lynn I've been working so hard trying to catch up, that I think I'll just relax today! Read, sip iced tea on my front porch glider, whatever I want. I think we all deserve a day/weekend like that. After all, that is what summer is about!!

Natalie Elliott, I'm sorry to report that I haven't seen the turkeys for a few days...maybe they've moved on. But I will always be flattered that Elliott and her crew made us part of their rounds for a round. If they come back, you will be the first to know! :)

Natalie Oh, me! Me! Hi Jan! I was just checking the basement and enjoying all the humor, famous people encounters, etc. Wish I'd been able to stay up last night. I loved the one from Chris about her phone conversation with Carlos!

I'm just here for a minute before I do some errands...how are you?

Today, 07:12:17 - Flag - Like - Reply

Mollie I'm going down to the basement in a minute. As I was scrolling down I saw there were some more famous people stories. I was thinking about that this morning. A stranger--and those lurking sociologists--would think we were all bragging or playing one up. But we were all just sharing fun experiences and having fun sharing. That's what I like about this room.

Rocket Man Morning Owls - Missed the Lunar Eclipse by only 5 hours. Spent too much time with the Loonies here last night.

Thank Google for backups. http://paupichugin.com/201006/perths-lunar-eclipse/

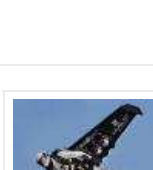

Also, before I jet outa here: FAUCON 9 DECEY: Space's Falcon 9 rocket, launched on June 4th from Cape Canaveral as a possible successor to the space shuttle, is about to reenter Earth's atmosphere. According to US Strategic Command, reentry should occur on June 27th at 02:13 UT +/- 16 hours. The large uncertainty in decay time makes it impossible to say exactly where the fireball will appear.

Everyone have a great day!

KS / Owlo OK, enough reminiscing! I've got a quilt to finish this weekend, a garden project to start and some much-needed leisure time in the swimming pool to work in. Housework? Nah, not too interested in that.

KBorlando (It's ME: Owlosaurus!) Looks like I missed all kinds of interesting discussions yesterday and last night, including an 'opportunity' to speak with The Pittster himself! LOL

During college in the 70s I was part of the group that booked entertainment for the university AND I had the biggest car, so it was always my task to pick up the bands at the airport. The list is pretty long but I will say the most fun group EVER was ZZ Top. Those guys really knew how to party. (Snooziest? Spiro Gyra. But that's NOT why we dropped a light tree on their piano. It was an accident, I swear!) Then, in the 80's and 90's I lived in Baltimore and worked with our lobbying group down in DC quite a bit, so I have a good sized list of politicians too. We won't talk about whether they were fun or not! Hollywood type celebs... nope, none.

KBorlando (It's ME: Owlosaurus!) Thinking some more about it, the most interesting person I ever met probably was quite a celebrity in some circles. I'm sad to say I don't even remember his name but I do remember his stories. It was in 1986 or 87 and I was working as a safety engineer for an insurance company. One of our accounts was Flying Tiger Airlines and I was lucky enough to be the one doing on-site surveys of their cargo facilities. In Cincinnati during one visit the mgmt team and the pilots were all excited about a visitor - never one to pass up a chance for a drink and good stories I joined them after work at a local bar. Their visitor, Jim I think, was an older pilot who had been flying with Flying Tigers for decades. He told heroic and wacky funny stories about 'just in the nick of time' escapes from danger in Cuba and China that had us all on the edge of our bar stools for hours.

I remembered another famous person that I know, or at least was from my hometown and his family were across-the-street neighbors to us and my dad knows him and I have met him: Admiral Robert Shumaker, USN (ret). He's a Vietnam war hero. He is, unfortunately, famous for having gone through some horrible conditions. Well, unfortunate that he had to go through that but fortunate in that he survived.

when you go to that site, click on 'whole sky chart' under "Astronomy" after you log in your location. You will see your sky and the planets that are visible. Also, get a star chart that is easy to use and you will be amazed at what you learn from it. We did in homeschool and have been interested in it ever since. Recently took astronomy in College which helped too.

