Live Barn Owl Nest Box Cam - San Marcos, CA

This is a live feed of a wild female barn owl named Molly. The owl box is located 15 feet off the ground. The male (McGee) has a white chest and face. He usually shows up after dark but has spent an entire day with the female. For more information about the owls and this cam. Click Here Click Here to "Like" us on Facebook.

Natalie Elliott, as a matter of possible interest to you, here is something about turkeys and flying from an old set of books that my husband Jim has by Arthur Cleveland Bent of Taunton, MA. I wouldn't be surprised if our Jan has these books also.

"The turkey's ordinary method of locomotion is walking or running; the long powerful legs enable these birds to travel long distances and very rapidly on foot. But they are also strong fliers when hard pressed or when necessity requires it., and can fly for a considerable distance or even across wide rivers."

Natalie I zesty! Last Sunday, two hens and 10 chicks roosted in the trees right next to our house...they were about 80 feet up! Even the chicks could fly up there. Here are a couple photos I got, in case you didn't see them before:

Natalie tigermo, I just saw your photos below--wow!--what an adventure that must have been! The King crab looks nearly as big as you!

tigermo Sig Hansen told me that was at least a 20lb crab. He was so heavy that the spikes on him were going through my sweatshirt and poking holes in my hands. Kind of sad to me now... He is what they called a Grand Daddy. :(

JT from Cincinnati Annie in IL, thanks for the link update for Cornell Labs! Of course I will post it for others coming in!! I have 4 that I am watching simultaneous now... They both grabbed at it, and now neither one will let go of it, so they just keep playing tug-of-war on the standing in the box opening...until they start to fall, then one lets go, but just until balance is restored, then it starts all over again. Very funny!

They both grabbed at it, and now neither one will let go of it, so they just keep playing tug-of-war on the ledge opening...until they start to fall, then one lets go, but just until balance is restored, then it starts all over again. first of all, they look like they're planning a prison break. Second, they sure do get different food than our barn owls did - Mama just brought a giant beetle...

on the threshold of breaking out... Hmmm. Tastes more like John than Paul... He's eating John Lennon!?!

Hi Cheryl... here's a few pictures of when I crab fished. It was back in 79, 80 and 82.... long time ago, but one of my best times in my life. 9 cute guys on one boat! The boat did well... I made the "Wanted Dead or Alive" sign... years before Bon Jovi wrote the song... I tried to tell them that we should have a camcorder and show everyone what it was like. That's why I love the show so much, takes me back in time.....

There are unique cloud/wind formations in northern Australia (Gulf of Carpentaria) called Morning Glory - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Morning\_Glory\_cloud and the phenomenon attracts gliding pilots from all over the world to ride the currents. So I trust you've all got the live web broadcast sorted out for the get-together tomorrow? - I want to see your novelty hats - and join in virtually with the sing-along - and I trust you will manage to get the odd random person to either walk past or come and say hello to us. I'd like it to be just like the one in San Marcos please - I promise I won't laugh as much as I did that time though 😊😊😊

Sorry, I don't think we are quite set up for that! I don't even have a T-shirt (because I would never use it again). However we will bring photos. Had another person say they couldn't come yesterday for financial reasons, so don't know how many we'll have. I do have 2 singers though and I will play the Molly Song at least once or twice while we gather. Charging my camera battery now. Trying to get folks to wear name or avatar tags. I printed mine this morning. 😊 I will post whatever photos I get tomorrow night. Not sure about video. May put that on SPO-MOD facebook and/or the wiki. Don't think I want it on youtube 😊.

You are healthy enough, but do look different. It's because they are a totally different species of barn owl, Cathy. A lot of interesting information if you do a Google on "Tel Aviv Barn Owls". There are nest boxes everywhere and the owls are used for biological rodent control instead of pesticides.

tigermo...thanks for the offer of the ride from West Seattle. I am just not up to it physically. I am sick, and just worn down. I know that being there with you all would do me good emotionally. But with my diabetes, and the emotions I have been going through, my sugars go all over the place and are really hard to control. Plus I haven't been eating good, too much or not enough sleep. If I could drive over, I would. I still need time, and I hope you all will understand. Again, thanks for the offer.

No, Jan. I was looking for shots of Morris. Just found them, right below. He wants no part of the deer...unless he is stretched out comfortably on the roof of my car. Then he allows them to get rather close. I fear that one day I am going to see a deer doing a great goat impersonation, standing erect on the hood of my beloved Honda.

