Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

I hear lots of other birds on the tel aviv cam...just heard a parrot. Since it is at a university, maybe it is some kind of research facility. If it is that, I do wonder where they get their food. Mom is in the box. I also hear pigeons, and/or doves.

This nest box looks familiar to me - have we seen video of this site before? Anyone else remember that?
OK - one more question! Momhere looks much lighter and less spotted! We would have guessed she was a he, wouldn't we??

I have read that there are even regional differences between birds of the same species, Owlo, so I would imagine the same goes for international! Slight differences in markings, or in calls. Even our cardinals vary in their calls a tiny bit from region to region.

Hello everyone! The mood here has certainly changed as we all miss what has become part of our daily lives here in the Owl box. With that I thought I would bring you a chuckle. I have deaf dog that I run in agility and tonite was practice night. I was out chatting with another girl who also runs a deaf dog and we were discussing "behaviors issues" in said dogs and when I returned to retrieve my dog from the gal holding her there was a joke made about how I made need to floss her teeth to remove the remnants of the hair of a Westie that had a go with her...and it was all I could do not to chuckle (which is terrible and I was horrified!!) but the first thing I thought of was our Owl(ett) friends with the bunny feet sticking out of their mouths as they went down. Next thing I'm thinking is "Not to worry. it'd only be a day or two and the pelt would come up....it's all good" lol 😊 My apologies to our little Westie friend!

I used to interpret lots for Deaf kids in school and now caption for Hearing Impaired at a local college and high school. Deaf dog, Deaf kids ... sort of related ... a stretch? ... anyway ... your story made me chuckle.

Hi Meta.... I thought it was funny at the time although as I said I truly felt bad but it couldnt possibly appear sincere when I all I could see were bunny feet... lol As for the deaf kids/deaf dogs it's really not all that far of a stretch in the sense that using ASL has allowed us to communicate in another facet other than voice. I am ASL instructor and am thrilled to be able to work with both people and dogs....it is rewarding either way. 😊

Wow! I interpreted for many years but the fingers got a bit stiff and some things simply not as dear as needed to be so I did C-Print training. LOVE ASL and all aspects of it -- linguistically it is an amazing visual language!! I still try to keep up signing so as I don't lose it all.

Chris in Olympia, WA I love reading the English translation on the Dutch site. For single words it does fine, but the paragraphs are a mess. 😊 An example: Eagerly, the large field mouse by the "afterthought" We. the entrance of the esophagus is very elastic and large prey slides inside it costs more to provide the necessary energy. For one night, the young are sufficiently. The other boy also doing fine. But all the running with their heads in all directions (fixing bad behavior) to oate practicing with the distance estimate. The eldest boy started the feathers (primaries) to develop: the first part of the spring (shaft) is seen as a "brush brush". Today, 20:02:24 - Flag - Like - Reply

Sawwhet Well! I'm certainly glad that was made clear!!! LOL 😊 Today, 20:04:41 - Flag - Like - Reply

Kathryn R I like this one, about the "bowing." I think it's the screeching/hissing we hear: Once it gets dark, the boy started to blow. A sign that they are hungry. That goes all night. When the boy during the night are saturated, took the blow strongly. If one of the adult birds arrived with a mouse they begin to blow aloud. Even if the owl is still outside the box. Especially if the prey first evening was brought to penetrate. The "biggest loudmouth" (not always the oldest) usually gets the prey and protects the mouse with his (short) wings. That is not always good and sometimes there are pirates on the coast and try to grab the mouse. The young field mouse got that tonight could just avoid the mouse Today, 20:05:05 - Flag - Like - Reply

Kathryn R Darn, it got cut off. The last two sentences: The young field mouse got that tonight could just avoid the mouse snatched away by his littermate. They all look very healthy and vivid! Today, 20:07:36 - Flag - Like - Reply

 I'm really enjoying all the various night sounds there. Birds galore. Sounds like it's in an aviary somewhere. ...and no annoying bass thumping in the background. Maybe we should petition HF to place this Tel Aviv video in the main slot up top. He could move OBI to the lower position, just for old times sake. 😊

Just a note about some of the discussions taking place here tonight. Personally, I come here to stay away from all the political discourse and other polarizing issues out there in the world. If I want politics or argument, I can go back to Facebook or watch the talking heads on TV. And, since we are continuing to capture the conversations here for the Moly Wiki PDF's, I for one would really appreciate everyone NOT dragging such polarizing and confrontational subject into our little space. Save that mess for other places. Otherwise I see no need in continuing to capture the conversation.