Another, less known, was Anthony Lake. He and his family had a cottage on the lake near the dam. He is now Exec. Dir. of UNCEF. Was a diplomat, Foreign Svc. Officer, foreign political advisor to several Democratic presidents and National Security Advisor under Pres. Clinton. Tony, his wife, Toni and daughters were wonderful people and we had them for dinner a couple of times. We never discussed political views. It was SO hard for them to get a day or two away from Wash., DC when he was Nat. Sec. Advisor - the whole area had to be checked out by Secret Service, secure communications set up in an area with no power or telephone, etc.

Ok, since I feel a little left out and don't have any super good famous stories, I won't bore you. I will share my most recent, however boring it was. It was great music though and I was very pregnant and couldn't indulge. They had a bunch of stars and Toto was playing too. See if you can guess who the man is with my friends. Other shots have me (blonde) in them and nobody famous. We have done some infamous stuff though. 😊

I was buddies and went to high school with Kirk Kirkman. Don't know if anyone remembers the guy who was going through a divorce and was awarded half of the house... he was a food and came and sat by me. I ask What happened? Kree says... you don't want to know.... Oh Yeah...I want to know!!! Turns out he was on his ranch in Montana and was bulldozing in the snow. He flipped the dozer and was stuck under it. He had to claw himself out from under it. Said it took like 4 hours and then had to drag himself in the snow for about 1/4 mile to get help.... Geeee... I wonder what his ex wife was thinking. I have never seen the "What goes around, comes around" thing go so full circle.

OK, my last famous person run in is a double header.
It was very late in Las Vegas, in Feb. I had a 1am red-eye flight out of the city, on a flight destined to Minneapolis. While sitting at the gate, watching all the terribly funny new arrivals to twinkle town, I watched these two guys approach the area. They were walking and talking and acting very nonchalant. I thought they looked familiar but couldn't place the faces. It was really late and I was ending a very busy and tiring three day business trip. Did I mention we attended a comedy show right before my flight? Beverages flowed, is all I'm saying. Anyway, these two sat for a while just out of earshot. Eventually our plane started loading and they boarded right in front of me. Still curious, I followed them quite literally to their seats. Mine was right beside theirs.

Once the flight was airborne and the pilot had blessed us with a closeup view of the brilliant blinding light shooting out of the top of the Luxxor Hotel, I suddenly realized who I was sitting next to! Being the non-intrusive type that I am, I couldn't simply ask for autographs and act like a starstruck yahoo. No, I had to sit there most of the flight listening closely, trying to convince myself they wouldn't mind if I asked quietly, so not to arouse other unsuspecting passengers. Little did I know...

Oh, one other funny famous person post. The Senior class at my High School always took a trip to Washington DC in the spring. While we were there we met Tip O'Neil, then speaker of the House. We had a very nice visit with him and at the end he asked if we had any questions. It was probably nervy of me but I asked him if I could have a cigar to give to my grandfather and he gave me one.

Yes, about a month and a half ago I sent him a letter asking him to stop by our site and telling us of all about us. He called me on the phone!!! We talked for about 45 minutes about SPO, and Stacey, and Molly, and all sorts of stuff. He sounds just like he sounds on the webcam. He said at the time that he would consider stopping by our site. I explained to him how it worked and he even looked at it online while I posted a message so he could see how it worked. We then exchanged emails a few times to try set things up but it never came to pass.

(By the way he made me PROMISE not announce his plans in advance and not to share his contact info and I still won't).

 An aerial view of where we were located. Our house at Upper Dam - a New England cape built in the mid 1880's, but had a lot of renovations before we moved in. The cabins were privately owned seasonal places, originally belonged to the hotel which was torn down in the 1950's. And an awesome fiery sky.

