Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more Information Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

Is there a way to post something on this site that is over the 1000 character limit? Or who of those in the "know" on this site would I need to ask? I would really rather not break it up in sed bns.

While I have the time right now, before I go to visit family - I want to take this opportunity to say thank you to all on this site that have entertained me over the last 2 months. I have appreciated your knowledge, compassion and humor. There were so many times that I found myself laughing out loud at the comments and the well spirited humor. While I don't often post, I certainly have appreciated you in silence. When I first got on this site I had no idea how hooked I would become. Nature is a marvelous benefactor if we just take a little time to observe it. Best to all and I will try to see you on FB.

Dear Carlos and Donna, just wanted to thank you both for this wonderful opportunity to see something in nature that we would not have had if not for you. You did awesome even when the challenges and many hours might have made the job seem onerous. I know that you did it out of love for Molly, McGee and the little ones and all of us and I thank you for the privilege of being a part of this. I will miss being able to have them at my command but know that life is a true adventure for them now and they are excited about it. I wish them and you both well and I hope that Molly and McGee will choose the same owl box next time. It's a sad but happy day for all.

Hello again, with more stars for Donna and Carbs. Since I started doing the blue box stats for people who can't see them, seems like a good idea if I post all the other info there this morning. Here's what it says:
The Owl Box is not empty. It will forever be full of our lasting love for Moly, McGee, and family. Carlos and Donna will be here today at 10 am and 3 pm PDT to show the gifts they have received. Tomorrow, June 14, 6 pm PDT will be their final "see ya."

Good morning, everyone. Happy Birthday to Max! Today you are an owl. I guess that means your daddy will be taking you to interesting places for hunting tonight, eh?
Here are the "stats" (not much of statistical interest in them) before I post them on the wki.
June 12/13. Total treats observed: 3 carry ins. One of these was a rabbit, which Wesley consumed in the box, so she or he will roost well fed today.
Branching stats: All were observed flying and playing at the playground. At 5:13a, to the accompaniment of a surprised Carlos by a surprised Donna, an owl returned to the roof of the owl box and was joined by another, who had apparently been sitting unobserved on the far side of the box. The first owl hopped down to the perch and went into the box. At 5:15a, the second owl flew away to the southeast (location of The Palms) and the first owl flew to the cantilever perch, then to the roof, and then away to The Palms for the day.

IDEA! They should do a book of black & white photos (or color) taken throughout the journey. I would love to have a book with all of those pictures. There are some fantastic ones on the blog.

They're talking about it. Eric is boking for serious interest, as they need at least 500 takers to do it. If you are interested in a coffee table photo book, email Eric Blehm (whose email I can't for the life of me remember the rest of at the moment). Maybe someone else will chime in with it.

Ditto... the only other one it could have possibly been was Molly but she wouldn't have acted so strangely (I don't think). I still think it was Max and there was something about the box the owl didn't like...

Sawwhet...no tears...she's doing great. Carlos told us that Molly called for the owlets to follow her North last night and she circled back each time to make sure all were following (Wes of course called for food first before any pre-hunting was to take place). Wes would follow Molly and then be gone about 30 min at the most and be right back at the jungle gym or the perch. She's getting there...on her own time....

You rate 1-5 stars, depending on how much you like the sight. Every time you sign in new, or refresh and re-set the stars, one count is added to the total (top left).

Morning Christina! I was just looking at your sons drawings - they are amazing - if he can do that at 12 then he has an incredible career ahead of him! I've got a 'lefty' too, and he's the same age - however by his own admission he can't draw for toffee LOL! - and the fact he did the owl's just before this experience doesn't surprise me either - I had all sorts of things happen to do with owls just before I found this site - the world works in mysterious ways!

Your son will be creative in something... they (lefties) are encoded (or predisposed, as Mary says) for creative genius. My son use to take masterpieces and roll them in a ball and trash them. I would dig them out when he was gone. He's better now.

I'm trying to go to bed now. Won't really be on until afternoon, probably just in time for the 3 pm broadcast. Might sneak a peek or two earlier. So Kathryn the PDF's are on you to shrink (unless I hop in at the right time). Also, Not sure what is happening with Mary Carroll's photo. Apparently right now it is just sitting in the image file but not linked to anything on the wiki which means it doesn't show up. Not sure what her intention was. I looked this up about dreams of flying...
To dream of flying is usually a pleasant experience and is accompanied by a sense of exhilaration and freedom. It usually feels completely natural as if we have somehow always known how to do this. Rarely is the dream accompanied by a fear of heights or of falling. Flying may symbolise liberation from something that's been troubling you. Obstructions and shackles that have held you down have been released & you can now experience the same sense of freedom that we see in the birds that soar in the sky.

Allieflies, I've ever known, are! Sketching is his strong suit. He thought it was so funny that he did the owl stuff right before my adventure here began.

If you are still around, how do I put a picture on my page on the WIKI? I tried "copy" and "paste" but it did not work. I read the "help" but I could not get the menus open.

Here is the picture I wanted to add. It is not great art but I was proud of myself for having done it myself (with AZGuest's coaching). If you look cbseely, you can see Wes looking out sideways.

On the other hand I want to see it empty because that means they are growing up and one step closer to being able to make it on their own.

It's been an amazing journey the last few mths watching first Moly and the Eggs then the Owlets. My 4 year old dragged me in, and although her interest has been up and down I've learned so much. Not only about owls but about my daughter and her joy and engery over nature, life and the cycles. Sorry to see the Owls gone, but this has started my youngest and I on a Homeschooling journey that will be very different from my older four. Be Well and Blessings to all.

Or my friends say "Where've you been at...haven't heard from you in awhile?" And slowly after initial surprise at where I've been and what I've been doing...their eyes just start to glaze over. Earlier Carlos was saying that Austin had 400 requests for the DVD so far. And he also said that the price is likely to be around $25.00 because there would be packaging and copying of the DVD.
If he did the burning himself and used any CD/DVD label program and a graphic program, he could save a whole lot of money, and if he sells them for $25.00 he would make nearly $10,000.00 for his college fund if he only sells those 400 copies.