Here is what Carlos had to say on his blog today: Dudley is Still Missing
Donna and I sat on the patio last night after signing off and really expected to see the owlets flying around but they never showed up. Just to make sure I stayed up to 1 AM. Moly and McGee came back checked to make sure the box was empty and they left too. Who knows they may come back but for now the box is empty.

I checked the empty owl box today for Dudley and he was no where to be found. I also removed the gag shag just incase he was hiding. By the way I removed 10 to 15 pounds of gag shag. It was over 3 inches thick in places and yes it smelled. It has kind of a sour smell, which makes sense since it is regurgitated stomach acid, fur and bones.

Chris, (My browser got hung so I have to use this account but it is I)
I don't fully know my schedule but if I can get replies on who is interested then we can talk about timing a bit closer to the event. It's still 5-6 weeks out. My family will go early and picnic because we have young children and we are unlikely to stay until 11pm because our oldest leaves the next day on a trip so the real question is do we meet and eat and then go to the event or just meet at the event at a set time and spot.

See if this URL will open for you in WMP - <http://video.tau.ac.il/General/birds/2010/index.asx>
(Note that is NOT a webpage URL, it's the URL for the actual video. It's the one you put into the Chrome Video Monitor Extension, also.)

I sort of thought he would. He said earlier that he wouldn't clean it out, but no harm in removing a few layers of "stuff" which would just be breeding grounds for magnets, files, etc. I suspect "Dudley" may have disintegrated in there with all the stomping, "football" playing, etc.

I participated in the 19... Women's ... -way free-fall formation skydiving world record, held in ... city.

That would be I think 1991. (earlier I might have said 93 but I think it was 91). It was in New York, at Blue Sky Ranch in Gardner. Does that help? We didn't make the world record, we only held the 200-way for about 2 seconds and we needed 3 seconds!!!!

It was pretty cool being a part of it. I ended up getting the stomach flu there (as well as about 30 other women) so I didn't get to jump on the last day of attempts, but they never ended up making the record. I have a large blown up photograph tucked away somewhere in my closet of it by Mike McGowan. I used to write for Skydiving Magazine for five years when I lived in DeLand (under my maiden name). I helped publish two books, too. One called The Parachute Pages and the other one about Freestyle Skydiving by Dale Stuart. I also got third place in the World Freestyle Championships, that was maybe in 1992? It's all fuzzy to me now, I would have to dig out my medals.

OK, that's my previous life. I'm just a boring software business analyst now.

Donna and I sat on the patio last night after signing off and really expected to see the owlets flying around but they never showed up. Just to make sure I stayed up to 1 AM. Moly and McGee came back checked to make sure the box was empty and they left too. Who knows they may come back but for now the box is empty.

I checked the empty owl box today for Dudley and he was no where to be found. I also removed the gag shag just incase he was hiding. By the way I removed 10 to 15 pounds of fur shag. It was over 3 inches thick in places and yes it smelled. It has kind of a sour smell, which makes sense since it is regurgitated stomach acid, fat and bones.

I don't think they have had time to "digest" it yet. Then it will take a few years for it to make it into their journals. They will study it and study it for what's "normal" and what is "aberrant" behavior. Then they will publish it as "new" findings when we "knew" it all along 😊

It has also been so much fun reading this chat room. It is wonderful to know so many nice people. Wish we could find another web site to watch as a group but I am afraid that Carls & Donna's owl box with Molly & McGee was a very unique experience.