 I miss it a lot - particularly the people, the wildlife and the view. But we were pretty tied there 24/7 with only 3 days off a month and 2 wks. vacation when we could leave except for an appointment or trip to the store. When we were gone someone had to fill in and stay at our house. It was not a power generating dam - just a storage dam as part of the headwaters to the Androscoggin River. There were daily chores and readings of water levels, etc that had to be done. But, the company changed hands to Florida Power & Light, management changed and the job wasn't fun any more. Plus hubby had a serious episode with colon cancer a couple of years before we left.

mentioned it before, but when I picked up J P Pennington, and Les Taylor, with the band Exile from their hotel and drove them in my car to the venue that they were playing at, that was a real highlight for me. J P Pennington gave me an autographed picture that said "Thanks for the smooth ride" and they also gave me one of their broken drumsticks!

 I met Leonard Nimoy and he signed one of my Star Trek books and I met Tony Dungy back when he still played for the Steelers. I read Tony's book and he still seems to be a good guy. I had a good friend in college who has spina bifida and she knew a number of the Steelers players from those days as they did a lot of charity work around spina bifida wards in Pittsburgh Children's Hospital.

As far as famous people that are friends, Lee Bush, author of some books about roller coasters and amusement parks is a good friend of our family. I also know a couple musicians with the Cleveland Orchestra.

Our "moose car wash". The first 2 taken in 1991 - cleaning hubbys "work truck". The second 2 were taken Christmas morning 1996 when my daughter and husband were visiting. The vehicles were only about 15 feet from the kitchen window. The last taken late afternoon in 1995 after a work crew doing work at the dam left. The moose was "kneeling" to lap up salty dirt. And, yes, being as isolated as we were, especially in winter, I put wreaths on all the buildings - house, garden shed, generator house, storehouse, etc. to brighten the place up.

We don't live there now, but the pictures were taken at Upper Dam in Western Maine where my husband was dam keeper for 12 years - 1990-2002 (I was the dam dam keeper's wife 😊). It was a gorgeous spot and had previously been the site of a small hotel for "sports". The hotel operated from the 1880's to the 1950's. The dam has been there since the mid-1880's. A house was provided to us as part of the job because we had to live there. Neither of the bldgs. shown was our house. The smaller one is a generator house (we had only generator power) and the other a storehouse and workshop (it had formerly been the laundry and upstairs sleeping quarters for the waitresses & chambermaids at the hotel). A whole lot of history there and an opportunity of a lifetime to have a retirement job there.

E-Comics alert!!!
Did everyone get the email or see Molly's Blog today? Especially if you order the E-Comics? It is important to make sure they have your correct email address. If you haven't heard and you ordered the e-comics, please go to <http://mollysbox.wordpress.com/blog/> and check it out. The e-comic book is supposed to come out on July 9th and they need to make sure they have correct addresses. They already know they have at least 13 that are bad addresses.

This is an honest and true story. Out of all the things I would love to dream about in regards to owls or anything on this chat, you know what I dreamed about last night? I had to take care of one of the Dugger's babies! Not in any means or any way a slam against the Duggers, but that is the last thing I want to do, is dream about taking care of a baby!!!!

Sour Cream Berry or Cherry Tart

- 2 1/2 c elderberries or blackberries
- 1 c sugar
- 1 c elderberries or blackberries
- 2T flour
- 1 c sour cream
- Pastry for 1 (9 inch) crust

Wash berries or seeded cherries and place in unbaked crust.
Combine sugar and flour
Add sour cream and blend thoroughly.
Pour mixture over fruit.
Bake at 450 deg for 15 min, reduce heat and continue to bake for a30 min.
Makes 1 (9 inch) pie.

From: Mennonite Community Cookbook by Mary Emma Showalter c.1950, 1957 and 1978 (It's a great cookbook)

(the recipe does not say what to reduce the heat to so choose something in the 350-375 range)

Emily, you can try it. I'm sure it would work but put at cookie sheet under the pie pan because it's likely to spill over as blueberries have a lot of juice. One of the pies I just made boiled over and I had smoke in the kitchen.

I think I could handle an alligator as opposed to that lion with his mouth wide open or that elephant coming toward me! I was in my car down by the Lake Okechobee. Then, in a flash, it ran across the road little legs scurrying. My brother and I had an alligator for a pet back in the early 60s when it was legal. My cousin in Florida sent it to us in a shoebox. It's name was Oscar. Oscar the Alligator.

