Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here

The screenshot shows a Ustream video player interface. The main video area displays a barn owl perched on the edge of a nest box. To the left, there is a 'Related videos' section with a list of video thumbnails and titles, including 'The Owl Box 06/17/10 03:52PM', 'Molly from Tape Feb 9th', and 'Early video of Molly'. Below the video player, there are navigation controls like 'SLIDESHOW' and 'Off Air'. At the bottom, there are subscription links: 'Subscribe: RSS Comment Feed', 'Subscribe: Cam Updates By Email', and 'More Live Wildlife Cams'.

Hi! Just saw the note the Starr Ranch owlets are hatching. I jumped on that page to see the peeping and wiggling of the mama's fuzzy feathers moving. Imagine what it is like to be an owlet hatching under all those cozy, warm feathers and seeing nothing but this. Then peeking your head out and seeing mama for the first time! 😊

Hi Lynda: am trying to post a reply to your listing of all the good owl sites, but every time I try not only does my post disappear, but so does your original! Will try a new post (i.e., not a reply). The translators made an error when the called the steenuil a screech owl. They are not even in the same genus - steenuil is Athene, screech owl is Otus. They would have been closer to the truth if they had translated it as burrowing owl (=another Athene).

The various sites are broadcasting different types of video files, it's likely that your computer just doesn't have the proper plugin for those particular cameras. Some sites require the use of plugins for your web browser:

Flash - <http://get.adobe.com/flashplayer/>
Quicktime - <http://www.apple.com/quicktime/download/>
Windows Media Files - <http://www.microsoft.com/windows/windowsmedia/download/AllDownloads.aspx>

Lynn, it's very easy, if you belong to Facebook. First, you 'friend' each other, and then you can communicate with each other using the 'Messages' feature. That's private, just between you and the other person, and when you receive a facebook message, a notification is sent to your e-mail in-box.

Click on your grey, faceless avatar in the upper left. Then select from the options listed. Uploading from your PC is easy but the image must be a small one to work. If you only see a spinning circle for several seconds after selecting the image, then it's too big. Images about 200 x 200 pixels work best, it will resize images automatically, if they are under a certain size limit. I just don't know what that limit is.

It's important to know, too, that the Tel Aviv owls are a different species or subspecies of barn owls. From the lit here <http://www.barnowlbox.com/barn-owl-around-the-world.htm> they are a species of African barn owls - probably the Erianger's barn owl. Because of their differing habitat, climate and natural evolution the different species and subspecies will look different. That being said, they DO look undernourished, scruffy and overheated to us compared to the barn owls we are used to; but they seem to be eating well and handling the heat OK.

Today, 07:05:16 - Flag - Like - Reply

Kate, are you referring to the way she pecks at the floor? If so, Molly used to do that too. I've noticed the Star Ranch mom doing it a lot. I believe it has something to do with grooming the floor material. Someone else proposed the same theory here yesterday or the day before.
Today, 07:10:31 - Flag - Like - Reply

That makes sense - the behavior is similar but seems much more frenetic. I remember Molly constantly grooming the floor to keep it fluffy and nice which was not something the kids did after she left! LOL

Do we need to contribute? and... when I back out to here by using the back arrow, does that break with the site?
I think it does, but Pete seemed so bummed over expenses that I wanted to make sure...anyone know?

I think a contribution is a voluntary, personal choice, Candance. You don't have to contribute in order to watch the Audubon Star Ranch web cams (there are others - hummingbird and flycatcher), but the barn owl cam is particularly expensive because of the expense of the bandwidth. You can read Pete's explanation to the left of the video and decide if it's a cause you want to support.
Today, 07:03:58 - Flag - Like - Reply

JH (Post Pondering)
Yes, using the back arrow to navigate away from the Starr Ranch site will stop the video feed from there, which stops the video from playing. So once you've navigated away from his site you are no longer costing Pete bandwidth. Same holds true if you leave his webpage open for an extended period and the video automatically times out. If the video is not active and playing, you are not costing him bandwidth fees.

The fact that you can go right back to the page/video via a bookmark link or with the forward arrow is simply a handy feature of your web browser, the browser keeps the page in memory for fast retrieval, but it is not always running in the background.

What would keep the video running is if you had his page open in another tab/window, hidden behind others, while you were reading/watching another site.

I think the little guy at the TA box isnt going to make it....kind of passed out on the floor, mom staring at it and sibling pulling on his leg!!! it seems inhumane for them to be so hot!

KBorlando (It's ME: Owlosaurus!)
Are you sure it wasn't the typical 'barn owl face plant' that they do so often? It is hot there but these owls are native to the area and no one forced them to use this box. There are thousands of barn owls in that part of the world so they deal with the heat. Seeing them panting is no different than seeing a dog panting when it's warm. I think they'll be OK.

