Ruth.... Please stand on one leg while you are delivered tonight's honor.
You are hereby named "Your Most Brilliant Highness" for having FIRST REPORTED the spotting of "Where's WOWLDO" in Avataria.
May you reign in peace and harmony and know that we shall all honor and adore thee.
Here your Royal Highness is your Crown. (Crown Royale?...I don't think so.) Your humble servant, Kathleen

Here's a story
Of a lovely Molly.
Who would soon have owles of her own,
All of them had wings of gold, like their mother,
The youngest ones in furs.

Here's a story,
Of an great owl named McGee
Who wanted a nice mate of his own,
He was one owl, living in a palm tree,
And very much alone.

Till the one day when our Molly met this fellow,
And they knew that it was much more than a hunch,
That his pair would somehow form a family,
That's the way they all became the owlie bunch.

The owlie bunch, the owlie bunch!
That's the way they became the owlie bunch!

Hello Everybody! Tonight is my last night in GA and I am finally where I have internet access. It's still rustic in southwest GA where I've been. Even my cell phone did not work down here! AT&T is does NOT have more bars in more places. Anyhoo, just checking in for a moment as it is after midnight here. Good to hear that of familiar screeching. I did see Wesley in the box alone earlier today but had no time at all to post then. Good to see so many of you here tonight. I have missed you all!

While it is a bit quiet, I'll explain as short as possible why I was on the phone so much, as it's off topic. My friend with cancer, who had her spinal tumor successfully removed, suddenly developed a cerebral spinal fluid leak in a nerve they snipped, and had to go into a second surgery. The surgery was unsuccessful and now she's looking at several months in the hospital. I got to go see her tonight for the first time in 10 days, and I had to spread the word to friends.

OK, that's all! Back to the owls!!!

 I think a bit of what we are seeing in OB2 is insects and other particles blowing around. That camera is very sensitive. Nothing appearing as heavy rain in OB1 The owl box doesn't look wet and there is no sign of drops coming off the roof. There may be a light shower, but current weather in San Marcos is "overcast"

Just because - 20,000 Votes would be a positively cooling thing.
No need to fill the room with only Vote posts but, everyone could click the Stars in the upper left of the page and see if we can get that number over 20,000 by the 14th. Just a silly Starry-eyed thought.

(one pauses to ponder the peer-pressure implications of a page covered in star-studded posts)

Hi everyone,
We have had swallows in our chimney here in Aiken SC every single summer since 1990. They always come back, and I love hearing them twitter and thunder with their wings. Our Boxer thinks we're having a storm when he hears it.
Then in the morning and at dusk I find them down by our lake when Patton (the Boxer) and I take a walk. They are welcome forever, they keep our bug population down
I do so love all these critters.

Okay, so last night was a "treat" theme for sleep-talking hubby! He was really on a roll! As I said last night, it started early, with him falling asleep right after I mentioned that treats had been brought. Here's the second outburst:

Rolls over, smacks me across the face and says: "Tell Max to brush his teeth or he'll get cavities".

I have a long story about the honey bees nest that was in the fireplace chimney when we bought this house and before we moved in (it had been vacant for several months) and there was a HUGE hive full of honey. Short version: We didn't want to destroy them, so we tried to smoke them out - successful the first time. A week later they were back - smoked them again. They left, but the honey & honey comb was still there. The fire got hotter, the comb and the honey melted and a smelly, blackened mess oozed down into the fireplace. The chimney cleaner guy had never heard of such a thing and it took him hours to clean the chimney - $750 later the chimney was clean and no more bees.

Hi! Just when I was about to get back on after finishing a project for work (about 5 pm PDT), our power went out and it has been out for about 2 hours. Don't know why it was out. We went out to dinner hoping it would come back on because my daughter had a homework project on her computer and it is due tomorrow. Power (obviously) is back on now, so we are back in our home and all working hard. Glad I didn't miss the owlets entirely tonight! 😊

NO. It was a little bit windy, but otherwise we don't know why the power went out. Caught me totally by surprise.

Ingrid, Jeri, Becky, et al - Re: the eBay Moly the Owl Bumper Stickers - only 10% of the profits will go to helping the birds affected by the oil spill. Still, that's nice of the Seller to do that and it's going to a good cause. Good deal on the postage of 75 cents for any number of stickers.

My sympathy goes out to all of you lucky. I wish there was something I could personally do, but will be making a contribution. The news video is awful for us to watch, but it is so much worse for you folks who are going to have to deal with it - loss of wildlife, wildlife habit at, livelihood of fishermen, income for those depending on vacationers, etc. Do you know of any local organizations that are accepting donations? I'd much rather donate to one of them than to a National organization because all of the donations usually go directly to help the cause.

the founder of our wild bird sanctuary in Hudson Qc is getting ready to go down to the area... she's done much research on the effects of oil, and best ways to deal with the poor birds. Ingesting lady... I used to work at a framing store, where she'd bring amazing photographs to do.