The elephant actually charged us - that's her very young baby and her adolescent son with her. She intended to scare us, and it worked! I will never forget that sound - of the trumpeting and the stomping - it was terrifying for a moment. The lion was more interested in his lady than us, and the cheetah had just eaten, so she was lazy...

hi, CAR, nice to see you... and like your pictures!! I'll have to catch up on the evening, the weirdest thing- i lived in fl. for some time and would have opportunities to see alligators in the wild, ie. golf courses...the babies were so cute, and i never felt afraid....maybe i should have? run in a zig-zag, right? but, the most amount of concentrated alligators i've seen in my life was near the sand dunes in colorado. so odd! there is an alligator farm outside center, co. alligators galore, and they can live so high, and thru the winte,r because the water is natural warm springs.... they were brought in initially to dispose of scraps from a meat factory or some such reason. good night...

Speaking of meat pies...
In the 18th century, the passenger pigeon in Europe was known to the French as tourte; but, in New France, the North American bird was called tourte. Tourtière, a traditional meat-pie originating from Quebec and associated with French-Canadian culture, was so-named because tourte (passenger pigeon) was historically a key ingredient. Today, the dish is typically made from pork and/or veal, or beef.

My students made the bipartisan poster. I went to her rally and got a seat on the front row as a result. It was the only one homemade and done by kids. Some of the students were watching her on TV and saw her point to it and say, "I love it." They were pretty excited, even the McCain supporters. We were hoping McCain and Obama would come nearby so we could make posters for them, but they didn't and we were really disappointed.

Hey there! Just stopping in for a short visit. We are planning to get up early to see the eclipse...I'm going to check to see what time will be best to see it here. My fav animal sighting was the 2 cubs who came up to me & took my tuna sandwich in Wash. state. Our place was in a undeveloped area (took 2 months to get elec). They sniffed and touched my books & left. I was afraid to move sure Momma was near by. Didn't want her to think I'd hurt her babies. Fav. celebrity was Donny Osmond...been in love w him since I was 13. He was very sweet...still love to hear him sing, and loved him on DWTS

Reading down below several questions that were asked. One being the strangest animal sighting to have ever seen, and the most famous person you have met.
The person one was easy to remember as it was Tom Selleck Yada yada. Even had a photo taken with him. sigh.
I am still pondering the animal sighting but do remember waking up one night with a very large dog standing over me in bed. It wasn't one of mine but a stray that had come in the doggy door. Luckily he turned out to be friendly.

Godd grief, you step out for a moment the place goes wild.
Jan, the pie recipe is in the Mennonite Community Cookbook. It is the Sour Cream Berry or Cherry Tart. I have also made this with red raspberries (we had some wonderful ones at our old house, where the fawn was if you remember that picture). Our first tenants tore out all the red raspberries, not a single cane survived 😊. I have no idea why people do that sort of thing, especially when it's virtually free food! If you need me to post the recipe I can do that in the morning when the chat's a bit slower.

The first time I read about the Olympic Peninsula, I was only 8 years old! It was a book called 'The Egg and I' by Betty MacDonald. I fell in love with her descriptions of it - I even loved what she said she didn't like about it! When I got a bit older I started reading more about it. Later on in my adult life I looked up towns and parks on the Internet. Looked at every picture I could find. Read up on the climate and the weather. Was even getting ready to fly out and investigate it on my own! Then I lost my job two years ago, and there went my dreams . . . Just as well, I guess - all my family is here on the east coast, so I stay with my friends. Still, I dream about it . . .

I just saw your post. Very cool!! I would love to do that! My 5-sister was married to a guy from Yakutat. She lived there for about 10 years. Only been there on a boat on the way North. We were trying to get fishing licenses and wanted to go to the bar. We were told that we had to wait for the Red light to come on to show they were open.