Oh, yes; now I remember that his name was Morris - and it's very easy to see that he wants no part of the deer (and they kind of look like they want to run him off the road!) He and my cat look very much alike, except it looks like Sweetieboy's coat is longer: there's a lot of Maine Coon in him.

This is the kind of thing my Sweetieboy specializes in! He likes to stay outside all night in the summer, so he can chase intruders to the block away. He lives for this! Late last night I went out to visit him before I went to bed. He was so loaded with adrenaline that "guard cat" vibrations emanated from him! We went for a walk; I walked forward and he walked circles around me as we went, rubbing my legs and re-scenting me constantly. When I stopped for a minute, he wrapped his tail around my leg. I was so honored! He was saying, "Mine, mine - she's mine! Everybody, approach at your own peril!" Wow. This guy is so great - he doesn't like to be hugged, but he has his own way of showing where I stand with him!

I so enjoy all the fun things you post and say. I don't always announce my presence but I do click "like" often. Like yesterday I posted a couple of owl photos and then had to get off computer to get dinner made. I should have gotten permission for a "hall pass" I suppose instead of just leaving suddenly. LOL... Anyway, thanks for allowing me to be around here and it's nice to have a group that is like this one to take a break with and get some laughs. Thanks for all everyone does here! 😊

Hi Lady K...it is just cloudy here so far. I really don't think I will make it tomorrow. I have had a really bad 2 days. I am having a really hard time. I know it would do me good to get out, but I am not ready yet. I am sick on top of that too. Wore myself down too much. I don't want to bring everyone down here today, you are all having fun, and it does me good to see that! We will meet one day, and I look forward to meeting such a wonderful woman. It was meant to be, and one day it will happen!

I know that probably most everyone in here has had those days when they were invited or supposed to attend an event and didn't feel like going... But when I have had those days and forced myself to be somewhere, I ended up having the best time. So Becky please try and get better from not feeling well and try to go. Also you would be able to see barn owls up close and personal as they say. What a treat after spending so much time watching them via the Internet. I am sure everyone wants to give you hugs which I know you can use. So please reconsider, ok? I hope you feel better by the end of the day and I know those days you have been having. I had a melt down myself just the other day. There are good days and bad days. TOMORROW will be a GOOD DAY for BECKY I say!!!! ☺️

Jan, Doing ok. I had a post all typed up and then it disappeared. But to make a long story short, I am helping DH this morning and once I get his projects done for him (making flyers and helping load up his truck for a guy's swap meet), I can get back to doing what I need to do. And one of those things is to sneak in time here to see what all of you are up to in here. I got to read and see the You Tube posts yesterday and all had me laughing out loud. Glad to see the Sheriff is on duty most of the time too. ☺️ Very hot here today again. But it is dry heat as they say. Have a great day and I will see you around later on...

Her name rings a bell with me, but if I did it was a long, long time ago. I would probably remember titles if I heard them, though. And if I recall a title, I will recall the entire book!

I re-read most of Kenneth Robert's books every few years. It's like going home again - I lived those books as a youngster! The lasting effects of his books on me are huge. I really don't care for his dowsing writing, though. Anyway, that was a relatively late-in-life interest for him.

FOR REAL! People are STILL HERE?! Crazy isn't it! Craziest yet I painted my toes with a blue polish! Pretty bold on an old woman-but it was darker, more subdued - unlike the suggestions the latest fashion magazine said - NO bright colors for domesticated sophisticated ladies. ... so I went darker ... and I'm walking across the yard last night, I look down and it all came to me: i now have SMURF TOES!!!! yes!! SMURF!!!! Blue upon my feet! Even thought of taking a foto to share with you! The Molly Box is haunting!!!!

See you all later. I really have to get some things done to earn my keep today. It has clouded over a bit and might be a good time to wash the windows outside. Hopefully the pine pollen is done covering everything with a greenish yellow dust 😊 and I just have to get rid of the muddy "splat" the robin made on my dining room window several days ago. BTW, she is doing fine, has laid her eggs and is comfortably incubating them now. A happy ending to a possibly tragic event.

another day at work, today & tomorrow then I get to go home! Didn't start out well but I am hoping the rest of the day will be pleasant. Glad you are chatting, helps my spirits. I'll be lurking off & on today & checking on the owlets. If I get out on time think I will get a pizza. That will feed me for 2 days since I am out of food at the hotel & don't want to go to the grocery store.

