Good morning all you Mods, I see We have our ms Molly home again, what a beauty she is, can't for the life of me figure these two out yet I guess there are just keeping track of their home so no other owls can take over their home. Love these two they are magnificent. Hope you all have a good day. 😊

I sort of look at M and M as a loving couple who needed a little time out for themselves and now they are slipping slowly back into their usual routine. Sometimes together, sometimes busy with other things. Don't they sound just like us in many ways?

BTW, hello, had a late morning and just getting here for my daily lurk.

Good morning...and today it's Molly! I like how the sky looks kind of foggy.

My sister and I enjoyed the musical last night...today we'd talked about swimming or a boat ride, but now there's a chance of rain/storms...bummer!

DS is out riding his bike again...112 miles today! He was all excited about it! At least it's cooler for him.

Have a nice day, owl friends.

Mods should wear an owl or their avatars... remember when a MOD was going to a funeral 2 states away and saw the MOLLY Yard Sign all the way in Ill? No one would stop the car so she could knock on the door.. I used to love going to yard sales,, i still catch one or 2 now and then not often theres not 1 single place to put a new item and i cant let go of 1 so there is a new place. 😊

Have fun good luck i love treasures...

Cheryl, I don't have room for anything either but it doesn't stop me because I can't resist a bargain. I have so much fun going to the sales because I get to meet people and chat for awhile, I so use it as an excuse to be social. I go to the flea market every week and stop and talk to vendors who I have 'known' for years and then I chat with new ones every week. I remember taking my sister-in-law to a flea market one day and about half way through she asked "do you know everyone here"? She told me I was just like my Dad and would talk to anyone; how right she was. I'll take a list from my kids if they are looking for something, so there's another excuse I use with DH. He doesn't get up in the morning because he is up half the night playing on-line games with all those "gamers", so sometimes I'm even home before he wakes up. Have a great day and I'll let you know if I find any treasures. 😊

I followed the birth of Mollie's owl babies last year, watched them grow and eventually find the legs and power to fly away and begin their own bird lives. Watched them every night for months but haven't looked at the site in a long time. Have been watching Roy and Dale and just read a about JH. I remembered his name immediately and felt very sad . Recalled his intelligence, wisdom, humor and aliveness. Life is precious. Someone below printed a picture/painting of him with an owl (?Mollie) on his shoulder. It was beautiful, Thankyou for that. Thank you JH for sharing yourself with us last year.

It's probably already been posted, but he has a beautiful Flickr photostream: http://www.flickr.com/photos/james_michael_hill/ .

He recorded so much beauty, and had such an incisive wit and intelligence, along with a dry sense of humor. And, so young. Hard, very hard.

A little musing ... You know we never know what anyone else is going through, do we? Cyberspace is great as we can see all these wonderful webcams and talk to people across the world, but I think in a sense it adds to our alienation from others. Boy it's easy to just stay in and just click and just get what we need these days. You almost wouldn't need to leave the house, would you? This wonderful technology leads to isolation. Isolation is so very painful. In today's society it is not "acceptable" to admit that type of anguish ... at least in the area where I live. It's easier to laugh and make light and go on and hope things will be better tomorrow. In no way, am I saying that this is what has happened with our dear friend. Please DON'T think I am. It just got me thinking ... (more)

We can say our thoughts are with you, hugs, etc., but ultimately the isolation is still there. Is technology a gift or is it just allowing people to lose the human touch? We don't know the problems that are going on with each other - not the real ones, not the innermost ones. If we were there face-to-face or even writing letters to each other - if our society still encouraged that - would things be different? I know ... very deep for a Friday night!!! I learned a lot from this site. I learned a lot from the interactions here. Allow me to horribly misquote Tennyson(?) "I am a part of all that I meet." - not a direct quote whatsoever. Boy if that isn't true. Learned a lot from you Snowman. Perhaps you are still teaching us more now ... And I'm sure you are CRINGING at the attention being paid to all this, but hey, what are you going to do?