Oh, that's how it's spelled! Ya, Alaska is a unique place. I absolutely love it up there. Everything is so BIG! We stay about 7 miles from the Bering Glacier on Midtiber Lake & do maintenance work for the Alaska State Park system. There is a cabin that we stay in. The lake & the rain provide our water. Dropped off by float plane. The silence is astounding, just wind, water, creatures...Very hard to get away from the sound of civilization

Well, it was mostly overcast to the west but there were a few windows and I did get to see three short glimpses. Funny, if it were on the same trajectory tonight as last night, I would have had a perfectly clear shot of it over the moon. Oh well. Winter time is the best season for photos anyway.

Since it is not too buried in the basement, I saw James' Chubby Checker video. At the old car show tonight there was like a double decker 50's bus that a DJ was playing 50's music out of. He played the bird song too! It made a neat atmosphere to view the old cars and just hang out with everyone!

So I quickly bring up an owl box to cover the chat room 😊 and he said, "Are you still watching owls?" I said, "Of course." and proceeded to show him all 5 or 6 of the owl box cams, describing all I knew about each owl nest. He looked at me and said, "You know, you have completely gone wacky!!" 😊 And here I thought this was all important "research." 😊

A rufous hawk with a wing span of around 50 inches flew into my bedroom window during a snow storm and fell back in a snow drift. He was so close I could see the heat coming out of his nose holes and the fear in his eyes. Once he got his bearings he used his wings to get back on top of the snow and flew in low circles until he was at himself again.

Okay, why not. It's a Friday night. I was on a band trip as a junior in high school. I was in the motel room studying for my AP history exam. In hindsight, I should have studied more for many reasons. My room overlooked the pool. So, someone knocked and came in and something flew in at the same time. I ran from the room, screaming, SEAGULL!!!!!! ran down the outdoor hallway, ran down the stairs to the first floor. Then, the person who came in the room brought me the seagull. It was a Koosh ball from the pool which happened to fly in right when the door opened. Embarrassing as all get out then since the whole band laughed at me. Today ... I find it just another typical thing that happens to me! Yes, I did really think it was a seagull. Nutty little thing, aren't I?

Too many to pick a favorite, CAR. A moose with newborn twins in our front yard; a doe with twin fawns dancing and jumping in our yard; a mother fox with four kits bringing them to our front door show us her family; a pair of river otter chasing the fox across the ice when she tried to steal a fish they had brought out on the edge of the ice. Probably the moose who used to come to the yard in the winter to "wash" our car because it was covered with saty road dirt (they crave salt). They would walk around lapping every surface, sometimes even "kneeling" to get under the wheel wells and bumpers. The car was often right by our front window. When they were done the car looked like a toddler has smeared chocolate ice cream all over it !! Have a couple of pix if I can find them later.

 I thought about that, but I can't figure out how to hang it. My lovely classroom has walls of concrete. PLUS, I don't take anything that has glass. A few years ago, I had walked across the hall to my co-teacher's room to ask a question, and I heard the sound of breaking glass. I knew it had come from my room. Ever since then ... no glass of any kind.

They even share a few commonalities:

They are both found in Washington, only separated by a couple thousand miles.

They both hang out with a bunch of fruits. And....

They both can be very bitter, if picked "red-handed."

Hi! Looks like there's going to be a par-tay. Sounds fun. I've been fixing green beans all day. Hope it's worth all the trouble. Since we do not like frozen green beans, I'm cooking them until they are done. My sister said she always fixes theirs like that. Guess we will see. Noticed some of you have zucchini. We cubed zucchini and onions, sprinkled olive oil and Mrs. Dash, wrapped in foil and grilled last night. Very tasty. A friend makes zucchini pie. Very much like apple pie she said. I've also made zucchini butter that tastes just like apple butter.

Do you ever can any of your green beans, Diana? We like home-canned ones SO much better than frozen or commercially canned ones. I used to can 40 to 50 pints every summer. A hint about ANY canned beans - drain them first and cover with fresh water before heating. There must be a recipe book "1001 Things to Cook Using Zucchini" I like both zucchini and summer squash, but hubby doesn't (says they taste like cooked cucumbers), so I don't have them often.