Lucky, his and progressives like him never let a major crisis go to waste, they have one agenda only and that is moving us towards socialism more big government bureaucracy. He should of met with the CEO of BP on the first or second day of this mess. The leak should be stopped, period. People who can do it are not being called back, many companies and people who have dealt with this problem are not having their calls returned. Our federal government is very dysfunctional period. We can notify our representatives, locally, state wide, and federaly and tell them we are not happy with what is going on. He is going to push his cap and trade agenda through with more bureaucracy and government controls that are going to drive up energy costs, stifle innovation and growth ...

The EPA has been blocking many different ways of soaking up this mess and preventing it from coming inland. We the people need to take back our government and country. Don't listen to 'mainstream news' get the facts they are pushing the progressive (who are actually repressive and suppressive in all that they say and do) liberal social justice agenda. Let your voices be heard, and then in November vote the problems of our government out of office and replace them with ones who will use the U.S. Constitution as the guidelines to govern in the peoples' seat, we are a nation of laws that are not being enforced all across the nation and the biggest lawbreakers are in leadership roles in our government. Our country is going bankrupt because of all the spending policies that have been put in place since the 110th Congress leadership was put in place in 2007...

BP and the other major oil corps have spent a tiny fraction of their funds on safety and worse case scenarios, instead spending much more on public relations. None of these oil guys know what to do, because they never invested in more than drilling technology, the skimmers and booms and old school technology they are using for cleanup is decades old, and they can't plug their own hole in the ocean. They never tested. They installed no gauges, and so it just blows and blows and BP issues false estimates over and over 😞 😞

Hmmm, the blue box status sounds just a little too convenient. So ALL of the owls and owlets decided to move onto greener pastures the EXACT same day Donna & Carlos did? Sounds more like Carlos just didn't want to continue fielding request for updates. Can't blame him; he and Donna gave us all so much joy for the last 4 months, but what a lot of work for them. I just don't believe that ALL of the owls are gone. Or maybe I just don't want to believe it.

I do wish since he took us on this great adventure that there would be a periodic update (if any) to let us know how they are doing. All he would need to do is post it on a bbg. I agree, it was a lot of work for them, more than they anticipated, but a simple post now and then would be greatly appreciated. I know, I'm experiencing empty nest, I just need to move on.

There is nothing at all wrong with wanting to see more. I'm sad as anyone else that the Molly/McGee experience is over. I would be so joyful to see that camera on the owl box again tonight and for many more nights to come. And I'm as hopeful as everyone else that we might be fortunate enough to have a sequel to that experience at another time, hopefully in the same nest box. I guess I'm just trying to temper my own wishes with what the Royals need right now and be thankful for all they did.

Hi y'owl, I'm just here for a minute, going out to eat with my husband for his birthday. We're going to a little restaurant by a river, and hopefully will get a table on the porch outside. I just enjoyed reading the posts. I'll be back tonight, looking forward to it.

Here's my take on the situation:
I think McGee led them off to roost somewhere farther from the owl box because he and Mollie were starting a new brood.
I also feel that after they were chased away from the box by McGee Sunday night that they instinctually knew to stay away.

All part of a delicate balance of maintaining peace while competing for resources.

I think the post in the "blue box" is probably from a moderator. I don't think Carbs would be giving us a "teaser" of running commentary each day. He wanted to end the play when he did. My comment from earlier today - IMHO - the owls are still in the area and probably often in the palm tree. Some of them may be ending farther afield, but they "aint" gone yet. Max and Pat Ison - yeah, maybe. Austin and Wesley. I think they are still sticking close to the "Royal Palace". And, Molly and McGee - after what we all saw the other night, I think they aren't far away, either. As to whether they will nest there again, it's anyone's guess. I rather think they might, but not for a while. Remember - one bonding/mating does not always mean babies or baby owls either 😊

I think that perhaps Carlos didn't see the owlets, maybe on purpose, maybe not. We'll never know. But Carbs may (and this is strictly speculation) think that we will "mean" easier if the owlets are completely gone. Plus, if he went out and dismantled the ladder and the cam at about the time they would be starting to come around, they would be chased off. I think that both Doma and Carlos, as much fun as this was, are still very high the box! It has totally consumed their lives for 4 months. Remember, we might be suffering withdrawal, but I'll bet they aren't. And they still have a good life!

