Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

I only have a couple of minutes...I see Austin and Wes in box. Could it be it's more comfortable in the box today because of rain/wind? Maybe this is something that even "wild" owls would do. We certainly haven't had many to watch and see if any "return" for a bit after they have fledged. I really don't think this is anything to be worried about.

oh I dreaded tuning in this morning. figured Wes would be gone - only to read Austin spent the night!! So glad!! 2 babies still in the box. It sounds like they're having some rough weather there, maybe he got scared!!

I'm thinking maybe we're not seeing inside the owl box yet is because Donna can't bear to see TWO owls there when she (and we all) expected to see NONE!!

Mmmmm! Fish cakes for breakfast. Yesterday we tried a new (different) Italian restaurant. I had the whole fish baked in salt (I had read about it but never eaten it before). It was delicious (not a bit salty) and more than I could eat. We took a "doggy bag" home (my dog would love it but it's mine). Soooo, fish cakes for breakfast.

Well there's a turn up LOL!! Not what I was expecting at all when I logged on - assuming the blue box is correct - mind you it looks a little stormy there so Austin probably made a sensible choice - or did he stash some food? 😊 afternoon everyone by the way 😊 Oh and I was really pleased to see all 4 just before I went to work - what a day!!

Question? Opinions? Thoughts?
We've seen videos of owls flying during the day. Maybe these were all owls raised in captivity so they were more active during the day with their humans but some of them looked like wild/free owls. Anyway, we know they CAN fly in daylight. Do you think their strong instinct not to be active at daytime like he's trapped in the box because the sky lightened? Is to keep daytime predators from knowing where they are roosting? The palm is close by and he's been there often so it's not a matter of not being able to see it clearly (blinded by the light).

Trying hard not to put human emotions on these owls but I sort of feel that Austin is very much bonded to Wesley. Maybe it is just comfort as they are the two youngest or maybe there really is a bond there.
Just a thought!!!

First of all, I disagree with the statement, "trapped in the box." That said, as I understand it, the owls will adapt to their surroundings and will be active when it is most beneficial for them to be so. If their prey is active at daytime then they will be. I'm sure they also have predators to contend with, but I suspect the timing of their activity is much more dependent on when it's most efficient for them to be out and about.
Another point to consider is that owls are not bothered by light. They even sun themselves to produce vitamin D from the oils on their feathers, which they then take in while preening.

I'd love to hear opinions, too. My brother recently discovered a family of screech owls in his yard that - from the pics he sent me and his description of their actions - sound like they are at a similar developmental stage as "our" owls. He said he spent the better part of Memorial Day watching them fly, play in the trees, and Mom and Dad delivered treats regularly throughout the day. That went against everything I "thought" I knew about owls.

For those who missed all the activity this morning, which was not recorded in video for the most part. I've uploaded the 100 or so unedited screenshots from the flurry of activity this morning. Lots of frenzied flying, feeding, and fidgeting going on. Help yourselves to any that you like, or click the slideshow button (upper right) to watch a full-screen time-lapse of the pre-dawn flights and fidgeting. Oh, and of course the encroaching color of a beautiful sunrise. Once in full-screen mode, select your speed in the upper left corner, move the mouse to reveal the thumbnails and speed options. Enjoy.

Even that camera is tucked away inside the box so, if the Mocker is wanting to see the view from that camera, he needs to go inside the house and perch on Carlos's shoulder, and watch it on the big screen. 😊

My theory is that Austin went into the box this morning at the last minute (daylight had already broken) to try to coax Wesley over to The Palms. It didn't work, and he felt trapped as the sky grew quickly lighter. Austin stayed in the doorway for quite a while after he went in, as if he were contemplating returning to the palm tree, but quickly realized he could not.

Austin went in at about 5 this morning and he was in there looking out so its my thought he knew he had to either stay or go soon and just decided to stay. he had plenty of time to get to the tree if he wanted to go.

Aww, I'm sorry Connie! Boo has been with us for almost 4 years. We built a house on a golf course and she was the "course cat." She decided that our house looked like a cool place to live so she's been ours ever since. (Waupaca, Wisconsin) Interesting thing is, we took her to the vet to have her neutered after she decided to stay and the vet called later that aft. and said, "I've got good news & bad news about Boo," which totally freaked me out.
Good news was surgery was fine; bad news was she had already been neutered. 😊

Connie I don't know how long your cat has been gone but don't lose hope. When I was in college my cat disappeared off my second floor balcony. I swore someone stole her during a party next door but I knew her disposition and knew they would not have gotten past the parking lot with her. I looked for her day and night, friends looked, we walked countless miles for months. Then I got a call about 5 or 6 months later the shelter had my cat. They called back to say she escaped. (I knew it was her at that point) 😊 A few months later they called again they thought they had her. I had to meet them morning joe broadcast from Pensacola this morning

JT

I think the Video gets UnPlugged on the 14th - LOL

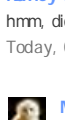

Connie

But I think there is going to be goodbyes.