I am friends with Dick Foley and his wife.. Tynan.. He was the leader for the Brother's Four... back in the 60's. Though Dick, I have met the Kingston Trio guys, Glen Yarborough and Ron Mearns.. the Irish Tenor. Dick was on Northwest Afternoonin Seattle for 14 years... Now he works for Virginia Mason Hospital. He is also the Voice of NSA/ Juice Plus+.. he does all of our conferences.

I met Sig Hansen from the Deadliest Catch...

I turned around and smacked right into Bill Gates. He has 5 houses right by my property on Hood Canal. Have talked with Jeff Raikes and Steve Balmer from Microsoft. They all have place on the Canal. Met Nordstrom's there too. They all have houses on the Canal and live on what they call The Golden Mile... richest guys in the world all have houses there.

Gates lives in Medina, by Bellevue... Not in my back yard.. 2 miles down the road, but they spend the summer out in Union, on the Canal. In 2002, I signed to buy what is called the Cameo Botique on the Canal.. 206K on the water with a cottage. My stepdad and friend scared me out of it... Bill built his brand new timber lodge home.... 378ft. away. I still wish I had that place and followed my heart. I have a better friend than Bill!! lol

Dick and Mary are some of my best friends... Love them to pieces! They did like 36 albums.... and yes, I think the Beatles blew them out of the water. Most people know them from the Greenfields song...

Well, I'm here to tell ya, Lou Reed ain't a friendly guy. You probably have to pass some coolness test. But Bono was a sweetheart. This was back in the 80s during the Band Aid tour. One of my friends had met him backstage several times and he actually remembered her and stopped to chat for probably five minutes.

Oh, and I just remembered! I danced with the cute guy in Tears for Fears. Not Roland Orzabal, the blond one. We were grooving on the balcony in the ballroom where everybody on the tour was jamming, and we just started dancing and my friend asked me later, "Do you know who you were dancing with?" and I had no clue.

OOH, OOH, I have lots! I seem to just run into them, and as you know, I am not shy or quiet...

My favorite: I was waiting at my car near a very fancy restaurant when Robert Redford (with Judith Guest - they were working on "Ordinary People") came walking up. I stopped them, and told them that they didn't need to eat there. I was making pizza at home. They should come over - but he would have to bring the beer...

He laughed, with that gloriously beautiful face, and took my hand and said he would love to, but he had work to do. And as he walked into the restaurant, he looked back, smiled and winked at me. Smitten forever, I'm telling you!

Hey Jan! Know you'll appreciate this one. Someone else might, too. Didn't mean to be exclusionary. Just got home a bit ago. I had made my friend a quilt - surprised her - it wasn't for an occasion - just gave it to her. So to "pay me back" she gave me a copy of Sizzling Sixteen SIGNED BY Janet Evanovich herself written to me with my name spelled correctly. (That's wordy, but you know what I mean.) I was so excited. No one EVER outgifts me. EVER. I am so thrilled!!!!

What you all don't know is that is my therapy!!! I would say it is cheaper than the co-pays, but it isn't. I do it by hand, so it is really relaxing! She totally didn't know it was coming. I love the reaction. Next person doesn't know it is coming either. I usually tell people to give me an idea on colors, and then I do the patterns and match the colors, etc.

It's funny - she picked green as her color. I HATE working with green, and so does my quilter. The whole back is green. So the two of us suffered through for her. My quilter bargained her name in for her, too. I just wish someone would let me do a quilt in bright colors for them, but everyone wants either green or conservatives. How about orange and purple? I can make it work!

If that door in Camera 2 on the Dutch "Little Owls" leads outside, they will be fledging pretty soon. They are wiggly and edgy like they want to go.

OK, so they are going to take about 15-20 minutes to go up and band them in their owl box (cupboard!). They also found a clutch of Church owl eggs somewhere else where there used to be a nest in 2008 or 09???

It's the phrase "we the ladder will rise to let undergo to our kuikens" that I can't quite figure out. I think someone is going up a ladder ahead of him, and he is looking up and spying the person's kuikens! If we can figure out kuikens, we might be onto something!