Evening y'owl! I saw conversations starting up about this the last time I was able to peek at the web while I was at work. We will never know, but Carlos strikes me as a pretty honest guy. And as wonderful as this experience has been for us, it's been a lot of work for them, round the clock, for the past four months. They deserve a break, and if this was Carlos's way of "disconnecting" from doing constant updates of the owlets and their whereabouts instead of the truth, I don't hold it against him at all. If time, distance and relaxation allows him to get back to a place where he's ready for a sequel, I'll be happy, but still don't think the magic of this can be captured again, if that makes any sense.

Did Carlos say the owlets did not return to the box and the tree was empty? (when?) If he did, well, I am not there but watching the owlets behaviours and certainly am not disrespecting CR, but I'm pretty certain Wesley came back to the box. His Older Siblings did. I'm sure the Royals want their private lives back and the "ending" allowed that I know corny but that is picture in my head.* Which gave me the idea for us to share a personal glimpses into our LBMOD [Live before MOD]. All but two of the images below are self-portraits. The first two are from my favorite place in the world, the Blue Ridge Mts. in NC. The Blue photo was from my skydiving days, a part of my life that will always be remembered fondly. The cabin is where I call home. The last two are just me, being me. 😊

The story behind the first two is that I arrived very early in the morning to photograph the awesome view of Table Top Mountain, which is normally visible from his overlook. I found the area soaked in by fog upon arrival. The overlook drops off some 500ft into the valley below. Normally I would have been upset, but on this morning I just stood there listening to all the invisible happenings, wondering what life would be like if we couldn't see beyond about 20 feet. That inspired me to try and capture that feeling. Not sure if ever worked for others but me. For me it brought to light just how precious our vision really is.

James - just broke away from the torture of a phone call to see you've left already, but wanted to comment on your wonderful atmospheric photos, especially your cabin in the dark. It's enchanting; it says, "I am here for you; I am your refuge and your delight; I am your creation and yet I create you." Well, that's what it seems to me that it's saying, anyway!

Your description of the two self-portraits on the overlook brings to mind something striking to my memory: I lived with my father for the last four years of his life; a period that was one of the greatest gifts I've ever been given. He was losing his eyesight due to nuclear degeneration and cataract-related problems, and as he was a photographer most of his adult life, it was a crushing blow to him.

In my frantic efforts to try to understand what was happening to him, I researched eye diseases and finally found several organizations which published pictures of how the world looks to people that have the various diseases. The photos I found that reflected the then-current stage of my father's vision loss looked almost exactly like these two self-portraits of yours, with one difference, a small, jagged-edged black hole in the center where his central vision was gone. It's interesting; the instant I saw those pictures that entire experience struck into my mind.

James - fab shots! Your home is a palace! Have spent a lot of time in WY, in a log cabin, about 10x20ft, running water & 'facilities' about 200ft away -- but wildlife all around, complete with bears trying to break in... Great Grey owls landing 15 ft away, blue grouse objecting to dishwashing on the porch, pine martens, otters, eagles, goshawks - and indescribable sunsets & sunrises over the Tetons

Just had a look on the website - they put the box up a few years ago - and Bob moved in there in 2008 he was alone until this year when Brenda turned up. I assume the pellets are from him - I didn't see this camera pre-eggs but I would imagine that Brenda has spent some time breaking the pellets up for the nest.

Just for info this is the picture of where the nest box is - small hole at top of building!

Elliott posted the link to the videos. Someone asked about their Dudley. Go to the site, one of the videos is called "GOALLI" Play video 😊 -- BTW, scroll down all the way and play the videos in chrono order. Poor steenuils have to contend with competition - a dove is attempting to nest in their 'hallway', and neither party wants to be neighbors. One way doves fight is to whack their opponent with a wing, swung sideways (I see it at my feeders all the time). I won't spoil the surprise 😊....there are bat tles! there are marauders! I adore these spunky little owls!! The 'owner's' of the box are collecting data: they weigh the owlets, the Dudleys, the stash of rodents, etc. Love that site!

