Hi, MODs... I'm a little embarrassed 😊 to be asking these questions this late in our owl experience... but here goes... can any of you help me with the following:
1. I don't know how to do an avatar 😊 ... 2. My "like" always turns to "unlike" so I've never been able to "like" any of you... and I really do! 😊
3. I don't know how to access the pics all of you post with the thin rectangular box...? 😊 I know some of this has been asked before... but I always missed the answers. ... Thanks for any help offered...!

Repost from last night - "Disappearing Likes" - It's a bug in the chat software. Your Likes are all still there, they just get covered up by new comments made to a post which you had Liked previously. Refresh your screen and they all come back into view. It's annoying, but not anything malicious or serious. See image for Like-ly confirmation.

Upload an avatar from your PC by clicking the gray ghostly figure above. (see pic below) The avatar photo should be a small pic. A large one will not upload, leaving you with spinning circles, and no warning message.

Click on "Admin" and then "Edit profile" and you can choose a picture from your computer to add as an avatar. I make a copy on the desktop so I can find the picture easily but you don't have to do that.

You go up to the far left of Owl Box 2 (ob2) and there is a gray silhouette. Click on the silhouette. You will be offered a choice of where to get the picture for your avatar. I picked one I already had on the computer. Then you click that choice and you have an avatar.

No. 3 first, just left click on the picture and then be patient. It should open in another window
No. 2 when I click Like, it just comes up with my avatar and says "You" underneath.
No. 1 Left click on your grey avatar, then choose where you want to get your avatar from. If you've a picture on your computer you want to use, click where it says computer. I think it then comes up as Browse, click this and navigate to where your pictures are stored - My Pictures or My Photos perhaps and select the picture you want to use.
Someone else may be able to explain this a bit better.

It's an announce to them

Why should they have to get use to it?

If you are taking pictures 100-150ft. away, you will need a high power flash to get the proper light to have good picture.

Their eyes are sensitive and made for lowlight, a burst of bright light is not good for them

I so love to hear the other birds in Carbs's house. Since I live in NYC I wake up to the sounds of garbage trucks and sirens. There are of course birds in the park but most of the birds I see around the city are common brown sparrows (noisiest bird on the planet and pigeons)

Good Morning. We have all been blessed with experiencing watching the wildlife of the marshlands and ocean where the oil has exploded beyond control. I am in Southeastern Florida and the coverage is extensive regarding the wildlife and the future damage to our everglades and east coast as well as what already has happened. You can't help but sob when you see the pelicans, turtles etc drenched in oil and can barely move. So I ask of all you wildlife lovers to pray, donate, blog whatever you feel to not let this happen in the future and preserve what we have now. Life is precious no matter where it resides. God Bless America here's a question. Since we think Austin is a male and Wes is a female. Do you think they are already establishing a bond and will mate? They sure seem to look out for each other. Does it really matter that they are bro/sis when it comes to finding a mate in the owl-world?

Can I show my ignorance and ask about time zones? I know in the UK we are 8 hours in front of CA time. In US, can one side of the road be 1 or 2 hours different to the other if they are in different states? May sound a daft question but here we just get British Summer Time or British Summer Time +1

Now if you will be on here for a while, take lots of good shots and post them tomorrow, ok? So glad it worked for you. Take care and I will bid you a good night or a good morning depending on where you live. 😊

Yes, we will chat about wolves. Hope you are not staying up all night or until the owlets return to the box for napping during the daytime. 😊

I am retired and these days I sleep when I am sleepy and stay awake when I am not. Most of the time I sleep during the final moments of House or NCIS (I did stay awake for the end of 24). On occasion I even sleep during my cooking shows on PBS. What the heck. It is 4:25 AM here and in the old days, I would be staggering up to catch the train to work. This is MUCH better.

Mary, If you have Windows on your computer, click on the start button in lower left corner of desktop. Then click on Programs and then go to Accessories. Once in Accessories, click on Snipping Tool. When you click on it, it will ask you if you want to have it in your task bar. Say yes and then it will be located on the left side of the task bar in the area where you may see IE and other icons. Once it is there, you will be able to click on it and then drag your cursor to the area you want to capture and then it will freeze the image and you can then click on the purple icon that looks like an old floppy disk.

Then you will name the capture and save it where you normally put your photos, etc. Try this and it should work. I was told about the snipping tool by both Bill in SD and also James Hill (you are probably familiar with them both in the chat room). Tomorrow if you are having trouble and see them in the chat post your questions or issue you may be having and I am sure they can help you. Hope this helps.

For those of you looking for something to reminisce over... something to keep you awake in the long night ahead...

Random images, screenshots, and manipulations from right here in the SPO chat room.

We have over 400 in the current rotation, and a few hundred more still to sift through.

Lots of editing left to be done - but it's random, so you shouldn't see the same show twice.

(almost 25,000 image views tonight alone!)

Thanks to everyone who has contributed images. Enjoy!

I'm going to make a PDF of tonight's chat then head off to bed. Good night all