Hi y'owl... Well, I started out this day really sick, barely got coffee out before going back to bed and then had to take DH to work, drive 90 miles to the dentist office !!! Oh SPiT !!! 😊 After getting home, I then set the alarm to take a nap, and slept through it for almost 20 minutes !!! SHeW !!! Time to relax, say hi, watch our McGee for awhile, and relax before starting supper... How's your day going ???

I choose to believe that it means they are holding on to this nest box because they plan to raise another family there. If they both leave who knows who might move in! One gets to stay in the cooler Palms Resort during the day while one keeps their talons in the owl box.

Well that happened faster than I thought. Please feel free to re-post this or share it later in the day or with anyone who might be interested.

Donations to the Carolina Raptor Center in memory of James Hill (by Mollie)

The CRC philanthropy coordinator says we don't need a self-contained fund, just donations with the note that they are in memory of James Hill. You can send a check to the address below or donate through their PayPal page. Be sure to note that the donation is in memory of James Hill.

She told me that if they collect $150, they can release an owl in James' memory. When I described where he lived, she said that's perfect owl territory (we all knew that) and they could release it there.

The CRC will thank us individually and then after about a month will send a note to his parents saying that X amount of money was donated in James's name and it will allow them to do whatever (hopefully an owl release!) with it. They will list us all by name and address but will not say the amount that we each donated.

FYI – Mollie & Eve are working on a way to make donations to a raptor center in memory of James Hill and there is discussion about that on SPO-MOD Sport Group & Coffee House and Owl Friends on facebook. For those not on facebook, I will post the final information here once it is determined. It might not be until next week with the weekend coming so fast now. Mollie has spoken to his parents and they're going to have a memorial service for James at 11:00 on Monday at Mebane United Methodist Church.

For those of you that knew James, you know what a heart of gold he had. WHY? will always be the question but will never know the answer. All I know is that he will be so terribly missed by his lil Sis. James, thanks for all the memories, thanks for always being there for me. I went looking through his pictures.....I got to the ones of his nephews playing ball. I remember that so well. He would go to the games. His love for his deer....we were all mesmerized with his eye for beauty. Does anyone have a picture of his cabin he was in while the first clutch was going on. I remember it seemed like a piece of heaven. Remember the time he was taking care of someone's dog..and something happened to it...so we were all coaching him on what to do!! It's time to remember the good times.

Hi Tigermo, I have become a lurker. I don't understand how I get less done now than I did when I was here day and night. 😞

Must be getting old, sorry I've been old for a long time, now I guess I'm just slowing down. Have been basement diving a lot on many sites to keep up with a little of all the MODs but I do miss so many who have left. I can only hope that if M&M and the Royal Family have another clutch and we get the honor of watching our favorite owls that everyone will return.

I have very fond memories of our James and will always remember him, my prayers go out to his family; they are the ones who will carry him in their hearts.

This site is what helped get me thru the agony and despair I was feeling at the death of my brother. Now my heart breaks for James' sister. He always brought us back down to earth when we got too far out there. Restful peace.

This is terrible, sad news. James enriched our experience here in immeasurable ways. His photos and his memory will live on, but I will miss his wit, intelligence and his presence. RIP James.

Good morning owl friends, I see McGee is taking his turn home alone today, and Molly is taking a day at the Palms, these two are keeping us guessing, thats for sure. I really don't thin k we'll see another clutch here from them until early next winter, and thats why I don't understand their spending all this time in the box, unless, they are afraid some other owls will take over their home if they don't keep guard over it. Who knows what to think? Hope you all have a nice weekend and do something fun. Be happy, and keep those happy thoughts in your hearts and a big smile on your face. Have a good Firday. 😊

Good morning from Atlanta where a good rainy day dropped temps from the nineties down to the seventies! What a relief plus we always need the rain in the summer. Just watched Belle down a gigantic rodent in one fast gulp. I almost choked myself just watching. And off to get a cup of Annie's coffee.
