Oh, my dear, I'll miss you so!
How much I wish you wouldn't go.
But fly you must, and fly you will

And I will watch you soar, but still...

I cannot help but wish that we would stay together, but I'll be forever grateful for the days I had with you. And for the ways

You brought communities to care about your lives, and now we share our poetry, our pics, our jokes We came to know all kinds of folks

Because of you. So please, fly free and see the world. But know that we will wonder if you're well and when we'll get to say hello again.

Colleen What is the trick of getting a URL for a picture. I figured out how to do it by temporarily posting a picture on my blog, then switching to HTML and copying the URL from there and posting it where I want. There has to be an easier way. Today, 18:53:29 - Flag - Like - Reply

JH (in Technicolor Dreamcoat) Just click the picture and open it before you finish posting your message, then copy the URL for that page that opens. Just be careful not to delete your photo by accident when you click on it. Speaking from experience here. Today, 18:55:55 - Flag - Like - Reply

He was an amazing musician, played fiddle, mandolin, dobro and every other string instrument you could think of - and had a photographic memory for instruments, bands, and music. He was the first musician to play on Garrison Keillor's show (Prairie Home Companion)- he would have known this instantly - and I think he was yelling the answer to me from heaven, but I couldn't hear it over the music! Lynn in Georgia No no really. The vet thinks he was rolled by a car or a big animal and we think he got in a fight with some animal. He has no fear and thinks he can do anything. We have seen him aggravating deer and they have chased him into the garage and come into the garage after him. It doesn't stop him though. He thinks he can do anything. I'm trying to bring up that thread, Natalie. I'm not doing it right, so I'll just post the picture and reference to the "Long Eared Owl" - hold on a sec, Jan <http://www.enature.com/fieldguides/detail.asp?shapeID=960&ourGroupID=1&gfromWhere=&ourPageNum=5> Emily said the photo of the owl she posted was probably taken in CO. I thought maybe the "Long Eared Owl" - see range and discussion at this site - specifically mentions how it tries to blend into the tree

Already looked into that: nope, it's not a long-eared. See my pics above. Closest similarity is screech owl, but facial features of adult don't match. You have to look closely at the shape of facial markings, disk color and color of markings themselves. I'll post the Screech under the other pic.

Anything derived from his video broadcast is protected under copyright also. It's really not possible to produce much more than editorial content without his consent. Not that 1) I think he wouldn't provide permission but 2) I don't have any plans to produce a DVD for sale. I think the web slideshows are more in keeping with what he has said he sees as reasonable use.

I'm just sayin' Also, maybe they will use that Moly song as the narration for the E-Book!  For me, once the owlets have departed I definitely have to sit and organize the photos. I have a daytime folder and a fledging folder for night time but sometimes the action is too much to focus on where to store them so they just go in the general folder as I click, click, click... I would imagine some others here will have the same thing to do to keep themselves busy later too.

 Friends, as we all enjoy this wonderful place we've found, it's important to remember that this is the Internet. We should all be careful what we reveal about ourselves and our families. As warm as this room feels, it's only wise to remember that in fact, this is cyberspace. A second thought never hurt anyone. I'm just saying...

 I'm not at all worried about the Royals. I'm worried about the posters here who over the course of months, have freely given everything from their full names, to where they live, to photographs of their children and grandchildren, to where their children go to school, the dates they graduated, and enough other information to form a complete profile of who they are. Again, this is cyberspace with all the anonymity that that implies. People just simply need to stop and give a second thought to what they are posting. It's only common sense.

Instead it was a book from 1897 - long before even you were around, I think. 😊

The dates on the files were 5/14 and 5/29 BUT, I'm not sure if those dates are accurate. Both images came from copies that were uploaded here on the chat, and js-kt strips all EXIF info, so there is no way from me to know when they were truly taken. I would need whoever made the screenshots to fill us in with that info.

There is no reason for concern. All these owls have done this at one time or another, ever since they were hatched. Some of them do it more frequently than others. Wes happens to enjoy it the most, I'd say.

Natalie, that cockatoo is famous! Just last week, there was an article in the New York Times featuring a conversation with Dr. Aniruddh Patel of The Neurosciences Institute in San Diego. Dr. Patel studies the neuroscience of music, and was spurred in his research by Snowball. Here is the article. You might find it fascinating:

http://www.nytimes.com/2010/06/01/science/01mny.html?_r=1&sq=neuroscience%20music&t=cs

By the way, thank you for fishing out that video! I had been wanting to watch it again since reading the Times piece. It is quite one of the most unbelievable things I think I've ever seen!

@Jan in Bayonne of the glorious cardinal red avatar:

I posted below, but I just wanted to make sure you saw this. I am in NYC, it's true, but the photo was sent to me by my mother, who's in Colorado. she got it from the friend who took it via e-mail, but I've never met that friend, so I don't know where it was taken. I'll look in to it!

Emily...are you there? Re your photo of the owls earlier today, snuggled into the crotch of the tree...Jan and I have been wondering where you live. Jan is researching to try to find out what kind of owl it is in the photo. (She thinks Great Horned, and I'm partial to Eastern screech owl.) If you can tell us where you live, that will help to narrow it down.

The male owl makes me laugh - he doesn't look real standing on the beams in the background during the day! On the Dorset Barn Owl cam I've been really suprised to see the dad 'Bob' stays in the box during the day even now some of the chicks have hatched - he's lovely but he does insist on standing right in front of the camera! You can get this stuff at Hoot 'N Scoot or Seven Owleven. Like Bette said, they are usually closed during the day. I don't know that they would slash anything in the trees with them: I would think the odor of slowly rotting meat might attract predators they would rather not face during daylight. Interesting question though. Maybe only growing owlets need to eat during the day?

I ordered the Moly E-Book today. I really would like to get a hardcover of the book since it apparently will have more photos or illustrations. But I think I heard Eric say the other evening that if the book becomes a reality that there will be a limited number of copies. So I ordered the E-Book just in case. My question is do any of you recall what the process is for printing it? I think I remember that it can be printed only once either on a home printer or it can be printed by Kinko's. If printed by Kinko's does anyone know the process of getting the E-Book to them since there is a limit of only one chance of it being printed? Thanks in advance if anyone has answers. Appreciate it.

"Carry On" -Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young
One morning I woke up and I knew
You were really gone
Anewday, a new way, and new eyes
To see the dawn
Go your way, I'll go mine and Carry on
The sky is clearing and the night
Has cried enough
The sun, he come, the world to soften up
Rejoice, rejoice, we have no choice but
To carry on

Emily, you asked it Barn Owls drink. Most articles say they do not drink but Wesley the owl (not our Wesley) did drink. There was also a video of an owl playing in a lawn sprinkler.

an owl in the sprinkler sounds just too precious. how cute.
that's interesting about wesley drinking. I wonder if he needed to because of his diet, or if this is an example of owl behavior that shifts radically because of associating with humans.

EMILY - if you're still here - this is about that great owl family picture you posted earlier. I need to know the state that pic was taken in. There's a question whether the owls are GHOs or Screech Owls. I think GHO, but I have to prove it. I'm comparing facial characteristics, and there are Western Screeches and Eastern Screeches.

bl... a whole conversation about me and I wasn't even here! missed my real moment to shine. 😊 that was kind of a throwaway question, I didn't expect a definitive answer! it is true, I like in nyc. my mom's still in colorado. and the photo was sent to her by the friend who took it over email, which she then forwarded to me. I don't know that particular friend, so I can't answer what state it was taken in.
I've had the picture for a couple years, I'll try to dig up the original e-mail so I can ask the photographer.