The Tel Aviv owls crack me up. One is sitting there now on his "butt" with his feet out in front of him. They look like a bunch of little old men. Not the prettiest owls in the world at all - certainly "scruffy" looking owlets - and totally different traits than Molly's "crew". They aren't as fluffy as other barn owls, but they are a species of the African barn owl and it is how they have evolved to adapt to that climate. Not many pictures online of them, but I did find this one showing how tall and lanky they are and another of them all "sitting" in a row with their feet out

Good morning; Last night someone posted the site to go to to find the times and locations to see when the International Space Station could be seen in areas in the U.S. I thought I would give it a try so went out at 9:42 pm and looked to the sky in the direction it said it would be seen. I didn't expect much but what a surprise when I spotted it. There was no mistaking it for a star or a plane it was absolutely beautiful and what a thrill to see it. It should be coming by again here tonight at pm and I will be out there looking again.

Good morning from Maine. About 74 and dry here, too, Elliott - even a slight breeze moving the flag around. Stopped by quickly a while ago to see what was going on in the "kitchen" and took an easy trip to the basement - only one flight of stairs before I got back to where I left off last night !!! Bonnie and Barb were chatting about the Tel Aviv owls quite a while ago. I have a couple of links about the various species of owls and the barn owl project in Tel Aviv, but I know Bonnie has left so I can post them later. Yes, Barb, they are a species of African owls.

Hi, Lynda! It's 78 here, but dry. Sun is very strong, but if you're in the shade it's wonderful - a nice breeze. I just walked to the store. The sidewalks are still giving off a tremendous amount of heat, and it felt like it was 90 with no shade on the street. But the minute I got back home and stood in the shade of the tree out front, it felt 15 degrees cooler. It's really a beautiful day out there!

Good morning Elliott, I was thinking about you and your work today. I hope most days you find it inspiring and not impossible. We've got a bunch of nuts here in the county (some have already gone to jail but we still have to wait and see if the change will be for the better or worse). But perhaps you don't work on Cleveland projects that turn into black holes.

sorry Elliott, I didn't mean to imply that your company's projects were black holes but we seem to have a fair amount of them in Cleveland (Cleveland Trust, Med Mart debacle and The Warner Swasey Observatory in East Cle). Almost all of the "black holes" are connected at the county level and some developers asking a city to blight their own property so they can renovate on the cheap with taxpayer money . . . (I won't go down that road).
Anyway, If I had a 1/2 million dollars, I would do something with the observatory. Maybe even add a screech owl box 😊
This web site is not up to date but the old pictures provide some scope for the imagination. The owner announced big plans and then went to jail for a couple years and the place still sits.

Good Morning y'owl. Was off doing random likes in the basement, and went to check in on the Dutch babies and Starr Ranch. Glad to see the bees are gone. The Starr Ranch moms seem to be a really good Mom like Molly. Loved all the videos and talk of female singers in the basement. Has anyone else ever heard Lucinda Williams or Susan Tedeschi? Lucinda is more country/folk and Susan is more bluesy, but both are great! Annie Lennox is my fave though, I think. Her voice is simply incredible.

Thanks Kathryn - I've bookmarked that page to look at properly later - I did try a couple of years ago with a nicotine inhalator - which were fairly good but looked more like a monthly feminine 'care' product than a product to help you stop smoking!!!! At least those look a little less embarrassing to use LOL!! I'm not quite there with 'wanting' to stop at the moment - and I think that's half the battle - but I'll definitely have a proper look at that site when I get home from work - and who knows!!!!

Hubby quit about 8 years ago but sneaks one now and again. I have never been a smoker but have had a few in my life on a night out with many beverages consumed. I do believe I now have an allergy to smoke so he has never been able to smoke around me. Once in a while, I think the faint hint of a cigar smells good. Pipe=blahh!
I know it's a hard habit to break so good luck in your future attempts, Cheryl! Good on ya, Kathryn, for quitting! Goodnight again girls! 😊

So funny 😊 . As one who could tell a few real stories about "critters" in the outhouse, I liked the song. I'll have to send it along to my daughter as I'm sure will remember the time she had to get her cat out of the outhouse "pit" at our cabin one week end when she and her husband just expected to have a "quiet" week end away. Not a fun experience and thank goodness there was a lake not far away 😊

 James, I have a quick question if you're still here. I have several of your photos in my "molly & Family" file...that won't show thumbnails. Did I save them wrong? Can I open them with paint or someother photo prog? They are some of my favorite keep sakes from the Royal owls...help!