They call it crab imperial, but I've never had it quite the same when I've ordered it anywhere else, or tried making it myself. I wish I could figure out what goes in the "sauce" on top. It's custardy and fluffy, but has a mayonnaise flavor to it.

Oh I found another site !!! I'm really sorry to tell you that there is an osprey nest at the Scottish Wildlife Trust.
<http://www.swf.org.uk> And on top of that there has been major drama attached to this nest the last 4-5 days.
The mum has taken ill, the Laird (dad) has had to step up and take care of the chicks and if you go read the blog back to Friday it will fill you in. I don't even know how I got to this site, but I have just spent the last 35 minutes catching up.

I just went there and this is the update:
22 June 2010
3pm update
Our mum continues to do well today, feeding her chicks and herself. There have been 6 (I think) fish brought by the Laird today and he seems happy to leave mum to do all the feeding once more. Can he sense that his mate has recovered?
As happy as we all are at the improvements she has made, we know that she is still no where near 100% and probably will never be again. Hopefully she can regain some of the body mass she has lost to keep her going for the next few weeks. If her episode was caused by an illness then there is a possibility that she may relapse, but I am staying positive that she will see her chicks fly and then she can rest easy. I think that regardless of what happens, this will be her final summer on the nest, but what a season she has given us!

I was the Cook/Welder on the boat. That was up in Dutch Harbor in 1979. My first year and the biggest season in King Crab history. I was moving the davit away from the launcher by a foot. It was one foot away from the laucher and very dangerous. If her episode was caused by an illness then there is a possibility that she may relapse, but I am staying positive that she will see her chicks fly and then she can rest easy. I think that regardless of what happens, this will be her final summer on the nest, but what a season she has given us!

Kathleen, just was looking for your new youtube video but couldn't find it. Did watch your newest dialysis video. Wow! You do have a great attitude! My Mother-in-law had to have 2 dialysis treatments after an angioplasty because the contrast dye shut down her kidneys. They started up again after the two treatments so she didn't have to have more. Anyway, I sat with her for part of the one time and my husband did the other, so we saw much of the procedure.

Barb Polo (orionsstorm) Me thinks the man protests too much!!!! From a business standpoint, he really has to keep expanding to those people who have not had the honor that we had with Molly & McGee. If you create a brand, you have to work very hard to keep it going. Even though Carlos & Donna had their lives put on hold, along with their use of their dining room; I think they totally enjoyed watching the Owl Box. Who wouldn't be curious as to what may happen next. Let's hope that they chose to share with us. WallyRussell Hi Purdy Becky! I am just in for a quick peek and then back out again. Tomorrow we go to the beach in Hansville, WA for a birthday party, although we just started and finished summer today. Hubby and I spent several hours making a funny Lady Goo video as a video reply to the troops in Afghanistan that did the Telephone Remake. Don't know if I'm brave enough to put in on here. WallyRussell Thanks for the confidence, Kathryn. I meant "funny" in that it's me, not that it's comedy. (well, then again, it is me). I did it seriously and I did my best; I like dance for exercise and it makes me happy. My intention was to thank the troops for how much they inspired me, to have fun, and maybe inspire others to JUST DANCE TO THE JOY OF LIFE. It's good for us. Bill, I have many hours of David collected from "online sources" since we don't have the privilege of seeing most of his broadcasts here. If I could, I would subscribe to the various BBC channels even though I haven't had a US cable subscription for many years. Too bad even the US version of the BBC films get butchered and re-narrated. Our local PBS station has been showing some of his catalog, however.

Becky, I was just coming back here to post about the Deadliest Catch... I love that show. I was on Cornelia Maries FB... lots of sad people who have already seen it tonight. When Capt Phil had his first stroke.. I took information about Juice Plus+ to the SeaStar at the Warf and tried to get them to give it him. I am worried about the rest of them. I crab fished up there and know that they will not change their lifestyles... but adding JP+ would bridge the nutritional gap and reduce their risks. It's already on... new show at 9 pm. Better get another box of Kleenex!

I love watching After the Catch. I use to go to some of the bars that they film in. It was pretty wild in the old days... The Elbow Room in Dutch Harbor was a crazy place. 1 of the Top 10 toughest bars in the country. The last time I was in there... there were 3 dogs in there. It had dirt floors and I was throwing a stick across the bar and against the wall... the dogs were running back and forth. No one even cared... most of the time there were fights going on.

It should be noted that we are not the only strange, non-hunting, non-fishing tweets that HF tweets. They use a #fishynews hashtag that has baseball tweets and other weird stuff that has fish in the headline but not really about real animals.
