Mel (male) & Sydney (female), are a mating pair of barn owls located in Oceanside, California. The owl box owner is originally from Melbourne, Australia. The box was set up in mid November and the owls could be seen in the box just two weeks later. This owl box is 16ft above the ground in the owners back yard which is near acres of open wilderness. This provides for plenty of hunting grounds for the owls.

Incubation is 30-34 days from the date each egg is laid. Unlike chickens, Barn Owls begin to incubate immediately after the 1st egg is laid. Each egg will hatch on a different day. All time is in PST(Pacific Standard Time). More information about this camera can be found at Mel & Sydney's Daily Blog.

1st clutch of 2012

Date Laid _____ Estimated Hatch Date

Egg 1 Laid 02/05/12 time 8:16am Hatch eta 3/4-3/8

Egg 2 Laid 02/07/12 time 09:58am Hatch eta 3/6-3/10

Egg 3 Laid 02/09/12 time 01:12pm Hatch eta 3/8-3/12

Egg 4 Laid 02/11/12 time 10:34pm Hatch eta 3/10-3/14

I was already stressed and feeling kind of bad...not too happy about my DS and DS not letting me know about a trip they had planned until the last minute. I'd been thinking I was going to hang out with DS during his spring break. I was feeling bad...came here to feel better but now I'm much worse....but I just want to say y'owl mean so much to me...not sure if I'll post later or not.

Folks, I hate to break in but just thought I would briefly mention that I am setting up a McGee tribute page on the wiki. If you have something to share like a poem, haiku, or something please post over at the Molly & McGee chatroom on SPO or contact me directly. I can't promise everything will get put there, but I will try.

I will also try to make a PDF if I can anymore of the chats where people are expressing their feelings and post that on the page as well.

Thank for letting me make this announcement.

Good evening everyone. With a heavy heart and tears flowing, I am just now reading the comments on the loss of McGee and the babies. That tribute to McGee was so very touching. I didn't have the pleasure of watching M&M; what little time I have on this site has been spent with Mel and Sydney. They are my first. I am not only sad for the loss of McGee, but so very sorry for everyone here who loved M&M. I know this is nature, but that doesn't make it any easier. I am happy to see all is well with Mel, Sydney and their darling owlets. Life goes on, yes. Hugs to all~~

The news is sad. Very, very sad. But, like Trish said we have so many causes to celebrate! Roy and Dale's brood is growing by leaps and bounds, we have three beautiful kiddies here, Ms Harvey the Great Horned owl hatched her third owlet today (the first time all three of her eggs have hatched since she started nesting there in 2003!) and the Starr Ranch kids are beginning to make their way into the world. Mother nature can be a hard taskmaster, but with every death comes new life.

This is a series by Emma, with the Youngest Owlet at Starr Ranch. Enjoy!

A Series: "Sunday with 5, aka Tiny Mite, The Pantaloon Kid, Fuzzy Pants, Fluff Muff!

Just relaxin'

Perhaps listenin' to the SR symphony of bird songs

Perfectin' the one legged stance

Possibly contemplatin' how to eat the humongous prey

Gettin' ready for the day it gets to leave the Ritz

Raspin' of course!

Wonderin' what's up there.....

...and what the sibs are doin' out there.

Maybe instinctively knowin' it's just not his/her turn to go yet!

Hello! I got my nap in and I feel better now. I also just had my 321 cake.....to state the obvious, it is sad about McGee But this is life, and McGee had made it well past the 2 year average for life in the city. His owlets were beautiful, that cannot be denied. I loved watching them. Truth is, we called McGee "Legs" because that is usually all we saw of him, until the owlets were on their own. And then we saw him make Fling-n-Fly deliveries. He was one beautiful owl....and gave life to my favorite owl of all time, Carrie! And it is nice to know his genes live on thru all of his offspring. Like the eagles have done, Molly will find another mate and her life as an excellent mother will go on., I am certain many have good memories of McGee and that is something we all can carry with us. But here in this box we have the other side of the coin. We have new life and new beginnings to celebrate. one more egg to hatch..a beautiful Syd and a very handsome Mel to watch. I hope we don't lose sight of that. Most importantly, we have each other and that was made possible by enjoying the M&M show to start with and then we found this home to settle down in. Our nests are feathered and covered with soft horks here. Breath in....breathe out....smile for the beauty and mystery of life.