By the way, I researched "Steenul" last night (which clearly translates as "stone owl", just as Kerkul translates as "church owl"), but the species is "Little Owl". "Little" is not a commentary on the size; that is the name of the species.

Right, Elliott. We don't have them in the US, but we do have a close relative, the burrowing owl. Both are in the genus Athene. BTW, in German the barn owl is called the Veiled Owl (Schleiereule). Love that name.

I didn't see any tall grass, Natalie 😊 - besties, it's easier for those baby turkeys to hide in. I've heard our turkeys up in the woods, but not on our lawn at all this Spring. Last year, I was driving out our long driveway when a mother with 10 to 15 fluffy baby chicks ran across right in front of me. I thought surely I may have hit one or two of the last little ones, so stopped and got out. All babies were fine and had flattened themselves in a "face plant" on the grass. Mother was up a slight knoll into the woods and clucking - probably telling them to "by low and keep quiet".

I really don't know, Elliott. But after they were here yesterday, I did put out some cracked corn and I'll continue to do that as long as they hang around. They are already more tolerant of seeing me--the chicks are not shy at all--so I'm hoping they'll continue to feel comfortable here. The Watershed Association headquarters are just across the street, and I think that's where they're coming from.

 I was at North Chagrin Reservation today (where I saw the Buzzard pictured below) and asked about the owls. The education building has been re-done in the last couple years so we are in for a treat. They have screech owls, a barred owl and a horned owl and new flying squirrels that are beginning to come out when people are around. The EarthWords Shop will be open and making t-shirts during the event. There will be a carnival atmosphere for this event.

Nature at Night, July 24, 2010 : 5pm-11pm North Chagrin Nature Center. There are nice picnic facilities very close by with grills and swings and we enjoyed our lunch there today. I will have a bag that looks just like the one below.

 That was the idea, use this event and just have a meet-up. I don't think that picnic area can be reserved unless we want the whole pavilion (I don't). There is wetland out there and we saw the wood ducks and other creatures. There is also a beaver lodge but we didn't go to that side to see if they were out--not usual during the day.

 If you come up with all the details, we can set up an "event" at the Facebook SPO-MOD site and I have a contact with the yahoo support group if you want to send the info there, and you can post the info intermittently here (Just change the wording a bit each time to avoid the spambot). Go for it!!

KBorlando (aka Owlosaurus) Try it, Connie. I'm sure you'll love it. I used Firefox for years but changed to Chrome about 6 or 7 months ago. Fast, smooth, no crashing, and no hanging up. Really. I like everything about it. It's free and if you don't like it you can go back to your old browser. You don't have to uninstall anything and can switch back and forth, using IE or FF for some applications but if you aren't doing that you probably won't need to switch. All your favorite sites will be copied over so you don't lose anything. And it's about as safe as any application you can find. Google has great products and very, very secure. lyn I agree. I keep checking - for what? I don't know. This is the first time I got involved in any type of chat. I almost wished I didn't do it. I wouldn't be sad. It's probably selfish of me to say this, but I wish Carlos could have left the cam running. He could have done it without monitoring it so much. I understand it was time consuming for him and his family. There are many cams out there without the constant monitoring. That way we could just watch what was happening, and maybe just once in a while someone could have updated us if there was anything "newsworthy". It was like an all or nothing. There are things in between. Sorry for the long post. Today, 13:03:40 - Flag - Like - Reply Liked by Kathryn R Mary Carroll (the Shadow)

there's also a Facebook group for SPO-MOD <http://www.facebook.com/#!/group.php?gid=123336804373016> (hope that works) where the discussions won't disappear into the "basement" (I think I just searched groups for Molly Royal or Molly barn owl and found it.) Carlos spoke for maybe 7 minutes - I don't know if the whole thing is captured on the video offerings on the screen, I should probably check. Carlos is taking it one day at a time, but doesn't think he'll set the cameras back up. (I think he could do it with no interaction, just throw them up there like the several other feed cams on SPO, but we'll see.)

