Good night all. Haven't been on much this evening - just lurked a few times. Have been working on a report that I HAVE to have ready by 10:00 a.m EDT (Yikes, if I get up in time - 1:30 a.m here now). Did get a chance to see the fly out and back just in time for the first treat. Some great screenshots, as usual, today and some very heartfelt and poignant poems and expressions of what this wonderful experience has meant to so many of you. Will check in for a bit later in the morning and hope to see Wesley snug in his house.

Oh boy...feel like my eyeballs are going to pop out and hit my screen. I would then not be able to find them in this mess I now call my desk. I'll leave and see if I can recover. I haven't even been sure of my driving abilities and my speech has been impaired! I think it unlikely I'll be back so good night to you all. May you see many sibling picnics and bving kisses. See you tomorrow!

I really enjoyed spending the day with so many of you and chit-chatting, sharing, laughs, etc. MODs truly are a special group of people and you couldn't ask for a better bunch. I've learned more in the last few months about compassion and humanity and most importantly, owls and nature. Here's to each of you a good evening, good health, and happiness always. 😊😊😊😊😊

P.S. If anyone got a screen shot of Wesley exiting the owl box tonight, could you post it for me?

I have seen owls on u tube stand on sprinklers holding their wings up to get a good washing. But perhaps they were screech owls and not barn owls. Just checked the site "Owl" "bath" and I see that many Molly fans have been there as well. Never did see the soap on a rope around their necks though!

I have a bird house in a tree in my front yard that I've never cleaned. I've always meant to but never did. Every year I have a nest in there. I do right now with babies. Must be a finch or wren or something like that. I thought it wouldn't get used being dirty but it does every year.

Just wanted you to know that they are doing their best but having some initial wrinkles. Apparently lots are having similar problems with the download. If you order something, and it doesn't work or something goes wrong, please email him directly and explain the situation. He is working nhs way through all the emails he has received as a result. If you already sent himone, he WILL get to you. They want to make it all work out right and make the customers happy! He says to tell you all to hang in there with him and he will make it right.

I think its amazing how the parents make sure that the youngest is fed, even though they have to go out of their way to do it. Think about it, there are humans who don't feed their kids and take care of them as well as these "dumb" animals do.

When I first started watching M&M, I "learned" that Barn Owls do not drink water, take baths or fly in the rain. James was what I postened to him (in the basement).
There are many references on the internet to Barn Owls taking a bath and your point about drowned owls is well taken. I'll try again to find the reference I read that said Barn Owls did not take baths or drink water.
Guess your info blows the Bible school connection.

I DID find what may have been the source of my belief that Barn Owls do not drink water. (see photo)
As I have said before, I am not an owl expert. There are people here with years of experience with Barn Owls.

When you eat fresh prey you absorb a lot of moisture. Owlets do not get moisture from their parents, it is from fresh meat.

Don't shed a tear, there's no sense in crying.
If you only knew the freedom of flying.
The wind hits my feathers as I venture way high.
Oh, and you guys should see this view from the sky!
The moon shines down on me just like a spotlight.
As I fly amongst the stars so beautifully bright.
Still unsure if I'm ready for a new chapter.
Someday soon I must go for I am a raptor.
When the time comes that I finally depart.
Don't cry for me, forever in your heart.
Love, Wesley 😊

I hate to burst anyone's bubble, more like burst out laughing that you think my house is as organized as this collage. I WISH. Oh, I know where stuff is; I mean, it's everywhere, but I can usually find things. My trick is to ask myself where would be the most logical place for me to look for this and there it goes.

Question: When Carlos deans out the box, will the human smell make any of them not come back to the box OR is it instinctive to not return to "the nest"?

Owls don't have a keen sense of smell, they probably won't notice it. Also, I read one owl site where the people were weighing the owlets EVERY night when the parents were out and it didn't seem to bother any of them.

Western WA folks: What if I was to say we meet Saturday the 26th at Point Defiance Park for a picnic at maybe 12 and then those who want can go to the zoo after and maybe see the barn owl. I can check when or where the barn owl is tomorrow.

Who might be able to come? Anyone?

The end of a very special time. I am so sad. Yet happy they all did so well, happy they didn't fall out and get eaten. It reminds me of when both my kiddos left the nest at the same time. The hovered around for a while. I don't see them much now. Too busy with their own lives. Owlets, stay away from roads, stick to the fields. Come back for visits when you can. We just love you!

I have been thinking how similar cats and owls are. They are both soft and fluffy, they both like to sleep alot during the day and play all night. They both like to catch mice, and other rodents. They both like to snuggle with their house mates. They both like to clean/groom each other. They both like to "fly" around sometimes and they both end up in a tree occasionally. They are both loved by this here empty owl box watcher.. 😊

I've been putting off saying this because I know I'll cry but, here goes. Thanks for making us a part of your MOD family. This started off as a school learning exercise for us and turned into a really wonderful experience with a lot of new friends.

