Hi everyone! My husband e-mailed about the t-shirt which should have been here by now, or we should have at least received a confirmation. We got an e-mail back saying we ordered a mug! We didn't order a mug. I hope we get this straightened out, and that I can get a shirt soon. Anyway, I'm here for the night

Thank you Carlos, Donna, Austin, chat roomers and everyone connected with this beautiful experience. In a world where we turn on terrible news and see so many things that are difficult, you have provided a sanctuary not only for these extraordinary birds, but for all of us to see real magic and beauty.       Rhonda: Is Hargrove a married or maiden name? If you're married, make sure make your name 'First Maiden Married'. More old friends will find you.
       Also, make sure you list your schools, and do a search on your school name. You will find old classmates. Start searching on old friends and family member names. You'll find friends in no time at all. (There's a Molly group in Facebook too.) Good luck!

If you go to the spo-mod page you'll see posts there from us. If you click on any of our names it will take you to our page. There is a tab on the right that Connie....It is designed for the Modley Crue to print on their printers. I designed it to be 8.5 x 11. Some may try to put it on a disc for a larger size at Kindos, SAMS CLUB, COSTCO, etc. Remember, the resolution on many avatars is low so the bigger you go, the less resolution you'll have. Find out the format the printer wants before burning a CD. PDF, JPEG, Tiff? Right now it's at 72 dpi.

       Also, Eric asked me if he could put it in his MOLLY BOOK to which I said, YES. (Probably the e-book?) .......................Kathleen

       The higher the resolution, the more clear your print will be.
       DPI dots per square inch. The more dots per square inch the more clear your print will be.
       Usually images sent on the internet are 72 dpi so they can download faster.
       If you click on my image, you should be able to click on PRINT and produce an 8.5x11 print.....takes a while, the file size is 4.4 megabytes. I can make it smaller but you'll lose a little quality. As for the formats, some printing shops want jpeg, some pdf, some tiff. You might have a "save as" selection on your computer to tell it which format. Yes, I'm an artist and I do a lot of collages for fun. I'm a MAC user. kathleen Okay - the secret is out!!!! Mary Pat and I had the most amazing discovery today!

We realized today, after chatting for all these months on this site, that:
WE GREW UPIN THE SAME SMALL TOWN -and-she worked with my brother! -and-we grew up about two blocks from each other!!!! (we went to different schools, but graduated a year apart!!!!)
You should a seen the size of the coffee spit when she sent me a message telling me what her home town was!
Then the hits just kept on coming!!!
Is that fabulous, or what?

Wonderful!!!! The same day I signed onto FB, I had a message from a woman who grew up near her husband. I've never met her and she just guessed that I might be related to him. They were neighbors and he had recued her pony for her about 60 years ago!!

This whole experience has just been unbeliveable. The fact this has been chronicled is a great educational tool for young and old to appreciate Wildlife and learn. I hope this will extend to the organizations that support to preserve wildlife. TRUE STORY 2006 When a Montana boy moves to Florida and unearths a disturbing threat to a local population of endangered owls, three middle-schoolers take on greedy land developers, corrupt politicians, and clueless cops.
Determined to protect his new environment, the boy and his friends fight to prevent the adults from making a big mistake. This also made a High School in 2009 in Sunrise FI preserve owls who were nesting on the football field. So I hope this remarkable story of Molly & McGee and family continues to expand to touch many. God Bless

Hi everyone!! I'mhome from work early today. I so did not want to go to bed last night for fear it might be the last night. I ambeing so emotional about this. I hear the song and I cry. Or at the very least have a lump in my throat trying not to cry. I Ve said it before and I II probably say it again. This has been such an awesome wonderful experience. God bless Carlos and his entire family for giving us this gift. It's been such a heart warming experience. Some of us have been going through a hard time. I personally lost my sister. I cannot even tell you how much I miss her. She loved owls so much. Even more then I if that is possible.
Thank you all for you laughs, tears and just a great journey.

This is what I was talking about the other night. A really nice man and woman who love birds, but up an owl box in the hopes of one day having an owl use it as a nest. ....and look what has become of that simple project. The owls arrive and decide to make San Marcos their home, and look what happens. 14 Million hits on the Owl Box, a whole new cottage industry starts; mugs and T-shirts start the ball rolling, next we have an author documenting the story, an artist to illustrate the e-book, a cookbook from the MOD community, with no stop in sight. We all have fallen in love with this experience and we want more permanent items that symbolize our obsession.