Hugs to all of you and to Carlos, Donna & Austin. Molly & McGee brought so many wonderful people together - friendships formed, love and kindness shared, many hugs to lift us when we were down, many laughs to brighten our spirits - and it all began with two very "uncommon" barn owls in San Marcos, CA. Fly high, McGee ♥♥♥

Goodnight, MODs. As Connie said, blessings on thee, as we all share stricken thoughts about the loss of McGee and the 4th clutch. Trystan, who works with owls in Scotland, has noted on fb that it's not impossible that Molly could pair with another male, perhaps even before season's end, with the plentiful food supply and the earliness in the breeding season. Another MOD has included her comforting thought that McGee is with James, who loved them so much from the beginning.

Love to all. See thee on the morrow. --- :o* -----Ellie

McGee was an integral part of the beginning of my barn owl experience and he was my personification of the male barn owl. He worked diligently and loyally to perpetuate his species and never seemed to tire. More importantly to me, he helped introduce me to many, many wonderful and caring people and I feel I have made life friendships with many of them. I thank him for his contributions to this phenomenon. RIP, McGee.

Good evening friends: What an unexpected note to receive about the disappearance of McGee and Molly's loss of her babies. I gotta tell you, it must hurt an owl just as it hurts a human to lose all of them like that. She is a remarkable little owl, and I will always remember her, McGee, and their offspring. She started us down the road and we have enjoyed days and nights of owl watching at the Molly box and here with Mel and Syd. I must go back and look at photos now. G'nite all

I'm happy that we got a chance to see Molly & McGee spend time together in the box. When was that, last spring? I agree Treehouse. As hard as it is it's much better to know what happened than not and be forever wondering.

I thought he wrote a gentle and perceptive post on the blog. Hard, isn't it; even though we know this is all part of the proverbial Circle of Life, a 2-year relationship that is cut off this way is hard. I hope, as Trystan notes on facebook, that Molly does find another mate, and perhaps re-occupies the box as early as this season.

I agree, Treehouse. Stunning and unhappy news, but a measure of closure in understanding what occurred.

It is with great sadness and a heavy heart that we are reporting that we have not seen McGee since March 9th, the day DeeDee hatched. We think he is gone. Last night, since McGee had not returned, Molly made the decision to go hunt for food, leaving DeeDee and the three remaining eggs to fend for themselves. We were expecting the second egg to hatch anytime, in fact we thought we could hear peeping. Molly returned with a small mouse after about 45 minutes. All appeared well as Molly snuggled down on the eggs and began to feed DeeDee. We turned in for the night.

When we got up this morning the second egg was over in the corner away from DeeDee and the remaining eggs. Molly was not in the box. We could detect no movement in DeeDee as she lay on top of the two remaining eggs. It appeared that DeeDee and the two remaining eggs had gone cold while Molly went searching for more food.

When Molly returned with food she quickly placed the gopher in the pantry and checked on DeeDee. DeeDee showed no signs of life, so Molly gently lifted DeeDee and placed her away from the eggs. It was a very moving moment. She then lightly touched the eggs with the palm of her claw searching for the warmth of life. We could tell there was none as she rolled the eggs over and over continually touching them, not wanting to give up.

Tears came to our eyes as we realized that Molly is the only survivor of the fourth clutch. Happiness and sorrow are part of the Cycle of Life. The Way of the Owls tells us each day is precious. It also gives us the statistic that barn owls in the wild only live, on average, about two years and their young often don't survive. Sadly, we have seen this statistic proven true many times this year with the Starr Ranch male, the Rancho Bernardino male and now McGee and the fourth clutch.

Donna and I will always remember McGee; what a magnificent barn owl he was. We have his photo in our living room with all our other family photos.

Please share you comments and feelings below. What has happened also makes us realize just how magical the first clutch was.

IHi Pursja. I put some photos into frames and hung one. Pictures are so hard to hang especially when there are two hooks. I bought one of those special things to help hang and level pictures-----taking it back tomorrow. I couldn't figure it out.

Hi Pat

Hi Sandy...Much easier to hang a picture with 1 hook...I have used 2 hooks, & i put a level up to get the hooks installed but hard to do
