Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

It has come to my attention that HOP (The Hungry Owl Project), an organization that operates under the umbrella of Wildcare, and is a well-established not-for-profit group that promotes the construction and use of owl nest boxes, recommends AGAINST the addition of perches or ledges to owl boxes, as such structures are helpful to predators such as Great Horned Owls. Here is their website:
<http://www.hungryowl.org/about.html>

You may refer to their specific pages concerning nest boxes.

Who is making all that noise? kids... and stuff.
What the heck..is it any way to end, it is so tough...
Oh well, I am signing off...and I thank al of you...
For making this journey...such a beautiful view...
I hear a heart beat all in the midst...
Perhaps it is the end of all of this...
Good night to all...and thank you so much...
We will all meet again...for another new clutch...

Carlos I hear you loud and clear
but hoping the owles are very near
I am having withdrawls from all of this
Perhaps I will go on, but never the less
Mheart is strained.... and I feel so drained...
In all hopes for the owls...to soon find their ways...
I wish to thank al of you...for all of our days...
I send our my heart...in ways to say thank you...
And now Carbs will soon pull the plug...from our view.
It's life, I know...a cycle of life, it's the art...
So why am I feeling so much pain in the heart
God Bless each and every one of you out there...

Back from a quick supper/dinner. Are we going to be treated to another neighborhood party tonight? Carlos's or the neighbor?? Might be treated with some more "salty" talk if it is the neighbor . Hope they know the world is listening. Just turned my sound up to see and that was a mistake - a big "hork" as someone cleared their throat. OK - I'll be good the rest of the evening.

The most recent Thank You Broadcast appears to have been recorded properly, except it includes 3 minutes without sound at the beginning, but that was true in the live version as well. 😊 So just don't be worried if you don't have sound and Donna is talking at the camera. They start over when they figure out the sound isn't working 😊

It is now posted to the wiki. Just look on the interview page for today's date: <http://mollyowlrbwvorks.com/interviews-and-backyard-tour>

Ellen did a special show about a watusi cow that lives about 3 miles fromme...he had the biggest horns for a watusi in the world and was so gentle....she made a special shed for him that his horns would fit thru and gave them lots of food and financial support...it was great....his name was Lurch and he just recently died from a cancer inside the base of one horn....

I totally get it that this has been a joy and a burden for the Royals, and I know there has to be a cut-off date. But has Carbs said why they can't leave the night camp up a few days more so we can see Wesleigh successfully move on? This feels so premature and awful. They been phenomenal, so I hate to suggest they do more. Just wondering why the camcan't run a few more days, even with them gone. If it goes down, it goes down. Just asking . . .

I think Wes has moved on, insofar as he/she has slept out of the box during the past 2 days. They've all been coming back for visits during the night, but for all intents and purpases, they have all moved on. Now, it's simply our turn to get on with our lives, just like they have now. Doesn't mean it's easy, but the time really has come.

Merritt,
One of most famous of all old time radio shows aired on October 30th, 1937. It was the "War of the Worlds." Orson Welles and writer Howard Koch converted the well known H.G. Wells story into a seemingly live broadcast. This episode of Mercury Theater terrified the nation into believing that the Martians were attacking Earth. When I did radio broadcasting in the 50s, it was banned from the radio. It remained so for many years (I think it was the 70s or 80s before PBS finally rebroadcast the production.)
The YouTube video below has the Shadow soundtrack performed by Orson Welles on the 1937 The Shadow radio show.
It struck me as a good addition to my name

Merritt
Thank you for that wonderful explanation! I've always heard about the "War of the Worlds" broadcast and how it scared everybody who heard it and thought it was real. I saw a re-enactment of it on stage at the McCarter Theatre in NJ in the 1980s. It was powerful even then.

We have a local radio station here in Pittsburgh that broadcasts all of the old radio shows. Nothing like hearing The Shadow, Inner Sanctum, Dragnet, etc. A lot are from 1933 and on. I must say The Shadow is one of my favorites.

Lots of that radio broadcast was supposed to be happening in Princeton, NJ where my father and his family lived at the time (and where Merritt went to college). Everyone in Princeton knew it was fiction because they knew the real people and places being discussed and my father's family was very surprised to find out the next day that anyone else thought it was real. Just an interesting tidbit to share. 😊

One of my instructors in broadcasting techniques had heard the broadcast and told us how good it was. Years later, when PBS radio rebroadcast the program from Baltimore, our local Christian music station overran it. I called up the local station. I was MAD! I threatened to get the FCC on them, etc. etc. A few minutes later, I could hear the Baltimore station. The Orson Welles broadcast was incredible.

No chiggers in Maine - but black flies and mosquitoes big enough and hungry enough to carry you off this time of year

Elliott

Chiggers! James - isn't that that horrible infestation you had where those tiny beasties burrowed under your skin, and laid their eggs all over your body?? That story really gave me nightmares!

Lynda C

I think it was Elliott who seemed to shudder and commented that he didn't think he would like the "boonies" when I commented once on living on 45 acres in a town of 900 people, with no close neighbors...

Elliott

Lynda, I pray I was never so gauche as to have said I would not like the "boonies", or to have referred to your habitat as the "boonies". I do leave the city on occasion, but I miss the din the moment I am out of it.

He doesn't 'mock' himself. He's among a group of birds called 'Mimic Thrushes.' He mimics other birds, and can also mimic things like car alarms, alarm docks, machinery and crossing-guard whistles (This last I discovered the hard way, when one kept whistling at me in the middle of the street and made me run back to the other side. I thought I was breaking some kind of law and was going to get 'busted' by a crossing guard - but I didn't see one anywhere! Happened to me two more times before I caught on. Needless to say, I was not amused!)

Go for it. The download only took a few seconds. I'm pretty sure you can uninstall it &/or change your default web browser again if you need to. I just did it 30 minutes ago and I can follow the chat more quickly, the screen hasn't frozen once.
So far I'm a happy camper. Just google . . . "Google Chrome Browser" and it will probably be the first link. I'm glad I did it!

Someone more knowledgeable should answer this but I don't think Chrome takes up a lot of space. When I downloaded it over a year ago I just left IE there and made Chrome my default browser. It worked just fine. Maybe it depends on how critical your memory situation is.

Kate I met some friends for lunch today that I normally don't see. One is a speech therapist who works with severely autistic children. I had sent her the link when the owlets started hatching. She told me today that she has used this site so often to calm a child who comes in her classroom stressed. She said 5 minutes watching the owls and they were calm enough for start their work. I'm going to send Carlos and Donna a note to let them know they have no idea the impact this has had around the world.

Have enjoyed having Carlos and Donna's home and family come into my home almost as much as the owls. I'm thinking of the many homes around the world with whom I've been linked through this experience. We so need this kind of generosity to give us hope in a world so often ruled by greed. Ah, "The Gods Must Be Crazy" and "Walkabout". Two movies many here probably aren't old enough to remember.

Wow... that is odd! Merritt is a monkey, Chris isn't yellow, and James is the smiley cloud! Natalie is the only one with the same avatar!!

For anyone who missed the My Way discussion before it slid into the basement, it's worth going back. Latrippi posted a link to the Sid Vicious version, which I had never seen. Check it out!!!

Gotta go now, I put clothes in the washer before 10 am and they are still there and are probably dry now without going into the dryer. Geezz this is so addicting

I will be back for the 6 pm show (if not sooner)