Nancy in Stow, OH

hmm, didn't Molly stay in the box one day after she left when it rained? I'm wondering...

Melissa

Wow Nancy. Your posts from earlier this morning just appeared, 3 in a row. Did you do that on purpose?

Nancy in Stow, OH

not at all, not a clue what's up, sorry

Nancy in Stow, OH

I want to say "called it" 36 minutes ago, but it was just an "I wonder..." (re: rainy)

Nancy in Stow, OH

Good morning, came into work early to enjoy this for a bit. On and off much of the day. So good to be here. Enjoy.

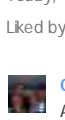

Charlene

Ohhh I signed in and Carlos was here.....got the lag thing happening and he's gone. I suspect if there was anything we should be "in the know" of that it'll be posted.

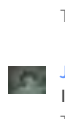

butterfly

gosh, did I miss my hunch... I just knew Wes would go this morning....sure didn't count on Austin returning...but...nice for wes....

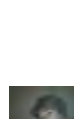

Connie

And us but poor Donna.

JT

I have been a firm believer she LOVES her Condo, and does NOT intend to lower her standards and move to a Palm Tree - LOL

JT

See, Austin got a glimpse of this video from yesterday afternoon, and thought he'd see if he could get in on the action..LOL

YUMMY!!

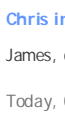

Rita Benigni Miller

It's those long stringy tails that get to me. lol

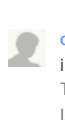

Chris in Olympia, WA

James, did you get Carlos fixing the camera? Seems like the same thing as yesterday.

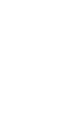

cj in fl

iposted one on your request below but it's a little dark

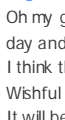

JH (in Technicolor Dreamcoat)

I missed it. See my post above.

Ingrid

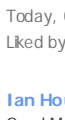

Oh my goodness, I was just going to do a quick check and what a surprise. I said last night that Wesley might talk Austin into joining her in the box for another day and having some rain really helped talk him into it.

Ian House

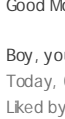

Good Morning Donna!

Boy, you folks are MORNING PEOPLE!!!

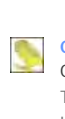

Chris in Olympia, WA

Owls will do that to you!

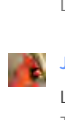

Jan (Bayonne, NJ)

Like, do they have a choice, Ian??

Connie

No. Owl people

Melissa

morning people
lunch time people afternoon people
pre-dusk people
night people
MOD people

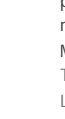

Charlene

Good morning all....well clearly from reading in the basement what they say about "never underestimate the power of a female" is true....Wes somehow coaxed Austin back in the box :) Now there's something we never saw coming

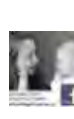

Doreen

hello

Julia

Hello Doreen. Welcome back.

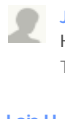

Lois H. - Crawfordville, FL

Rita good morning, yes I'm having a little trouble also. Must be a Florida thing.....ha ha ha. Have a good day.

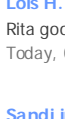

Sandi in Seattle

Carlos has taught the world a beautiful lesson in treasuring each moment of the day: his wife, mom, children/grandchildren, a beautiful sunrise, smallowet hatching, perfect photo op, talented young artists/writers, inquisitive schoolchildren, wildflowers, neighbors, technology, good clean humor, mocha, a beautiful rug, and so much more!

Jan (Bayonne, NJ)

Well said!

Carolyn-North Carolina

Well said Sandi! I totally agree.

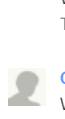

Carolyn-North Carolina

Carlos, we are going to have to be extra nice to Donna, maybe she will give us another day or two.

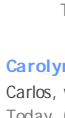

Marie Johnson

poor Donna!!

Rita Benigni Miller

Good morning from OCALA, FL. Is anyone else having trouble with the audio being all broken up as Carlos is speaking?

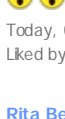

Sue from Syracuse

yes, most frustrating! Aren't they so cute!

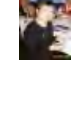

Sylvia Hix

Yes, my sound is coming and going as well.

Rita Benigni Miller

I just lost a post from my Florida "friend"Crawfordville???? I'm sorry. Went to reply and it disappeared. Don't know what happened.

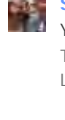

Barbara

I see no way that Carlos and Donna can leave on the 14th....that's Monday!