White chocolate mousse ... aah. You know, you brought back so many nice memories for me. In high school/college, I used to work at a video store (Erofs - sort of a mom/pop place). We always went there on break for food. I liked the rainbow sprinkles. The joke was always would you like some yogurt with your sprinkles because I love sprinkles! We used to hang out there anyway during the summer. More coming ...

So then that led me to thinking about Erofs and what a nice place it was to work before it was bought out by Blockbuster. We used to have all these famous people come in which was very cool to a 18 year old girl. Louise Fletcher came in (Nurse Ratched from Cuckoo's Nest), Robert Duvall, many of the Redskins, and of course Oliver North
You never quite knew who would walk in the door. One day I looked up and there was Steve Wyatt. He was the guy who just a few years before had gotten "in trouble" for his fling with Princess Sarah Ferguson. Thanks. I enjoyed my own personal trip down memory lane.

Lynn, I'm re-posting this because it got buried so fast below. I've see the sort of thing you're describing so many times that it makes me physically ill: The dog is 'property' to the man, nothing more. The man decides what the dog 'likes.' The man decides what is 'good' for the dog. And you, Lynn, with your suggestion, have threatened the man's judgment' about his property. The more you express concern for the dog, the more likely the man will be to take his anger out on the dog. It's a very tricky situation.

Unfortunately, under the laws in most states a dog is considered exactly that - "personal property". Unless they are abused or are dangerous they are considered nothing different that a TV, boat or a law chair. To most of us a pet is a member of our family. To others they are just a "thing". 😊

Here is the latest update on the Dutch owls (translated): 😊
Tomorrow, at 15.30 as we climb the ladder to our chickens a brief clinic-like onderzoekje to endergo and provide them with a ring of Vogeltekstation. The whole operation will take approximately 15-20 minutes (maximum 30), take. It seemed just so that they (almost) tail ender of the season would be, but this afternoon I found a barn owl on 7 eggs! Doubly lucky, because the hive was hanging after a successful rescue attempt in 2008 but in 2009 not brood. With a few nests to the counter is already at 140 by us in Utrecht (and piece Betuwe) ringed young barn owls. It may still nest on inaccessible or unknown places are tallied! Last year was a daljaar and I did not go beyond 60.

This is my take on it. They are going to band the owlets tomorrow. They found a new barn owl nest with 7 eggs and are very excited about this as it is in a location that did not have an active nest last year. This year has been very productive for Barn owls. That's the best I can do. 😊

I have helped this dog before, let them know when she's loose, concerned she might get hit, and I have to wait for hours to walk mine because I can't have loose dogs running up to one of mine (she's a rescue and was abused.) Actually, I've let them know a few times. I've helped in several dog rescues, one around the dock for 2 weeks, and my husband and I found the greyhound on an island! I love animals so much, and I felt so bad to be yelled at, esp. when it was out of concern and I was being very nice. Any suggestions on a proper response in case this happens with someone again?

Don't you have a leash law in your city? Are they breaking the law already with that? You shouldn't have to worry about your own dog when you want to walk him. About being yelled at, they are just rude. When someone tries to give me advice that I don't agree with, I try to grin and bare it unless it's endless. They could have swallowed their pride and taken your words into consideration. Sorry you have to deal with them. Even if they feel like they "have to deal" with you, you are doing the right thing and they seem like they are in the wrong.

I've see the sort of thing you're describing so many times, Lynn, that it makes me physically ill: The dog is 'property' to the man, nothing more. The man decides what the dog 'likes.' The man decides what is 'good' for the dog. And you, Lynn, with your suggestion, have threatened the man's 'judgment' about his property. The more you express concern for the dog, the more likely the man will be to take his anger out on the dog. It's a very tricky situation.

Good (early) evening. Question for y'owls...how would you respond to this? I was concerned about a dog, no shade trees, no water, dog just lying there. Later I see the dog up with the owner. I smile and say "Oh I'm so glad she's ok", and explain why. He says she likes being out, etc. I say "that's nice. well, maybe when it's hot you can put some water out." Then I was totally yelled at "GET OUT OF HERE!!" When I tried to speak (nicely!) he just yelled some more.