Jade and I have loved watching the owls grow up and learn. It has been so much fun cheering them on. Remember when everyone seemed to think Wesley might not ever get out of the box? Well, she did, and tonight she just jumped out and took off like she'd been doing it forever.

I have my Molly pictures collected to save memories. I also will cherish the owl poster....it will make me smile every single time I see it 😊. Can't wait to have so many Molly Pigs to drink a toast to you all (you can do that with tea right?).

Hugs all around 😊 ...where is the tissue box?

We didn't hear anything from Wesley b4 exiting the box... found it strange. I am getting all this chatter among a group of people I have no idea what it is... are all hearing it... and I so could this be the reason we didn't hear from Wesley cuz there is some strange audio problem?

Although I have been watching from the time our owlets started hatching, I have not made very many comments. Actually this is my very first "chat room". As I was reading everyone's comments and waiting for Wesley to come out tonight, I realized I just had to say that our owls and each of you have surely enriched my life. Thank you and I can also say, "Wow! hasn't this been fun and we were apart of it. God Bless each of you and of course our owl family.

Adam.....first of all.....we LOVE WHO YOU ARE....you will have friends because of your nature. Sometimes it's hard to find someone who is emotionally mature enough to recognize the value of friendship. You have what it takes, just keep meeting people in an open, friendly way. There are many out there who would value your friendship as much as we do. Be a friend to others first. Much love and affection, Kathleen

I was imagining how crowded the owl box would have been with Egg 1 and Dudley filling in the brood to make 6. Would have been very awkward, and exhausting for M&M. Nature's way of making things work out?

I managed to get everyone at my office turned on to them and we would call each other throughout the day to let the other people know to long on and watch something fun. I am going to miss these 4 so much watching them grow up has been a treat indeed. Every morning I log on to see who is left, I dread the morning on log to an empty house.

I think Wesley did remarkably well with today being her first day in the owl box all alone. She seems adjusted but I am sure she will be curious to get out and about tonight as darkness totally arrives there. These little owlets and their parents have taught us all so much about the value of family, love and friendship inside and outside of the owl box too. ☺

Hi All! I thought these lyrics from the play, Wicked, "For Good" are appropriate:
It will may be
That we will never meet again
In this lifetime
So let me say before we part
So much of me
Is made of what I learned from you
You'll be with me
Like a handprint on my heart
And now whatever way our stories end
I know you have re-written mine
By being my friend...

Hey I'm with Mcky. This site has seen me through the worst. I lost my job in November and have sent out a couple hundred resumes but with no luck. I lost my home as a result. I would love to know how to interact on the Facebook cafe. These little owls and the love all of you have shared has been what has kept me going.

the best of luck to you on your job search, and please do join us on facebook! if you have an account search for SPO MOD and it'll come up. if not I think some people here have figured out how to help others make accounts.

The facebook SPO MOD is a "Group" in touch. You can set up a facebook account and set the it's also way to have off line discussions. It isn't the same by any means, but it is a way to keep in touch. You can comment s a facebook account and set all the privacy settings to the tightest possible, and then only interact on the SPO MOD site if you don't want to do the whole faeook thing. Once you start setting it up, if you want help, just ask. :)
This site will also still be here even after the video is gone.

Hi Vicki. My heart goes out to you for all you've gone through. I know what it's like to lose your Dad. I lost mine in 2001. However, I don't know what it's like to have your son in Iraq. Please tell him that we thank him for his service to our country. And thank you for his service to our country. God bless. I joined the Facebook page and I also encourage you to do the same. Take care...

I believe God sends people into our lives for a reason, a season, and a lifetime.... we never know which one we'll be for someone but we can bring good things to each other for that time. I lost my dad 11 yrs ago and miss him every day. I'm sorry for your loss and that your son is away. We pray for our military and their families.

Vickie.....this journey with friends and owls has brought a gentle sustenance to many of us, a calming haven (or heaven) to let go of the sadness or stress that clogs up the joy in life and allows the celebration of our connectedness. I am sorry for the loss of your father and wish your son safety in Iraq.

I don't think your were in the Avatar Collage I am creating, so am adding you now..... Kathleen

FINAL FLIGHT (Revised – Part 1 of 3)

The sun is setting with reddish hues
The box, a silhouette.
The door stands wide with emptiness:
A sight we'll not forget.

For days and nights we lingered here,
Watching owlets grow
From eggs to fuzz to feathered wings
Each one we came to know.

Part 2 of 3
We loved them like our very own.
Strangers watched together.
But soon we were a family
"Birds of common feather."

It was sometimes sad to watch each day
Knowing it would end,
And watching as the last one flew
Caused our hearts to rend.

Night all! If this is the last night, I just wanted to thank you all for making this such an incredible few months. And I will be back in the morning with my cup of coffee waiting to see if we have an owl return to the box. My poem for the night:

Goodbye to the Owlets

Come the fingers
one
by one
by one
by one

then the thumb

making a lotus out of a palm
and five ways of wanting what must be to be what is not

Straighten the fingers
straighten the thumb

Blow your heart's feathers
into the air

Breathe them in

Breathe them out
