flowers, various grasses and the field mice. Fill the trees with a gentle summer breeze. Spread over a deep blue sky and bake in the summer sun. When done, set away safely in a cozy owl box or tree stump. Wrap securely in awe and store in the hearts of everyone.

I love it so am sharing it again!

If you're on a PC, Cindy, press the PrintScreen key on your keyboard when you want to take the shot. Then open your Paint program and paste the image into it. Crop the picture as desired in Paint, and save it as a .jpg file in whatever folder you want to keep it in.

Cindy - anyone can save a screen shot - it works on all computers with no special programs. Just press your Prt Scr key on your keyboard - that takes the picture. Then Paste the image into Paint (your computer has it under Accessories) and save it as whatever name you want to call it. Try it! You'll be hooked! LOL

For a larger image that doesn't have to be cropped (cut down), first enlarge the camera image by clicking on the little icon under that picture that shows 4 arrows going out in all directions.

On a Mac, you press and hold "command, shift, 4" then a little arrow type box shows up and you drag it over what you want to photograph holding all the keys down while you do it; when you let go of the keys, it pops the picture.

It would be interesting to know if this is normal or unusual - that the youngest clings to the nest. With humans, the 'baby of the family' either stays home the longest or runs after the older siblings at the first opportunity. I can't find much in the literature that addresses this behavior in owls. What do you think? Is her behavior normal or odd - for an owl?

Jan (Bayonne, NJ)
Good morning, Owbl! From everything I've seen, there is often one that hangs back and seems overly cautious or anxious about taking the plunge, and that's usually the youngest. I'm not a professional, don't pretend to be, but that's what I've noticed. Funny, though - it didn't surprise me, as I almost expected that to happen. Thereby bringng my own pre-conceived notions into the observations!

Thanks Jan! I think it's impossible for an observer NOT to bring their own beliefs into the mix. The trick is to recognize them, which is exactly what you did. Throughout this whole thing I've tried to separate the human expectation from the owl's behavior, but that isn't always an easy thing to do.

One of my girl students at the wedding school told me about this the other day... She was driving on day on the freeway and was getting off on the off ramp. She saw a grown eagle on the side of the road. She stopped and saw that it was banded up a bit, so she picked it up and put it in her car and was driving it to the Wildlife Rescue place... she had to stop and get gas first. She pulled in the gas station and everyone was freaked out because she had an eagle in her passenger seat. It just sat there... she has pictures that her daughter took... To wild! The wildlife place came out with a blanket and put it over it to pick it up. It was later released at Marymore Park in Redmond, Wa.