My first instinct is to stay away from him. If you see the same thing happening again call your local animal control department (or the non-emergency number for the police and they will get in touch with ACO in your area). You did your best. He obviously didn't like your concern and probably won't take care of the dog properly until he is surmossed for animal abuse. Grrrrr, %*#&$# - why do people like that have pets?

Mary Carroll (the Shadow)
1 cup or more of olive oil
1 medium eggplant
2 medium onions
4 medium-sized tomatoes (ideally, choose 2 Roma tomatoes and 2 vine tomatoes)
1 teaspoon brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon cumin
1/8 teaspoon oregano
A pinch of salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
Peel the eggplant, onions and tomatoes. Dice the eggplant into 1 1/2 inch cubes. Cook in olive oil until very lightly browned. Dice onions into 3/4 inch cubes and add onions to oil and eggplant and cook until onions are very lightly browned. Dice tomatoes into 3/4 inch cubes and add tomatoes. Cool until tomatoes are very soft. Add cumin, oregano, salt and pepper to taste. Set aside for at least 30 minutes.

The eggplant dish is our family's adaptation of a Turkish dish.

Irnam Bayeldi: The Irnam fainted.
This Turkish meal has a legendary origin. The most popular version of the tale is told like this: The Irnam's new bride was the daughter of an olive oil merchant, and her dowry contained twelve over-sized jugs of purest olive oil. She had a talent for cooking, and she prepared many special dishes for her new husband. One night, she cooked a dish of eggplant baked in olive oil, and the Irnam enjoyed it so much that he asked her to cook it every night. For twelve days, she prepared the eggplant dish, but on the thirteenth, it was missing.
"My dear wife," the Irnam asked, "Where is the dish that you usually cook for me?"
"I couldn't make it tonight," she replied, "because we ran out of olive oil."
On hearing this, the Irnam fainted.

It was different when we all had only Molly and her brood in front of us 24 hours a day. The time lapse between seeing something in another owlbox, posting about it, then reading about it and going there is generally too great to actually CATCH what was being reported. LOL

Looks like a good stock of treats tonight !! Is it s mosquito that keeps flying close to the camera lens ? It looks like one of the vinyl "butterfly things people stick to sliding glass doors (to warn them not to walk into the window I guess). I keep wanting to sway it !!!

Hey all,
Just thought I'd say this.
My pug Peanut passed away earlier
It was most likely of old age, she was 14.
She will be greatly missed <3

I haven't taken much time to look, except hoping to see the 3rd egg hatch on the Star Ranch site this morning (I missed it). Got a lot of productive things done today - the big project was washing all the outside windows and screens. Amazing how clear thing are through clean windows 😊 I hear thru the chat room grapevine there might be a "water" battle here tonight, so I'm all prepared and I've left the garden hose ready to hook it up to this

Elliott, as a matter of possible interest to you, here is something about turkeys and flying from an old set of books that my husband Jim has by Arthur Cleveland Bent of Taunton, MA. I wouldn't be surprised if our Jan has these books also.

"The turkey's ordinary method of locomotion is walking or running; the long powerful legs enable these birds to travel long distances and very rapidly on foot. But they are also strong fliers when hard pressed or when necessity requires it., and can fly for a considerable distance or even across wide rivers."

Did you see the stock photos of the Tel Aviv species of barn owls I posted today? There is also a YouTube video of the Tel Aviv project. I have the link, but I'm not sure if it will get "eaten up" if I post it. There seems to be a lot of worry because the Tel Aviv owls are so skinny and bedraggled looking. I think they are eating well and healthy, just not what folks have seen with Molly and some of the other cam's they are watching now.

Okay, Laurel and Hardy Steenuul are gonna fall out of the box if they don't cut it out! They were both standing in the box opening when Mama brought a treat. They both grabbed at it, and now neither one will let go of it, so they just keep playing tug-of-war on the ledge opening...until they start to fall, then one lets go, but just until balance is restored, then it starts all over again. Very funny!