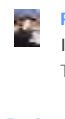

JT

In case Yowl need a New Experience, The Pergrin Falcon eggs are due to hatch this weekend!!

Sue from Syracuse

Thanks, but I can't take another one! I need my life back....

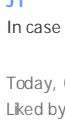

Jan (Bayonne, NJ)

I watched Peregrine chicks hatch, grow up and fledge on a nest cam several years ago. Those chicks are so dangone cute - you will def hitly become addicted!

Big difference between can't and doesn't want to. You did see that he flew back to the box just as it was getting light, and decided to go inside on his own, right? There is nothing wrong with this picture, just different from some of our preconceived ideas of what should be happening.

In general instinct tells them it is dangerous to fly during the day. Crows and others that bother owls are out then. May not be true in this case that it is dangerous, but the lighter it gets the stronger the instinct.

That's funny. I see just the opposite. Austin flies in whenever an Adult Owl makes a delivery. He is always there, hoping to scarf on someones else's treat. He hangs around hoping for a similar delivery. I really don't think he has any altruistic intentions here. There isn't anything wired in him to do so yet.
Today, 05:22:45 - Like - Reply - Delete

They are keeping stats and have provided charts. Until the bst few weeks the stats were really very accurate. Since then, it's been more or less a mystery because so much has happened off screen. The stats through 5/25 can be found on Molly's word-press site. <http://mollysbox.wordpress.com/chart-paps/>

The delivery was handed off, most likely to Wes, and then they took it inside the box. Don't know if they ate it or left it inside. Knowing Wesley's recent habit of caching food in the box, I believe that may be what happened.

Hi James,
I was just remembering fondly an Owl-fred Hitchcock spoof that someone did months ago using a silhouette of one of the owls. Was that your humor? So long ago it was before I really "knew" any of you from the chat room. There was a fleeting second with black and white owl wings flying everywhere and a rat corpse that made it look like a horror show.

Interesting - this is the first time I've realized how distinct their calls are. The one on the right is a soprano, the one on the left is a rich mezzo, and the one in the middle is an alto. Now, if someone can tell me which is which, I will actually be able to tell them apart by their voices!

Okay...song re-write, before I collapse unconscious on my bed:
(apologies to whomever wrote the lovely song, "The Shadow of Your Smitie")

The Shadow of your Rat, when you are gone,
Will color all my dreams and light the dawn.
Look into my eyes, my owl, and see,
All the lovely things you've been to me.

Our wistful little star was far too high,
Some rat-guts kissed your beak,
And splashed my eye
Now when I remember spring,
All the food that hunting brings,
I will be remembering
The Shadow of your Rat.....

I was just checking on the Great Tit site in Norway. The oldest one made three attempts to get to the nesting box hole and failed. He stands on the smaller ones to get more elevation to make it, but still falls back. But the little bird is giving it the old Viking try-that's for sure.

one year we had the most unusual guest at my kid's 2nd birthday party: a great horned. it was mid feb., a sunny day, so I spread a picnic blanket on our backyard deck for guests to be outside. the great horned was perched on a branch of a big elm tree in our yard about 15 ft. away and stayed for the entire party. the talking and merriment didn't bother him in the least.

Hi Megan. I've been gone for the past week but used to be here a lot. I can tell you that we won't know the sex of the owls for sure until after their first molt. They are still juveniles now and the feathers they have now are all going to fall out. The new feathers they get will be truer to the sex that they are, but even then "experts" don't always know for sure until the mating season!

Cheryl
From what I've read and heard Carlos say, it seems likely or possible that Austin and Pattison are males and Max (he) and Wesley (Ann) seemed to have the coloring of females. But it is more accurate to tell when they are a year old and that an egg is a sure sign! That's all I know. Feel free to add or correct me, anyone.

Actually, Carlos is pretty sure about all except Pattison. The photos on the blog show that their coloring has become quite distinct in the last week.

Ruth.... Please stand on one leg while you are delivered tonight's honor.
You are hereby named "Your Most Brilliant Highness" for having FIRST REPORTED the spotting of "Where's WOWLDO" in Avataria.
May you reign in peace and harmony and know that we shall honor and adore thee.
Here your Royal Highness is your Crown. (Crown Royale?...I don't think so.) Your humble servant, Kathleen

It sounds like she might be "talking" to someone in the palm trees maybe. You can hear a far away squawk.

Very good weather. Gorgeous crystal clear days with some much needed rain at night here and there. Had some clear nights, too, though, and I got to see stars!!! Billions and billions of stars!!! I can't see stars in Dallas because of all the city lights, but in the country, oh my. It just takes your breath away.