Now look what happens, the author becomes a publisher, the artist is selling fine art prints, we have bumper stickers, music downloads, a young man who is taking his class project to Amazon to give us a DVD from his prospective, and don't be surprised if this isn't over. We can still hope that Carlos will sell some of his copyrighted photos, and be sure that someone will follow up on the trend and find something else we will all want to have. Ain't America

 YES! you have nailed it perfectly. I was thinking of a way to express the way I feel about some of the cynacism about the "commercialization" of this project. What of it? it's wonderful. it helps the economy! and we all need that, others have started their grass roots movements - like Olivia the 11 year old helping birds in the oil spill by selling her drawings, and Carlos, you go after those ROYALties! so show your support MOD's and buy, buy!
       this experience has been the kind that words can not express. so thank you everyone. i have to go cry now...

      Please do! You've inspired me to try my hand at fiction. I'm thinking about a Comedy/Noir series staring a Disgruntled Private Owl and his exuberant dame, Kasey. Can't give too much away but, the gist of the story revolves around PO Wesley's quest to put an end to one of the most disorganized or ime families ever. A real bunch of yahoos. The working title is Wesley's Scowl - The Hilarious Crime Story of a Private Owl and his Dame.

      It was Friday, see. Nothin' on the news except a bungled rat snatch.
       In walks this incredible lookin' dame, see.
       "Hello, my name's Kasey" she rasps.
       I stand up slowly on one leg to show off my balance,
       "Nice to meetcha, sweetheart....the name's Wesly, Private Owl at your service. Can I get you anything to drink?"
       "I'm not really thirsty" she rasps. "But I AM hungry; haven't eaten since last night. Tell ya what" she says to me. "I'm actually part of the Royal Family.
       You know....well to do, but keep on the QT. How 'bout I take You to a nice little place where they serve fresh rat and we can talk?"
       By now I'm drooling figuratively and physically. She had me at "Hello".

                          I used to have a barn owl spending days in a big eucalyptus by the house and a "hoot" owl on the chimney almost every night. Then Eastlake took all the open country. I'd be surprised if ow's would come to a box now. Even the skunks, 'possoms, and raccoons don't come around any more

                    Finally took time to visit the SPO-MOD FB site. Haven't visited much or posted anything since I joined. All in good time as I have a hard job keeping up with this one 😉 . I even fumbled and bumbled my way thru FB to get there before I remembered "SPO-MOD". When I tried a "Molly the Owl" under a general search I also came up with a "group" (2 people) with a site called "The Exploitation of Molly the Owl and Family" Type: Just for Fun ??? 🕡 I can see I have a LOT to learn about getting aaround in FB. 🤒

                           Try pasting the text into a PLAIN TEXT editor, like Notepad, or an email client. Then copy paste it into the chat box. All the hidden formatting from a program like Word, HTML site, or similar will count against your 1000 character limit, even though you can not see the hidden gremlins.

                    Please don't construe this as a criticism...but I really get a laugh out of all of those who keep wanting to :feminize" Wesley's name - as you also did with Max, Pattison and Austin. I have friends and/or their children, named Max, Pattason (slight change in spelling), Austin and Wesley - and all are very much female. I also have known males named Max, Austin and Wesley-so far no male named Pattison, but it is being considered by one friend who as yet doesn't know the sex of her soon-to-be-born child as she wants it to be a surprise- inspired by watching Mollie's brood. \stackrel{f U}{=}
                    Names can be interchangeable at times...LOL

I have two friends (well, I have more than two friends, but that's not the point...) ANYWAY - I have two separate friends who both ended up owning the houses they lived in because they had bought the houses with a group of friends and lived in them during the 70's in a "commune" style living arrangement. As they each left, they would "quit claim" on their portion of the house, so the last one left ended up owning it!
Maybe that's what Wesley is doing - She's channeling her inner hippy. Last owl left owns the house!

       Yep! 4 story, they bought it in the late 60's when it was a wreck and slowly fixed it up together. All in theater, so they would get stuff from the prop-masters, set designers et cand use it to repair and decorate the place. I'm trying to remember what corner it's on, but it's on Elizabeth and something - the woman who got it is a fabulous director, and surprisingly, no one ever came back and asked for a piece of it. Of course, since they had legitimately signed the quit-claim, they couldn't, but still.
       The second one was a 4000 sf 3 story victorian house near the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.
       Hippes. Ain't they great????

Speaking as a deputy of Adam's.... we know everyone! And we know when to get tough ('cause our sherriff is tough)....so be very careful....

Jan (Bayonne, NJ) Oy vey.
