I share everyone's heartbreak and sorrow tonight. I'll be eternally grateful for McGee and Molly for the wonderful people they've brought into my life. It was a privilege to watch them raise two clutches together. Thank you, Carlos. Your webcams made the world a better place.

March 12 update on NX - Some Good News

NX was caught up and brought into the Wildlife Center this morning for another series of radiographs, and the Center's vets were pleased with what they saw. The avulsion fracture in NX's left shoulder continues to heal gradually and although there are still some bony changes visible at the end of her humerus, the Center's vets still attribute these to the healing fracture. Her left shoulder is still dropped noticeably, but NX demonstrated a good range of motion in the joint and the Center's vets agreed that there is a good possibility that NX will begin regular exercise later this month.

Trystan Williams I'm still here just about. I think it is still possible she could pair and breed again this year, if there is enough food available. They have to make the most of what time they have. The gamble for her would be to wait for next year or to try again later this year.