We have been concerned re Owlets since they were chased away from owl box, esp. the one (Austin or Wes?) that was chased from the roof! Do any of you think Molly or McGee actually chased Owlets from palm tree?! A terrible thought; however was so shocked at seeing the owlets being chased from their "playground"! You've probably already discussed this today, but I only have a couple minutes before a late day meeting. Do we really believe the statement about all the owls leaving the area, including the palm tree, or do we think this is just a way for Carbs to keep people from trying to break into their gated community while they are on vacation? It just seems WAY too convenient, doesn't it? I know it doesn't matter and we'll never know, but inquiring minds want to know!

Hi Kate! It does seem a remarkable coincidence - but then if I hadn't seen Molly and McGee with my own eyes the previous night I probably wouldn't have believed that either!!! I still reckon they may have been around last night - and some of them may even be in the palm tree - Carbs did say once before that you of ten can't see them because they get right into the middle of it - and as no one is watching the cameras 24/7 any more then he wouldn't actually know

IMHO - the owls are still in the area and probably often in the palm tree. Some of them may be ranging farther afield, but they "airlit" gone yet. Max and Pattison - yeah, maybe. Austin and Wesley, I think they are still sticking close to the "Royal Palace". And, Molly and McGee - after what we all saw the other night, I think they aren't far away, either. As to whether they will nest the rojal, it's anyone's guess. I rather think they might, but not for a while. Remember - one bonding/mating does not always mean babies or baby owls either 😊

I believe that they are still where they are, if you go and read some of the posts at Mollysbox bbg, I can see why Carlos made that statement. People really need to let it go and perhaps get a bird box or nesting area in their yard and enjoy their wee adventure watching a family be created, grow up and leave to their next adventure and journey in life. In my household we have watched this happen over and over through out the years, we even have one of our own with one foot out and one foot in the nest. 😊 My final thought here ...

"Gee that was FUN!! And we were ALL a PART of IT!" 😊

Funny to think about it ALL, I am much more interested in what Eric, Chris and Vacadude are thinking! LOL- Would of LOVEd to have been a Fly on their walls, this SUNDAYMONDAY when we ALL realized what the heck was going on in that OWL Box! 😊

I've pondered this question quite a bit since first reading the blue box this morning. And I keep coming back to the same thought. Imagine if Carbs would have said, "Molly and McGee were back in the owl box last night... mating is definitely going on." Can you imagine what would have happened? Poor Carbs and Donna would have never heard the end of it - emails, letters...maybe even TV stations would be begging him for access, information - or at least quite daily updates. Carlos is a very wise man. I guess you could say he's as wise as an owl. 😊

CAR, I see it - on the far right side of front page of Wiki, about 1/2 way down, under "Recent Activity" there's a document called Sleep-Talking Hubby and Other Horks, by... - is that what you're looking for? (I've been jumping on & off all day from work.)

Cheryl CAR, are you still here? (Hi, everyone.) I went to the wiki and see that you added Sleep Talkin' Hubby in the Poetry folder and now you need a link on the front page. Are you sure you want it in the Poetry folder? I'm thinking we need a Memoir folder just for you!

MOLLIE!!!! That's what I was just asking James! I couldn't figure out what I did with the wiki after I created it! I would LOVE to have it in a memoir or other folder! That would be FABULOUS!!!! I also put a pic of hubby on this site. I can't post one on the wiki, so if you want his "pic", let me know!
I LUF you!!!! 😊 (and apparently, I love exclamation points, too...)

I like Legends, myself, cause that's what Hubby is now! But I'm not sure people will know to look down that far. Hmmmm, what to do what do do. I'm also going to fix the link at the top of the page; you linked back to the sign in page by accident. Let me think about this a minute as I fix the link and then I'll come back. Tell me your prefs: Legends, Memoir (we could have a whole nother class of pages if other people have Molly-related stories!), or stay in Poetry. You could always say they're prose poems....