JH (Post Pondering)
 If it is one of my images it should show a thumbnail, as I saved all mine as jpg or png files. Some others saved theirs as bitmap files and they won't show a proper thumbnail on some systems. If you KNOW it is one of mine, try adding a ".jpg" (don't forget the dot) to the end of the file name. That should do it in most cases. Otherwise you might need to download the file again.

speaking of moons, does anyone know why there's a moon on an outhouse door? i know, very owl related....

possible answer: in the old days the lady outhouses were marked with a moon (feminine connotation), while the men ones weren't.....the men ones became so dirty, ramshackle, etc... that the men started to use the female ones which were better cared for, thus..... the only ones standing were the ones with moons.

i do not know if this is 100% accurate, or even any %.

(too much ben and jerry's for me)

This is what Yahoo answers gives, don't know if it is right though: it originates back around the start of the colonial times when most people couldn't read or write. mens and ladies outhouses were recognizable by the crescent moon shape for women and a sunburst shape for the men. the moon "luna" was an ancient symbol for womankind, and the sun "sol" depicted man. men never took care of their outhouses so they eventually stopped using them and the women took care of theirs, so in the end the moon shape was the only symbol put on outhouse doors.

So hard to say in this day of digital and of the wonderful ability to "multi shoot". I once had an artist friend visit me in Alaska for only five days. She brought 80 roles of film, 36 images each. And that was film. "Three weeks" and digital. I'm guessing thousands.

Well....Jade can take over 200 in week....just in our front and back yard.:0 I am not kidding...the amazing thing is she keeps finding new things to shot! So....my guess would be at least 5000 digital pics.

Rhonda you can also get a view of the outside of the box - great for when they start peeking out. Click on "here" at the top of the video to see more cams. Then click on "Barn Cam" for the outside view.

I had these. I never catch feeding time...it's a little sad to always hear them hungry (makes me miss our owls even more). They look healthy so, I'm sure I just check in at the wrong times. They were sleeping in a ball against the wall earlier today 😊

I believe they are like 6 hours ahead of us here in the USA, so I caught them this afternoon when it was just getting dark there.... Best I can tell, they have been by that door ever since...I was mostly checking them out in our Mornings and early afternoons, and yep, they are in Full Sleep mode! Although yesterday I did catch a couple of mourning doves sneaking in! They did not stay long though...

Sorry I had to leave to make dinner and stuff... I'll still be gone for a bit. Thanks everyone for posting back to me about my hives, YUCK! I can't believe I even posted that. Cool pics, JH!

I have a chance to see the ISS at 9:44 pm and 11 something. I don't think it will be dark enough for the first one and I'll see if I'll be up for the second one. OK, gotta go again. Just busy tonight!

It's not as hard as it looks...but, it does take patience to learn. I actually crochet and knit mostly (I like things to move along a bit faster)...but, you're right they do have some really pretty patterns. They make great gifts too! I make about 1/2 of my Christmas gifts each year.

Well, a friend and I do the annual master gardeners garden tour, which is Saturday. I tried to edge out of it but she was looking forward to it so... Hope a get together happens again but then I'll be even further behind. 😞 I'm not very familar with chat rooms but I've decided that all of you are really good multi-taskers and that you're probably writing novels while writing on-line.

To Chris in Olympia, if you are there. I was hoping to get out of a previous engagement on Saturday but it didn't happen so am sorry to say I won't be able to make it to the Zoo on Saturday. I sure wanted to meet you guys and hope you all have a great time.
On another local subject, for you fabric fiends, the fabric in this year's quilt shop hop (which is going on now) has a lot of animals on it and a lot of the blocks are.....owls. Just wanted to let you know.

I had hoped you could make it too! Well, we will keep you in mind in case there are any future activities. I don't think I have any other way to contact you though, do I? I don't have your email and you aren't on facebook, right? I could post my alternate email address briefly and you could write it down and then I could delete it. Then you could send me your email address and we could stay in touch. Let me know if you want to do that.

Now, I have to keep the spambot from eating this, so hopefully this first sentence will do that. 😊 Kathleen, still was looking for your new youtube video but couldn't find it. Did watch your newest dialysis video. Wow! You do have a great attitude! My Mother-in-law had to have 2 dialysis treatments after an angioplasty because the contrast dye shut down her kidneys. They started up again after the two treatments so she didn't have to have more. Anyway, I sat with her for part of the one time and my husband did the other, so we saw much of the procedure. - Added a last sentence also in case that helps. 😊