I haven't posted very much but felt the need to today to express my sadness at the sight being down. I've watched the four babies from the beginning and became very attached. They were the first thing I checked on each morning and the last thing each night. The last night we got to watch them, the night Molly and McGee bonded again. I was up until 4am and had to get up for work at 5:30 am. I am still going to the sight expecting them to be there. I was most worried about Wesley but I guess since they are all gone, Molly is taking care of him. I've enjoyed reading all your posts and listening to Carlos. Thanks to every one for making this one fantastic experience! I will be checking out Facebook regularly and hope to see some of you there.

In the magic blue box at the top of the black screen, it says that they did not return last night and that they are not in the palm tree. Of course, there are some of us in both chat rooms who feel that that is just part of the neverending fairy tale. Unless they all left after the earthquake that hit southern Cal last night. 😊

I didn't know there was an earthquake in southern California. Where was it located? I have heard that animals have a 6th sense. Maybe the owls and owl's knew in advance it was going to strike. Are you feeling that emptiness that I'm feeling?

Scary story with happy ending: About the time I signed off in the wee hours I heard a noise downstairs that sounded like the kitchen door to the garage opening and closing softly. My computer is upstairs in a nook at the end of a wide hall over looking the LR/DR which has cathedral ceiling. I knew from outside door was locked, but never lock the door to garage when gar. door is down. Hubby was saying "zzzzz" and I freaked out for a minute. The kitchen light was on and waited to see if I heard any more or saw a shadow on the LR carpet. The chat was still open on my "puter" & I seriously thought about asking someone to call 911. Finally decided my ears/brain were playing tricks and probably only a "night" noise outside or maybe something fell over in the garage. But, you know what, it was comforting to know that if I HAD needed you, you would have been there!!!

Glad all was OK. Yeah those night noises. They don't usually bother me, but once the ice maker in the refrigerator make a racket in the middle of the night and I did call 911 and had them come check things out. My husband was on a business trip and I just set off our alarm (scared if she hurt or half to death) and the security company called. They said I did the right thing. It wasn't until 2 weeks later that I figured out what the sound probably was. 😊

So you know how "sumpin small" can turn into "sumpin BIG" when our mind starts playing tricks on us!! It's very rural here. No street lights so it is pitch black at night. My nearest neighbor is about 3/10 mile away, I'm surrounded on 3 sides by a forest and you could walk at least 3 miles outside our house until you come to a road (which is only an old logging road/snowmobile trail), and another 3 miles beyond that to any habitation: the house sits back a ways from a 2 lane country road with very little traffic and across the street is a small river and at least another 3 miles in that direction thru the woods until you would come to any habitation. Yet, I'm seldom afraid to be alone here.

Just wanted to update something that did happen last night. On the other chat room, (the stream had slowed down enough that I could actually catch some of the conversation) Carlos, around midnight PDT, said that the owlets had not come back, but that Molly & McGee had checked out the box: but it was now empty. We really don't know what happened after that, as Cheryl pointed out the activity level was usually later.

I thought I saw someone post that this morning - to be honest I wouldn't expect Molly and McGee to actually move back in for at least another couple of weeks yet - little Wesley still had some way to go before she would have been hunting independently - but it still be surprised if she had't been anywhere near the box last night - still an incredible ending though - and I just can't get over seeing Molly and McGee on the final night!!!

I have been reading the posts below, and love knowing that I am not alone in constantly returning to this site. It is such a huge part of my life that I just can't let go yet. It does help to know that the owls moved out of the palm tree to go closer to the hunting grounds. Hopefully, Molly and McGee will continue to care for them until they are quite capable of being independent. I could not stand thinking that they were in Carlos' back yard and we wouldn't just check on them. It is amazing that the timing was so perfect. Meanwhile, I am glad this site is still up, and those of you who are posting are helping with the shock of withdrawal!

Good afternoon 😊 . Glad to see I wasn't the only one to sleep in this morning. I think it was after 3:00 a.m.EDT when I turned in. Did a quick check here this morning, went to FB to try to figure out what to do there, but managed to find my way around and tried to revamp my settings so I don't get as many emails after I reply or add a post (don't get me wrong, I love to hear from you folks but don't need an email update 😊 😊 ).

Damn this 1000 character thing!! - - - I've spent a little time working in the yard and decided to leave the rest for a full day tomorrow. I've "dumped" most of about 30 pages of "stuff" that I saved in Word from the chat room (very old links and videos I had saved to check on later; some more links, haikus and poems that I saved, but now on the wiki, and a couple of heated discussion with people from "the dark side" (no idea why I saved them now). And, I deaned out a lot of "Favorites" that I had saved "just because". So, I guess I can tell myself that I DID clean house a little today 😊

I'm not sure Carlos knows that for sure - or whether they have been round the owl box - unless he's been up all night!!! Most of the night time ad on used to start about an hour after I got up in the morning which would have been around midnight California time and then it was always pretty busy around 3 - 4am California time - without having the cameras and people watching 24/7 then there's not really any way of knowing for sure. I'd be very surprised if they hadn't turned up at all last night

I think the palm tree was an "interim" spot until they were all big enough to move to a place that was a little less domesticated than someone's backyard. It was a transition from the owl box. It is so cool to see how nature works with baby steps and moving at the pace of the slowest in this case (Wesley) due to her later birth. I just believe that Molly and McGee continue to nurture and teach her what she needs to know.

I've come to discover that it's not the owls I'm mourning. It's not Carlos or that stupid carrot. It's not the Molly song playing over... and over... and over. It's not the prose or the wit of the chat. Nope. None of these things. I'm mourning the fact that I really have no more excuses for not cleaning my house. *sigh*

I went to ease the first sign in name I haven't used in years. Now, I can't open any of my emails and go back and start to work. Back to the same problem as my old computer... except I get close enough to see the emails, but can't open. The screen goes blank and nothing. So I hit Favorites... and Whaaa laaaaa... OK, so I checked in this morning, felt bad, decided to go cold turkey, now am back. Somehow I tree the owl box to be there. I was really glad to read the note from C&D that the owls are no longer in the palm tree. I think it was the thought that they were in the tree and I couldn't see them that was bothering me. Now that they've gone it's like they've given me permission to go to. To imagine them soaring all over the area, what a great picture. Well, I never thought I'd join FB but after visiting the site I think I might. Chris, I'm over on the Olympic Peninsula but am trying to think about getting to the Zoo. If I can I'll let you know.

I know I said the PDF from last night would be the final one, and in a way it was, but today I feel an epilogue is being written by those returning to leave their farewells and thank yous. I will capture a couple more PDFs this week to upload to the wiki. That should give everyone time to carefully consider their words (1000 characters at a time) to leave here on the good ole SPO pages. I am about to make one now going back to my sign-off last night and I will return to make a couple more through the week. The last page in the Epilogue will probably be captured on Friday. So plan your last words if you like, or just continue chatting as if nothing had changed, it's all good.

Thanks, James! It was an odd night last night, and I didn't have the "right" energy to write much of anything at all. I'm sure I'm not alone. Plus the chat was a bit crazy so it seemed kinda futile. This is like the big party that you throw...all of your casual acquaintances come, have a great time, and then say goodnight. Then the "core" group of friends sit around for a couple more cocktails ruminating on the events of the day. I always like that part of the party. 😊

Hopefully someone still has a haiku or two left. 😊

Mer is fine. We started another taper of the Prednisone yesterday for 2 weeks. Thanks for asking!

Purdy Becky I slept in too, so don't let that tiggermo get you down (tee hee). I am glad to see a representation of the Washington contingent here. I really AM going upstairs for breakfast now. Love, Kathleen Does anyone know if Carlos was going to take down the owl box? If he doesn't, it might be occupied again. 😊

My understanding is that it stays up...."Unless the Smithsonian (sorry for the spelling) wants it!" (heard Donna say that in the background during one of his last talks 😊)

Click on the word "Comments" under any set of photos. A form opens up for you to Comment. 😊
